THE NEW COURSE OF INSTRUCTION

WAS INTRODUCED INTO THE PUBLIC LATIN SCHOOL,

This Series of Latin and Greek Authors

IS MOST RESPECTFULLY DEDICATED

BY THE EDITORS.

P R E F A C E.

IN presenting to the public this, the first of the series of the Greek and Latin authors, included in the new programme of the studies of the Latin School, the editors think it desirable to state in a few words the plan which has been adopted.

The present state of classical learning demands that the scholar shall be able, at the close of his course of study, to read a Latin author with a facility which the methods hitherto pursued of studying the language have rendered impossible. To arrive at the desired result, and to secure the greatest possible interest on the part of the pupil, a programme has been prepared embracing a wide range of the ancient classics. As in many cases it is impossible that the whole of an author should be read, the editors have undertaken the task of making such selections as shall contribute to the most rapid and pleasant advancement of the pupil.

It has been assumed that in the books preparatory to this series the scholar has become tolerably well acquainted with the usual constructions and the more common words. Therefore such notes have been added as may enable him, by casting his eye to the bottom of the page, to go forward with his reading, without being retarded by difficulties of construction or translation. References, however, have been added, for the use of those pupils who may wish to consult their Grammars upon the points elucidated.

As it is believed that a more rapid and equally thorough progress can be made by having the notes at the bottom of the page, the usual custom of placing them at the close of the volume has been abandoned. Experience has shown that, unless the class is especially examined upon the contents of the "Notes," they are in most cases neglected, unless absolutely necessary for ascertaining the meaning of the passage. This being the case, the more immediately they are placed before the eye of the student, the more readily will their contents be mastered.

It has not been expected that all of the notes will meet the approval of every teacher. Each one will direct his pupils to such as he prefers should receive their attention. One may think that at this point of the course too much attention has been given to the subjunctive mood; another may think that now is not the time to draw the pupil's attention to the synonyms. But in the belief that much profit can be derived from attention to them, a good deal of pains has been taken to insert those which are manifestly within the power of discrimination of quite young persons. In a great majority of cases, the words whose difference of meaning is pointed out occur in the volume; in many, in close proximity, and in no case is a word given with which the pupil is supposed to be unacquainted. So, too, an occasional point of construction or translation may seem to a teacher to be hypercritical. If so, he can direct his scholars to disregard it.

In preparing the notes the editors have freely availed themselves of all the materials within their reach. The best and most recent German editions of all three of the authors have been consulted.

In conclusion, the editors wish to acknowledge their great indebtedness to Professor George M. Lane, of Harvard University, for the valuable suggestions kindly afforded by him in the progress of the work.

PHÆDRUS.

LIFE OF PHÆDRUS.

THE few facts we know respecting the personal history of Phædrus, the author of the following fables, are gathered from his own writings. He was a native of Thrace or of Macedonia, and at a very early age was brought to Rome, where he became the slave of Augustus, whose attention he attracted by the integrity of his character and his superior abilities, and from whom he subsequently received his freedom. In the reign of Tiberius, he became the object of the hate and persecution of Sejanus, the infamous confidant of the emperor; but in the same court he found friends and protectors, and it was to these noble patrons that he dedicated the ingenious work in which, under the veil of pleasing allegory, he not only covered his enemies with shame and ridicule, but gave to the world beautiful lessons of wisdom, justice, and moderation in good as well as in evil fortune. By many pointed allusions in these fables he so far incurred the wrath of Sejanus as to be banished from the imperial court; but under Caligula we find him in hopes of being restored to favor by the influence of his friend Eutychus. The date of his birth, as well as of his death, is uncertain; but he is known to have lived in the reigns of Augustus, Tiberius, and Caligula, which embrace a period between B. C. 29 and A. D. 41. He was, therefore, only a little later than Virgil, Horace, and Ovid, the three great poets of the Augustan age. His works, as they have come down to us, consist of ninety-seven fables, distributed into five books, which are written with a purity of style and clearness of expression which show him to have possessed no inferior talents as an author, and to have been a complete master of elegant composition.

In comparing him with La Fontaine, the greatest of the French fabulists, the historian Hallam says, "Phædrus, a writer scarcely prized enough, because he is an early school-book, has a perfection of elegant beauty which very few have rivalled. No word is out of its place, none is redundant, or could be changed for a better; his perspicuity and ease make everything appear unpremeditated, yet everything is wrought by consummate art."

REMARKS ON IAMBIC VERSE.

1. The verse in which the fables of Phædrus are written is called the Mixed Iambic Trimeter;

Iambic, from its prevailing foot, the Iambus (∼ —), which consists of one short and one long syllable;

Trimeter, from the fact that each verse contains three Dipodies, or Pairs of feet;

Mixed, as distinguished from the Pure Iambic, because, while the earlier verse of this kind admitted only the Iambus, in later times Metrical Equivalents and Metrical Substitutes took the place of the Iambus.

2. Metrical Equivalents are feet having the same quantity as the original foot. Thus dōmīnūs, a Tribrach (∼ ∼ ∼), has three short syllables, which in quantity are equivalent to those of pārēns, an Iambus (∼ —).

Metrical Substitutes are feet used for others to which they are not equivalent in quantity. Thus a Spondee (— —), containing two long syllables, may be used for an Iambus (∼ —).

3. The feet employed in this verse are:

Iambus (∼ —), one short and one long, as . ōvēs.

Spondee (— —), two long, as vūlpēs.

Tribrach (∼ ∼ ∼), three short, as dōmīnūs.

Dactyl (— ∼ ∼), one long and two short, as cārmīnā.

Anapæst (∼ ∼ —), two short and one long, as cāpūnt.

Proceleusmatic (∼ ∼ ∼ ∼), four short, as . mēmōriā.

4. The Iambus is allowed in any place, but is always found in the last.

The Proceleusmatic is found only in the first place.

The Spondee, Tribrach, Dactyl, and Anapæst may stand in any place except the last.

The Iambus receives the Ictus or Rhythmic accent on the last syllable. The Equivalents and Substitutes take the ictus of the Iambus, and always on the first of the two short syllables into which a long one is resolved.

5. SCALE OF MIXED IAMBIC TRIMETER.

PROLOGUS. 1. Æsopus] The celebrated fabulist, who had the reputation of being the originator of fables. Of his life and works scarcely anything is known. Many critics, among others Luther, have even doubted his existence. According to Herodotus, Plutarch, and Diogenes Laërtius, he lived about the sixth century B. C., and was a cotemporary of Solon of Athens. He was by birth a Phrygian, served under several masters as a slave, and resided at last at the court of Cræsus, King of Lydia, by whom he was sent on an embassy to Delphi, where, accused of sacrilege, he was thrown from a precipice and killed, about 564 B. C. — auctor] ‘Originally,’ ‘first’; lit. ‘the author’ or ‘inventor.’ Æsop is so called in opposition to Phædrus, who placed the fables in a new form. — materiam] Lit. ‘the material from which anything is made.’ The antecedent, as is not unusual in Latin, is ‘put in the relative clause. H. 445, 9. Construe: materiam, -quam Æsopus auctor repperit. — repperit] Written also reperit.

2. polivi] A metaphor, taken from the artist or workman (faber) who polishes the rough material (materiam). — senariis] ‘With verses of six feet.’

3. Duplex] From duo, plico, ‘to fold.’ Compare the English words ‘twofold,’ ‘threefold,’ etc. — dos] In its prominent signification, means a ‘dowry’ or ‘portion;’ and by duplex dos Phædrus means the double portion which his book, the child of his brain, has received for its recommendation.

4. prudenti—monet] ‘Gives wise counsels for the conduct of life.’

5. Calumniari] Conveys the idea of a groundless, malicious criticism. — voluerit] Lit. ‘shall have wished.’ The English, in expressing the relations of time, is much less exact than the Latin, using often, for the future perfect, the simple future or present.

Quòd arbores loquantur, non tantùm feræ,
Fictis jocari nos meminerit fabulis.

6. loquantur] Subjunctive, as for both true and false narrative. containing the allegations of the malicious critics. H. 520, II. With arbores supply et, 'but also.'

7. Fictis—fabulis] Fabula (for, fãri), like our word 'story,' is used Hence fictis is here appropriately added.—nos] Subject of jocari. —meminerit] The hortatory subjunctive, 'I beg him to remember.' H. 488, I.

FABULA I.

LUPUS ET AGNUS.

Ad rivum eundem lupus et agnus venerant,
Siti compulsi; superior stabat lupus,
Longeque inferior agnus. Tunc fauce improbã Latro incitatus jurgii causam intulit.

"Cur," inquit, "turbulentam fecisti mihi Aquam bibenti?" Laniger contra timens:

"Quî possum, quæso, facere, quod quereris, lupe?"

A te decurrit ad meos haustus liquor."

FABULA I. 2. superior] 'Higher up the stream.' In expressing the more intimate modifications of the verb, the Latin often uses an adjective where we use an adverb. H. 443.

3. Longe] Observe the force of this word, as showing more clearly the utter groundlessness of the wolf's accusation. —fauce improbã] Limits incitatus, 'by his ravenous appetite.'

4. Latro] The wolf. In fables, human attributes and characteristics are ascribed to animals, as rapacity to the wolf, cunning to the fox, stupidity to the ass, &c.

5. mihi] Dative of disadvantage.

6. Laniger] i. e. agnus. Observe how the poet uses different words for the same object. In prose, the pronoun would be employed. —contra] Supply inquit. —timens] The participle, involving a relation of time, here momentary; the adjective (timidus) expresses a permanent characteristic.

7. Quî] An old ablative with an adverbial signification. —quod quereris] 'Of which you complain.'

8. decurrit] 'Runs down'; de often has this signification in composition. —ad meos haustus] Poetic for ad me bibentem, 'to me drinking.' —liquor] i. e. aqua, but here appropriate as signifying Repulsus ille veritatis viribus,

 “Ante hos sex menses male,” ait, “dixisti mihi.” 10
 Respondit agnus: “Equidem natus non eram.”
 “Pater hercule tuus,” inquit, “male dixit mihi.”
 Atque ita correptum lacerat injustā nece.

Hæc propter illos scripta est homines fabula,
 Qui fictis causis innocentes opprimunt. 15 flowing water; hence that which is pure, clear, and fit for drinking.

10. Ante] ‘Six months ago.’

13. Atque ita] ‘And so,’ i.e. while the wolf is justifying himself in this manner. — correptum lacerat] Sc. eum, ‘seizes and tears him.’ So the English uses verbs connected with ‘and’; but the Latin is more precise; correptum implies a temporal relation antecedent to lacerat.

15. fictis causis] ‘Under false pretences;’ the ablative absolute.

FABULA II.

RANÆ REGEM PETIERUNT.

Athenæ quum florerent æquis legibus,
 Procax libertas civitatem miscuit
 Frenumque solvit pristinum licentia.
 Hic conspiratis factionum partibus

FABULA II. 1. Athenæ] Athens, capital of Attica, famed for its learning and culture. — æquis legibus] ‘Impartial’; that is, where all the citizens are equal before the law. The laws of Solon are meant.

2. Procax] From proco = peto. The termination -ax denotes an inclination, generally a faulty one. Trans. ‘grasping’; not content with its own present advantages, but always striving after more, and never satisfied. — miscuit] ‘Threw into confusion.’

3. Frenum] i. e. of the government. A metaphor, taken from horses, which are controlled by the bit and rein, as citizens by a wise government. — licentia] ‘A spirit of lawlessness.’ The subject of solvit.

4. Hic] ‘On this occasion,’ ‘under these circumstances.’ Several particles — such as hic, ibi, ubi, inde, etc. — are used in Latin to express both a temporal and a local relation. — conspiratis] Used actively for conspirantibus. — factionum — partibus] Both of these words mean ‘political parties;’ but factiones conveys the idea of a union for a common aim, whilst Arcem tyrannus occupat Pisistratus.

 Quum tristem servitutem flerent Attici,
 (Non quia crudelis ille, sed quoniam grave Omne insuetis onus) et cœpissent queri,
 Æsopus talem tum fabellam rettulit.

Ranæ vagantes liberis paludibus

 Qui dissolutos mores vi compesceret.
 Pater deorum risit atque illis dedit

partes implies a separation from a whole; hence factionum partes, 'divisions into parties,' or 'different political parties.'

5. Arcem] 'The Acropolis.' In ancient times, an eminence was selected at the first settlement of a town, as being the place most easily defended. The same custom of occupying the hill-tops against the attacks of the Indians obtained in the early settlement of New England. — tyrannus] 'As ruler.' The word tyrannus did not at first imply the odium which we attach to tyrant, but simply meant an absolute ruler of a state previously free. Vid. Nep. Milt., 8. Compare the history of our words knave and villain, meaning originally 'boy' and 'peasant.' — Pisistratus] The son of Hippocrates. He became despot B. C. 560, and died B. C. 527. He gained possession of the Acropolis by means of a body-guard, which had been assigned to him for his defence against assassination from political opponents.

6. Attici] i. e., Athenienses.

7. Non quia crudelis — sed quoniam] In both of these clauses erat is to be supplied. With the first, as containing a reason rejected as invalid, esset would be required in prose. By poetical license, however, the indicative can be used in both. — grave] Predicate adjective. H. 438, 2.

8. Omne — onus] 'Every' (however slight). — insuetis] 'To those unaccustomed to bear burdens.' To be scanned in four syllables. For the sake of the metre v is sometimes regarded as a vowel: silvæ for silvæ, solūt for solvit (Diæresis); and u as a consonant: tenvia for tenuia, milvus for miluus (Synæresis). — cœpissent] H. 518, II.

9. rettulit] For retulit; see repperit. Prol. v. 1.

10. liberis] 'Which were subject to no ruler.' The realm of the frogs is compared with the republic of Athens. — paludibus] Ablative of place. H. 422, 1.

11. a Jove] The usual construction with verbs of asking is two accusatives; but peto takes acc., and abl. with a. H. 374, 3, 4).

12. vi] 'By his authority.' — compesceret] Subjunctive after qui in the sense of ut ille. H. 500.

13. Pater deorum] Jupiter. — risit] At seeing the frogs impatient in their liberty.

Parvum tigillum, missum quod subito vadi
 Motu sonoque terruit pavidum genus. 15
 Hoc mersum limo quum jacéret diutius,
 Fortè una tacite profert e stagno caput,
 Et, explorato rege, cunctas evocat.
 Illæ, timore posito, certatim adnatant,
 Lignumque supra turba petulans insilit; 20
 Quod quum inquinâssent omni contumeliâ,
 Alium rogantes regem misere ad Jovem,
 Inutilis quoniam esset, qui fuerat datus.
 Tum misit illis hydrum, qui dente aspero
 Corripere cœpit singulas; frustra necem 25
 Fugitant inertes; vocem præcludit metus.
 Furtim igitur dant Mercurio mandata ad Jovem,

14. tigillum] Diminutive from tignum. H. 315, 3. — missum quod] ‘Which having been thrown,’ — subito — sonoque] ‘By the sudden motion and sound of the shallow water.’ — vadi] Vadum, of the same origin as the English ‘wade,’ means primarily ‘fordable water;’ stagnum, ‘standing water.’

15. pavidum] The suffix -idus added chiefly to the stem of intransitive verbs in -eo, denotes the condition and property expressed by the verb; often with the collateral idea of fulness. H. 328, 2.

16. Hoc] Refers to genus. — limo] Properly the ablative of instrument, but better translated with ‘in.’ — diütius] Observe the quantity of the antepenult. The force of the comparative may be given by ‘somewhat’ or ‘rather.’

18. explorato] ‘After he had thoroughly examined.’ H. 431, 2.

20. Lignum supra] Anastrophe, the placing of a preposition after its case, occurs in prose almost always with polysyllabic prepositions which govern the oblique cases of qui and hic, but is employed freely by the poets.

21. Quod] To be translated like a demonstrative. H. 453. — inquinâssent] For inquinavissent. H. 234.

22. rogantes] Agrees with legatos understood. H. 578, V. The accusative of the person is here omitted as being sufficiently obvious from the context. The purpose, with verbs of motion, is expressed in Latin more frequently by qui and the subjunctive; thus: misere legatos, qui rogarent.

23. esset] That is, in the opinion of the frogs. H. 520, II.

26. Fugitant] ‘Make frequent efforts to escape.’ Here as in many cases the present tense represents an action as attempted but not completed; the frequentative form expresses the frequent repetition of the action. H. 332, 1.

27. Mercurio] The son of Ju-

Adflictis ut succurrat. Tunc contra deus,
 "Quia nolulistis vestrum ferre," inquit, "bonum, Malum perferte." "Vos quoque, o cives," ait, 30
 "Hoc sustinete, majus ne veniat malum."

- piter and Maja, messenger of the gods.

28. succurrat] 'Entreating him to succor them in their affliction.'

29. bonum] Here neuter; 'your good fortune.' H. 441, 2.

30. perferre] Stronger than ferre; 'endure as best you can.'

— ait] Æsop is speaking to the Athenians.

31. Hoc] Sc. malum; the rule of Pisistratus.

FABULA III.

GRACULUS SUPERBUS ET PAVO.

Ne gloriari libeat alienis bonis
 Suoque potius habitu vitam degere,
 Æsopus nobis hoc exemplum prodidit.
 Tumens inani graculus superbiâ,
 Pennas pavoni quæ deciderant sustulit 5
 Seque exornavit. Deinde contemnens suos Immiscuit se pavonum formoso gregi.
 Illi impudenti pennas eripiunt avi
 Fugantque rostris. Male mulcatus graculus

FABULA III. 1. libeat] Impersonal. H. 556, 1. 'That one may not be pleased to plume himself on others' good properties, but rather pass his life in his own position.' Gloriari and degere are subjects of libeat, which depends on prodidit. — bonis] The neuter plural of the adjective is often used like a noun. H. 441, 1.

2. Suo — degere] Sc. ut libeat.

3. exemplum] i. e., fabulam.

5. pavoni] H. 386, 2.

6. exornavit] Supply his,

'with them.' — Deinde] Ei in deinde and dein is always a diphthong in Phædrus. — suos] 'His fellows.'

7. formoso] H. 323. — gregi] 'Flock;' seldom of birds, but Horace uses grex avium. Ep. I. 3, 19.

8. Illi] i. e., pavones. — avi] H. 386, 2.

9. Fugant] Sc. eum. Observe that the transitive verb fugo means 'to put to flight,' while the intransitive verb fugio means 'to flee.' — Male mulcatus] 'Bad-

Redire mærens cœpit ad proprium genus ; 10
 A quo repulsus tristem sustinuit notam.
 Tum quidam ex illis, quos prius despexerat :
 “Contentus nostris si fuisses sedibus
 Et quod natura dederat voluisses pati,
 Nec illam expertus esses contumeliam, 15
 Nec hanc repulsam tua sentiret calamitas.”

ly punished.' Mulco means properly 'to beat, cudgel.'

11. notam] 'Mark of disgrace.' A term borrowed from the Roman censors, who branded (notabant) unworthy citizens as such, and punished them by incapacitating them for certain honors and distinctions, and by degrading them from their rank.

12. quidam] Sc. inquit. H. 367, 3. — ex illis] Expressing the same relation as the partitive genitive illorum. H. 398, 4, 2).

13. fuisses] 'Had you been,' as you were not. H. 510. — sedibus] 'With our station.' H. 419, IV.

15. illam — hanc] Of two persons or things previously spoken of, hic generally refers to the last mentioned; ille, to the more remote: hic, however, not unfrequently may refer to the immediate subject of discourse. Here ille refers to vv. 8, 9; hic to v. 11.

16. calamitas] 'Nor would you, in your misfortune, meet this repulse which we have given you.' In poetry a substantive which signifies a characteristic or a quality (in the abstract) is often used instead of the person to whom this characteristic or quality belongs. Cf. 4, 5; 5, 11.

FABULA IV.

CANIS PER FLUVIUM CARNEM FERENS.

Amittit meritò proprium qui alienum adpetit.

Canis per flumen, carnem dum ferret, natans,
 Lympharum in speculo vidit simulacrum suum,
 Aliamque prædam ab alio ferri putans,

FABULA IV. 1. adpetit] Observe the force of ad in this connection: 'seeks, in addition to what he already possesses.'

2. dum ferret] Dum, like quum, is joined with the subjunctive, when it implies, in addition to the temporal, a causal relation existing between the principal and subordinate clauses. Compare Dum te fugeret. Virg., Geo. IV. 457.

3. Lympharum] A poetic word for aquæ.

Eripere voluit; verùm decepta aviditas, 5
 Et quem tenebat ore dimisit cibum,
 Nec, quem petebat, adeò potuit attingere.

5. Eripere] Sc. illi. — aviditas] 7. adeò] ‘After all.’ Nec is ‘But, in his greediness, he was disappointed.’ Cf. 3, 16. equivalent to et non, and its negative element modifies potuit.

FABULA V.

VACCA, CAPELLA, OVIS, ET LEO.

Nunquam est fidelis cum potente societas :
 Testatur hæc fabella propositum meum.

Vacca et capella et patiens ovis injuriæ,
 Socii fuere cum leone in saltibus.

Sic totam prædam sola improbitas abstulit.

FABULA V. 1. fidelis] ‘To be depended upon.’

2. propositum] ‘My point.’

3. patiens] ‘Patient under wrong.’ — injuriae] Depending upon patiens. H. 399, 2.

4. Socii] Not sociæ, as the lion was included in the partnership. When nouns are of different genders and denote animate objects, the adjective modifying them is masculine. H. 439, 2, 1). — saltibus] In silva, the idea of trees of a large growth is prominent ; in saltus, the nature of the ground, as mountainous region and valley, plateau and ravine, wholly or partially covered with trees.

5. corporis] ‘Size ;’ genitive of characteristic. H. 396, IV.

6. partibus] Ablative absolute ; ‘after a division had been made.’

7. primam] Sc. partem. — leo] Predicate noun. H. 362.

9. me sequetur] ‘Shall fall to me.’ So Hor. Sat. I. 8, 13.

10. tetigerit] Future perfect. Cf. Prol. v. 5.

11. improbitas] ‘In his insatiable knavery he alone.’ Cf. 3, 16 ; 4, 5.

FABULA VI.

VULPES ET PERSONA TRAGICA.

 3. illis] ‘For the advantage of those.’

Illicere pretio, ut illud extraherent malum.

Tandem persuasa est jurejurando gruis ;

Gulæque credens colli longitudinem,

Periculosam fecit medicinam lupo.

FABULA VII. 2. indignos] pretio is usually regarded as the ablative of price ; but it is better to consider it the ablative of means.
 ‘Those who do not deserve his aid.’
 3. jam] i. e., after he has done so. — malum] i. e., os devoratum.
 4. fauce] Is poetic, and is the only case found in the singular ; here used as the ablative of place.
 5. gruis] As nominative, occurs only in this passage.
 6. pretio] In such cases as this, 8. colli longitudinem] For longum collum.
 9. Periculosam] ‘Full of peril,’

Pro quo quum pactum flagitaret præmium, 10
 “Ingrata es,” inquit, “ore quæ nostro caput Incolume abstuleris et mercedem postules.”

i. e., he wrought a cure for the wolf which was dangerous to himself. the different words used, pretium, præmium, mercedem. Pretium is a price of anything that is bought or sold; præmium, a due recompense for an honorable action; merces, wages allowed for services rendered.

10. flagitaret] ‘To demand earnestly.’

12. abstuleris] Subjunctive after quæ = quod tu; ‘because you.’

H. 519. — mercedem] Observe

FABULA VIII.

LUPUS ET VULPES JUDICE SIMIO,

Quicumque turpi fraude semel innotuit,
 Etiam si verum dicit, amittit fidem.
 Hoc adtestatur brevis Æsopi fabula.

Lupus arguebat vulpem furti crimine;
 Negabat illa se esse culpæ proximam. 5

Tunc judex inter illos sedit simius.
 Uterque causam quum perorâssent suam,
 Dixisse fertur simius sententiam:

“Tu non videris perdidisse quod petis;
 Te credo subripuisse, quod pulchre negas.” 10

FABULA VIII. 4. crimine] H. 410, III. 4, 3). be so. — perdidisse] The wolf had lost nothing, because what he had

5. culpæ proximam] ‘Guilty.’ was not his own, but stolen

6. inter illos] ‘To decide between the contending parties.’ property. — quod petis] The relative refers to id, the omitted object of perdidisse. H. 445, 6.

7. Uterque] In a collective sense; hence the plural verb. H. 461, 3. — perorâssent] For peroravissent. ‘Had pleaded.’

9. Tu] i. e., lupus. — videris] The usual way in which judges pronounced their opinion; not that the thing was, but seemed to

10. Te] i. e., vulpem. — subripuisse] Observe the force of sub, ‘secretly,’ or ‘by stealth.’ — pulchre] ‘Speciously,’ ‘smoothly.’ — quod negas] i. e., te subripuisse. Quod is the object of subripuisse understood.

FABULA IX.

ASINUS ET LEO VENANTES.

Virtutis expers, verbis jactans gloriam,
Ignotos fallit, notis est derisui.

Venari, asello comite, quum vellet leo,
Contexit illum frutice, et admonuit simul,
Ut insuetā voce terreret feras,

Fugientes ipse exciperet. Hic auritulus
Clamorem subito totis tollit viribus, Novoque turbat bestias miraculo.

Quæ, dum paventes exitus notos petunt,
Leonis adfliguntur horrendo impetu.

Qui, postquam cæde fessus est, asinum evocat, Jubetque vocem premere. Tunc ille insolens:

“Qualis videtur opera tibi vocis meæ?”

“Insignis,” inquit, “sic, ut nisi nōssem tuum

Animum genusque, simili fugissem metu.”

FABULA IX. 1. Virtutis] ‘He who is without courage, but is continually boasting of his glorious exploits.’

2. Ignotos — notis] Used actively. ‘Deceives those that don’t know him, but is a laughing-stock to those that do.’ — notis — derisui] Two datives after est. H. 390.

4. Contexit] ‘Concealed him in the bushes.’

5. insuetā] Scanned in four syllables by Diæresis; ‘strange to them,’ i. e., the beasts.

6. exciperet] The subjunctive is here used by a species of attraction to terreret. Regularly the infinitive with the accusative would be employed after dicens implied in admonuit. The lion first directs the ass to frighten the animals, and then adds the declaration that he would catch them as they came forth. — auritulus] Diminutive from auritus, ‘furnished with ears.’ H. 323.

8. miraculo] ‘By the new wonder;’ as his voice had never before been heard in the woods.

9. notos] ‘Familiar,’ or ‘well-known.’

12. vocem premere] ‘To stop his braying.’

14. Insignis] The predicate adjective of opera understood. — sic] ‘To such a degree.’ — nōssem — fugissem] H. 510.

15. Animum genusque] Hendiadys for animum generis tui. H. 704, II. 2.

FABULA X.

CERVUS AD FONTEM.

Laudatis utiliora, quæ contempseris,
Sæpe inveniri, hæc adserit narratio.

Ad fontem cervus, quum bibisset, restitit
Et in liquore vidit effigiem suam.

Ibi dum ramosa mirans laudat cornua

Crurumque nimiam tenuitatem vituperat,

Venantum subito vocibus conterritus

Per campum fugere cœpit et cursu levi

Canes elusit. Silva tum exceptit ferum,

In quâ retentis impeditus cornibus

Lacerari cœpit morsibus sævis canum.

Tunc moriens vocem hanc edidisse dicitur:

“O me infelicem! qui nunc demum intelligo,

Utilia mihi quàm fuerint, quæ despexeram,

FABULA X. 1. Laudatis] Ablative after the comparative without quam; ‘than those things which are praised.’ H. 417. — contempseris] In the subjunctive after the indefinite antecedent talia, to be supplied. H. 501, I. The second person singular is to be translated by ‘one’ or ‘any one.’ H. 460, 2, 1).

7. Venantum] The genitive plural in um is often used by the poets, whilst in prose ium is more common.

8. levi] ‘Swift,’ ‘nimble.’

9. elusit] ‘Baffled the pursuit of.’ Eludere is a word used of gladiators, who, by the quick motion and turn of the body, escaped the blows of their antagonists.

10. retentis] ‘Held fast in the branches of the trees.’

11. Lacerari] With passive infinitives, the passive form of cæpi is usually employed. H. 297, 1.

12. vocem hanc] ‘This exclamation.’

13. O me infelicem] Accusative of exclamation. H. 381 and 1. — qui] The relative qui may refer to an antecedent of the first, second, or third person; and its verb takes the person of the antecedent. — nunc demum] ‘Now at last,’ i. e., ‘too late.’

14. fuerint — habuerint.] Subjunctives of indirect question.

15. laudâram] For laudaveram. — luctus] Partitive genitive. H. 396, III. 3), (3).

FABULA XI.

VULPES ET CORVUS.

Qui se laudari gaudet verbis subdolis,
Fere dat pœnas turpi pœnitentiã.

Quum de fenestrã corvus raptum caseum

Comesse vellet, celsã residens arbore,

Vulpes hunc vidit, deinde sic cœpit loqui:

“O qui tuarum, corve, pennarum est nitor!

Quantum decoris corpore et vultu geris!

Si vocem haberes, nulla prior ales foret.”

At ille stultus, dum vult vocem ostendere,

Emisit ore caseum, quem celeriter

Dolosa vulpes avidis rapuit dentibus.

Tum demum ingemuit corvi deceptus stupor.

Hac re probatur, ingenium quantum valet.

Virtute semper prævalet sapientia.

FABULA XI. 2. pœnas] Means, primarily, ‘quit-money for blood spilt,’ hence satisfaction, penalty, dare pœnas, ‘to pay the penalty;’ or ‘suffer punishment.’

4. Comesse] Present infinitive from comedo. H. 291, 3.

7. geris] Poetic for habes. Cf. Virginis os habitumque gerens, Virg. Æn. I. 315.

9. stultus] ‘Foolishly,’ ‘like a fool.’ Cf. 1, 2.

12. corvi deceptus stupor] ‘The stupid raven having been outwitted;’ lit. ‘the deceived stupidity of the raven.’ Cf. 3, 16.

14. Virtute] Ablative depending on præ in prævalet, where a comparison is implied. ‘Wisdom is superior to strength.’ H. 434.

FABULA XII.

EX SUTORE MEDICUS.

Malus quum sutor, inopiã deperditus,

Medicinam ignoto facere cœpisset loco,

FABULA XII. 1. Malus — sutor] ‘A bungling cobbler.’

2. facere] ‘To practise.’ — ignoto] ‘Where no one knew him.’

Et venditaret falso antidotum nomine,
 Verbosis adquisivit sibi famam strophis.
 Hic quum jaceret morbo confectus gravi 5
 Rex urbis, ejus experiendi gratiā,
 Scyphum poposcit; fusā dein simulans aquā
 Antidoto miscere illius se toxicum,
 Hoc bibere jussit ipsum, posito præmio.
 Timore mortis ille tum confessus est, 10
 Non artis ullā medicæ se prudentiā,
 Verùm stupore vulgi factum nobilem.
 Rex, advocatā contione, hæc edidit:
 “Quantæ putatis esse vos dementiæ,
 Qui capita vestra non dubitatis credere, 15
 Cui calceandos nemo commisit pedes?”
 Hoc pertinere verè ad illos dixerim,
 Quorum stultitiā quæstus impudentiæ est.

3. falso — nomine] i. e., an antidote ‘falsely so called.’

4. strophis] ‘By wordy tricks.’ Stropha means properly ‘a turn;’ hence ‘a trick’ or ‘artifice,’ which persons employ when they wish to elude or deceive.

6. ejus — experiendi] ‘For the sake of trying him,’ ‘of putting him to the proof.’ H. 562.

7. simulans] ‘Pretending that he mixed poison with his antidote.’

9. ipsum] i. e., sutorem.

11. prudentiā] ‘Knowledge.’

12. factum] Supply esse; ‘had become famous.’

14. vos] Subject of esse. — dementiæ. H. 402, III.

15. credere] Supply ei.

16. calceandos] ‘To be shod.’

17. verè] ‘With good reason.’ — dixerim] The subjunctive is here used to make the assertion less positive. Compare our English expressions, ‘I should say,’ ‘I should like,’ etc., in colloquial usage. H. 486, III. 3.

18. Quorum] ‘From whose folly gain accrues to the impudent.’

FABULA XIII.

ASINUS AD SENEM PASTOREM.

In principatu commutando sæpius
 Nil præter domini nomen mutant pauperes.

FABULA XIII. 1. sæpius] The force of this comparative may be given by the expression, ‘in the majority of cases.’ H. 444, 1.

Id esse verum parva hæc fabella indicat.

Asellum in prato timidus pascebat senex.

Is hostium clamore subitò territus 5

Suadebat asino fugere, ne possent capi.

At ille lentus: "Quæso, num binas mihi Clitellas impositurum victorem putas?"

Senex negavit. "Ergo quid refert meâ,

Cui serviam? clitellas dum portem meas." 10

7. ille] i. e., asellus. — lentus] the dative singular feminine, 'rei fert meâ.' Here fero would be used absolutely, but it is difficult to account for the dative 'rei;' others, with whom Madvig agrees, take the pronoun as the ablative singular feminine, 're fert meâ.'

9. refert meâ] This construction has occasioned great difficulty to grammarians. Some regard the possessive pronoun as the accusative plural neuter; some as a shortened form of the accusative feminine, and the phrase equivalent to 'rem fert meam;' some as

10. serviam] Subjunctive of indirect question. — portem] Subjunctive of condition after dum = dummodo. H. 503, 1.

FABULA XIV.

RANA RUPTA ET BOS.

Inops, potentem dum vult imitari, perit.

In prato quondam rana conspexit bovem,

Et tacta invidiâ tantæ magnitudinis

Rugosam inflavit pellem; tum natos suos

Interrogavit, an bove esset latior. 5

Illi negârunt. Rursus intendit cutem

Majore nisu et simili quæsivit modo,

FABULA XIV. 5. an — latior] parative. H. 417. — esset] Subjunctive of indirect question.

This clause takes the place of the second accusative. H. 374, 4. — bove] Ablative after the com-

6. negârunt] For negaverunt, 'They said no.'

Quis major esset. Illi dixerunt, bovem.
 Novissime indignata, dum vult validius
 Inflare sese, rupto jacuit corpore.

8. Quis] In the sense of uter, vissimum agmen, Cæs. B. G. 1, 15.
 ‘which of the two.’—bovem] Sup- 10. jacuit] ‘She lay a corpse.’
 ply esse majorem. So jacere is often used of those

9. Novissime] ‘At last.’ Cf. no- who have met a violent death.

FABULA XV.

CANES ET CORCODILI.

Consilia qui dant prava cautis hominibus,
 Et perdunt operam, et deridentur turpiter.

Canes currentes bibere e Nilo flumine,
 A corcodilis ne rapiantur, traditum est.

Igitur quum currens bibere cœpisset canis,

4. corcodilis] Metathesis for have, as often happens, noli with cröcodilis, for the metre. the infinitive. H. 535, 1, 3).

6. Quam] For quantum. ‘As 8. mehercule] To be read in much as you please.’—otio] ‘At three syllables.

FABULA XVI.

VULPES ET CICONIA.

Nulli nocendum; si quis verò læserit,
 Multandum simili jure fabella admonet.

FABULA XVI. 1. nocendum] 2. jure] The ablative of man-Supply est, not esse. ner. H. 414.

Vulpes ad cenam dicitur ciconiam
 Prior invitâsse, et illi in patenâ liquidam
 Posuisse sorbitionem, quam nullo modo 5
 Gustare esuriens potuerit ciconia.
 Quæ, vulpem quum revocâsset, intrito cibo
 Plenam lagonam posuit; huic rostrum inserens, Satiatur ipsa, et torquet convivam fame.
 Quæ quum lagonæ collum frustra lamberet, 10
 Peregrinam sic locutam volucrem accepimus:
 "Sua quisque exempla debet æquo animo pati."

4. Prior] The comparative, as only two objects are mentioned. — invitasse] For omission of subject, see H. 545, 2. — patenâ] 'A broad dish,' or 'platter;' from pateo, to lie open. — liquidam sorbitionem] 'A thin soup.'
6. esuriens] From esurio, a desiderative verb, from edo; 'being hungry.' — potuerit] In the oratio obliqua dependent clauses after the accusative with the infinitive require the subjunctive. H. 528; 531.
7. Quæ] i. e., 'the stork.' — revocasset] For revocavisset. Observe the force of re; 'in turn.' — intrito cibo] 'Finely minced food.'
9. convivam] i. e., vulpem.
11. Peregrinam] Whence the English pilgrim. The stork, 'the bird of passage,' so called from its migratory habits.—locutam] Supply esse. H. 545, 3.

FABULA XVII.

MILUUS ET COLUMBÆ.

Qui se committit homini tutandum improbo,
 Auxilia dum requirit, exitium invenit.

Columbæ sæpe quum fugissent miluum
 Et celeritate pennæ vitâssent necem,
 Consilium raptor vertit ad fallaciam, 5
 Et genus inerme tali decepit dolo;

- FABULA XVII. 1. tutandum] 'For protection.' H. 565, 3.
2. Auxilia] Poetic for auxilium. — requirit] 'Seeks in vain,' for such here is the force of re.
3. miluum] For milvum. Cf. 2, 8.
4. pennæ] Singular for plural; 'by swiftness of wing.'
5. raptor] i. e., miluus. For the termination -or, see H. 321, 1.

“Quare sollicitum potius ævum ducitis,
 Quàm regem me creatis icto fœdere,
 Qui vos ab omni tutas præstem injuriã?”
 Illæ credentes tradunt sese miluo,
 Qui, regnum adeptus, cœpit vesci singulas,
 Et exercere imperium sævis unguibus.

10

7. ævum] Poetic for vitam.

11. singulas] ‘One after another.’

8. Quam] To be joined with potius. — icto fœdere] The Latins used the expression icere, ferire fœdus in the sense of facere, because, among other ceremonies, in concluding a treaty, a swine was killed as a sacrifice to the gods. Liv. I. 24.

Vesci is usually followed by the ablative, but occasionally, as in this instance, by the accusative. H. 419, 4, 1).

13. De reliquīs] In the relation of partitive genitive. ‘One of the survivors.’ H. 398, 4, 2). — Merito] Because by our credulity and imprudence we are the authors of our own calamity.

9. Qui — præstem] qui = ut ego. Hence the subjunctive. H. 500.

FABULA XVIII.

JUVENCUS, LEO ET PRÆDATOR.

Super juvencum stabat dejectum leo;
 Prædator intervenit, partem postulans.
 “Darem,” inquit, “nisi soleres per te sumere;”
 Et improbum rejecit. Fortè innoxius
 Viator est deductus in eundem locum,
 Feroque viso, retulit retro pedem.
 Cui placidus ille, “Non est quod timeas,” ait;

FABULA XVIII. 3. Darem — nisi soleres] This form of the conditional clause gives a denial both to the condition and conclusion; as if he had said, ‘I shall not give it, for you are accustomed.’ H. 510.

4. innoxius] Used actively. ‘Harmless.’

6. retulit retro] A pleonasm not uncommon with the poets. Cf. retro vestigia Turnus refert. Virg. Æn. 9, 797:

7. Non est] ‘There is no reason

“Et, quæ debetur pars tuæ modestiæ, Audacter tolle.” Tunc, diviso tergore,
Silvas petivit, homini ut accessum daret. 10
Exemplum egregium prorsus et laudabile;
Verùm est aviditas dives, et pauper pudor.

why you should fear.’ — timeas] Subjunctive in a relative clause after a general negative. H. 501, I. 1.

8. quæ debetur pars] The relative and antecedent in the same clause. Cf. Prol. v. 1. Construe tolle partem quæ, etc. H. 445, 9.

9. Audacter] By syncope for audaciter. H. 335, 2. — tergore] Is primarily the back; but is here put by metonymy for the whole body.

10. accessum daret] ‘So that he might give the traveller an opportunity to approach.’

11. Exemplum — pudor] ‘The example is excellent, doubtless, and worthy of praise; but, in truth, covetousness is rich and modesty is poor.’ — laudabile] The termination -bile denotes capability, generally in a passive sense. H. 328, 3.

FABULA XIX.

REPENTE CALVUS.

A feminis utcunque spoliari viros,
Ament, amentur, nempe exemplis discimus.
Ætatis mediæ quendam mulier non rudis
Tenebat, annos celans elegantiam,
Animosque ejusdem pulchra juvenis ceperat. 5
Ambæ, videri dum volunt illi pares,

FABULA XIX. 1. utcunque] Explained by ament, amentur. ‘Whatever be the case, whether they love or are loved.’ — spoliari] Object of discimus. H. 551.

2. Ament, amentur] Supply sive — sive. — nempe] Spoken ironically; as if he had said, ‘Though we know by daily experience that men are plundered by women, yet, as if this were not sufficient, we ought to learn it by fables.’ — exemplis] i. e., fabulis. So often in Phædrus.

3. non rudis] ‘Not inexperienced in the world.’

4. Tenebat] ‘Held as an admirer.’ Cf. dum me Galatea tenebat. Virg. E. 1, 32. — elegantiam] ‘By her taste.’

5. Animos] ‘The affections.’

6. pares] Supply ætate.

Capillos homini legere cœpère invicem.
 Quum se putaret fingi curā mulierum,
 Calvus repente factus est; nam funditus
 Canos puella, nigros anus evellerāt.

7. homini] Dative after the verb, instead of genitive after capillos. H. 398, 5. as accusative of specification. H. 380. 'That his hair was arranged.'

8. se — fingi] Supply capillos, 10. Canos—nigros] Sc. capillos.

FABULA XX.

HOMO ET CANIS.

Laceratus quidam morsu vehementis canis,
 Tinctum cruore panem misit malefico,
 Audierat esse quod remedium vulneris.
 Tunc sic Æsopus: "Noli coram pluribus

FABULA XX. 1. vehementis] ~~genitive~~ ^{to} mischievous 'Savage,' or 'fierce.' ~~Of the vicious cur.~~ H. 382
 2. malefico] An adjective agreeing with ~~crure~~, instead of the ~~crure~~. 4. Noli — facere] Cf. 15, 7.
 6. scierint] Future perfect. Cf. Prol. v. 5.

cani (understood)

FABULA XXI.

MULI ET LATRONES.

Muli gravati sarcinis ibant duo;
 Unus ferebat fiscos cum pecuniā,

FABULA XXI. 2. fiscos] 'Large baskets made of osiers, Spanish broom, or rushes,' which the Romans sometimes used for the custody of coin; whence the word fiscus, under the Empire, was applied to that portion of the public revenue designed for the maintenance of the sovereign. Compare the English word 'fiscal.'

Alter tumentes multo saccos hordeo.

Ille onere dives, celsā cervice eminent,

Clarumque collo jactat tintinnabulum,

Comes quieto sequitur et placido gradu.

Subitò latrones ex insidiis advolant,

Interque cædem ferro mulum sauciant,

Diripiunt nummos, negligunt vile hordeum.

Spoliatus igitur casus quum fleret suos,

“Equidem,” inquit alter, “me contemptum gaudeo;

Nam nil amisi, nec sum læsus vulnere.”

Hoc argumento tuta est hominum tenuitas;

Magnæ perîclo sunt opes obnoxiaë.

3. Alter] ‘The other of the two;’ alius, ‘another of many.’

9. vile] In comparison with the money.

4. Ille] Refers to unus in v. 2.

10. Spoliatus] The mule that was robbed of the money.

5. collo] Ablative of place. H. 422, 1.

13. hominum tenuitas] i. e., tenuis, ‘men of scanty resources;’ for the expression, cf. 3, 16.

6. Comes] Referring to alter in v. 3.

14. Magnæ — opes] ‘Men of great wealth.’

8. cædem] ‘In the fray;’ cædes does not necessarily imply death.

FABULA XXII.

ANUS AD AMPHORAM.

Anus jacere vidit epotam amphoram,

Adhuc Falernā fæce, e testā nobili,

Odorem quæ jucundum late spargeret.

Hunc postquam totis avida traxit naribus,

“O suavis anima! quale in te dicam bonum”

FABULA XXII. 1. epotam] ‘Emptied,’ i. e., ‘empty.’

3. spargeret] H. 501, I.

2. Falernā] Falernus (ager) was a district or territory in the northern part of Campania, celebrated for its fertility and the excellence of its wine.

4. totis — naribus] ‘With distended nostrils.’

5. anima] ‘O delicious flavor!’ — in te] Refers to amphoram. — quale — bonum] ‘What excellence.’

Antehac fuisse, tales quum sint reliquæ?"

Hoc quò pertineat dicet, qui me noverit.

7. Hoc quo pertineat] 'The application of this fable;' lit., 'to what this pertains.' Phædrus, in this fable, comforts himself, as he was growing old, with the reflection of what he was in better days.

FABULA XXIII.

SIMIUM CAPUT.

Pendere ad lanium quidam vidit simium

Inter reliquas merces atque obsonia;

Quæsivit, quidnam saperet? Tum lanium jocans,

"Quale," inquit, "caput est, talis præstatur sapor."

Ridicule magis hoc dictum, quàm verè æstimo, 5

Quando et formosos sæpe inveni pessimos,

Et turpi facie multos cognovi optimos.

FABULA XXIII. 1. ad lanium] being the principal part; cf. 18, 9), Ad is here used in the sense of apud. 'At the butcher's.' so is the taste;' or, 'as is the exterior, so is the understanding.'

3. quidnam] 'What its taste was.' — saperet] Subjunctive of indirect question. The wit — (3) jocans, (5) ridicule — of the reply lies in the double signification of the word sapere, 'to taste,' and 'to be wise.' It could be taken with either of the following meanings: 'As is the exterior (represented by caput, 'the head,' that

4. præstatur] 'Is warranted.' The usual expression of the seller, who guarantees that his wares will be such as he has represented them.

5. Ridicule] 'In jest.'

6. Quando] In a causal relation; 'since.'

7. turpi facie] Ablative of characteristic. H. 428.

FABULA XXIV.

ÆSOPUS ET PETULANS.

Successus ad perniciem multos devocat.

Æsopo quidam petulans lapidem impegerat;

"Tanto," inquit, "melior!" Assem deinde illi dedit,

FABULA XXIV. 2. impegerat] From impingo. 'Had thrown.' 3. Tanto — melior] 'So much the better you!' a phrase of approval. It may be rendered here, ‘ Well done ! my fine fellow.’ — Assem] The as, as money, was originally a pound of uncoined copper ; but, in process of time, its weight was gradually reduced, and it became a coin of very small worth ; hence used to denote anything of insignificant value. It may be rendered here by ‘ a far-thing.’

4. prosecutus] Sc. verbis. — mehercule] An oath commonly used by men ; the women employed the expression mecastor.

8. Persuasus] ‘ He was persuaded and did.’ — quod] Refers for its antecedent to id, the omitted object of fecit.

10. cruce] ‘ On the cross.’ This kind of punishment was employed in Rome until the time of Constantine, who abolished it, as the cross had become a sacred symbol.

FABULA XXV.

MUSCA ET MULA.

Musca in temone sedit, et mulam increpans,
 “ Quam tarda es ! ” inquit ; “ non vis citius progredi ?
 Vide, ne dolone collum compungam tibi.”
 Respondit illa : “ Verbis non moveor tuis ;
 Sed istum timeo, sellā qui primā sedens 5
 Jugum flagello temperat lento meum,
 Et ora frenis continet spumantibus ;

FABULA XXV. 2. vis] From volo.

3. dolone] Properly ‘ a staff with a sharp iron point,’ but here used by metonymy for the sting of the fly.

4. illa] i. e., mula. — Verbis] Evidently implying that threats, minas (11), are only words, in opposition to flagello (6) and frenis (7).

5. sellā qui primā sedens] i. e., ‘ the driver.’

6. temperat] ‘ Controls.’ — lento]

LUPUS AD CANEM.

Quàm dulcis sit libertas, breviter proloquar.

Canis perpasto macie confectus lupus

Fortè occurrit; dein salutantes invicem

Ut restiterunt: "Unde sic, quæso, nites?"

Aut quo cibo fecisti tantum corporis? 5

Ego, qui sum longe fortior, pereò fame."

Canis simpliciter: "Eadem est conditio tibi, Præstare domino si par officium potes."

"Quod?" inquit ille. "Custos ut sis liminis,
A furibus tuearis et noctu domum." 10

"Ego verò sum paratus; nunc patior nives

 “Age, si quò abire est animus, est licentia?” 25
 “Non plane est,” inquit. “Fruere, quæ laudas, canis; Regnare nolo, liber ut non sim mihi.”

17. tamen] ‘Yet;’ ‘although it be a trifle, yet tell me.’

19. Luce] Ablative of time = interdium, ‘in the daytime.’ H. 426.

21. ultro] ‘Without my asking for it.’

25. Age] ‘Come, tell me.’ — est licentia] ‘Have I the liberty?’

26. Non plane est] Sc. licentia. ‘Certainly not.’ — Fruere] In the present imperative; sc. iis.

27. Regnare nolo] The idea is, ‘I would not be a king at the expense of my liberty.’ — mihi] Dative of advantage. — ut] ‘On the condition that.’ H. 490.

FABULA XXVII.

SOROR ET FRATER.

Præcepto monitus sæpe te considera.

Habebat quidam filiam turpissimam

Idemque insignem pulchrā facie filium.

Hi, speculum, in cathedrā matris ut positum fuit,

Pueriliter ludentes fortè inspexerunt. 5

Hic se formosum jactat; illa irascitur

Nec gloriantis sustinet fratris jocos,

Accipiens, quid enim? cuncta in contumeliam.

FABULA XXVII. 2. turpissimam] ‘Extremely ugly.’ The superlative often denotes, not that degree which is exclusively the highest, but only a very high degree of the positive, and then is called the absolute superlative. 5. inspexerunt] The penult is here short by Systole. H. 669, IV.

8. quid enim] ‘For why should she not?’ for women are so sensitive in this respect.

Ergo ad patrem decurrit læsura invicem,
 Magnaque invidiã criminatur filium, 10
 Vir natus quòd rem feminarum tetigerit.
 Amplexus ille utrumque et carpens oscula
 Dulcemque in ambos caritatem partiens,
 "Quotidie," inquit, "speculo vos uti volo:
 Tu formam ne corrumpas nequitiaè malis; 15
 Tu faciem ut istam moribus vincas bonis."

9. læsura] Sc. eum, i. e., filium, paints, and the like. — tetigerit] 'in order to vex him in her turn.' Subjunctive, as containing the allegation of another. H. 520, II.
10. Magnaque invidiã] 'With great spite.' 14. speculo] Ablative after uti. H. 419, I, 1.
11. rem feminarum] 'Meddled with women's affairs'; particularly those which belonged to her toilet, such as the mirror, 15. Tu] i. e., filius. — malis] 'By the blemishes.'
16. Tu] i. e., filia.

FABULA XXVIII.

SOCRATES AD AMICOS.

Vulgare amici nomen, sed rara est fides.

Quum parvas ædes sibi fundâsset Socrates, (Cujus non fugio mortem si famam adsequar, Et cedo invidiæ, dummodo absolvar cinis;)

- FABULA XXVIII. 1. fides] 'The fidelity of a friend.'
2. Socrates] The celebrated Athenian philosopher, son of Sophroniscus, the statuary. He was born B. C. 468. Accused of corrupting the youth, and of introducing innovations into the religion of his country, he was condemned to die, by drinking hemlock, B. C. 399. After his death he was acquitted of these charges, and held in great honor by his countrymen.
3. Cujus—mortem] 'Such a death as his I do not shrink from.'
4. cedo invidiæ] The idea is, I am ready to submit to unpopularity, provided that after my death I shall be pronounced innocent. — cinis] 'When I am become ashes;' referring to the Roman custom of burning the dead, which had become almost universal in the time of Phædrus. — absolvar] The subjunctive after dummodo. H. 503, I.

Ex populo sic nescio quis, ut fieri solet: 5
 “Quæso, tam angustam talis vir ponis domum?”
 “Utinam,” inquit, “veris hanc amicis impleam!”

5. Ex populo] ‘Some one of the people.’ — ut fieri solet] ‘As is usually the case, when one engaged in some enterprise is exposed to the judgment of the public.’

6. talis vir] In apposition with tu, the omitted subject of ponis.
 7. inquit] Sc. Socrates. — impleam] The subjunctive after the particle of wishing, utinam. H. 488, II. 1. — hanc] Emphatic.

FABULA XXIX.

PULLUS AD MARGARITAM.

In sterquilino pullus gallinaceus,
 Dum quærit escam, margaritam repperit.
 “Jaces indigno quanta res,” inquit, “loco!
 Hoc si quis pretii cupidus vidisset tui,
 Olim redisses ad splendorem pristinum. 5
 Ego, qui te inveni, potior cui multò est cibus, Nec tibi prodesse, nec mihi quicquam potes.”
 Hoc illis narro, qui me non intelligunt.

FABULA XXIX. 3. quanta res] An appositive of tu, subject of jaces. ‘How valuable a thing art thou, to lie in this unworthy place!’

as follows: nec ego, qui te inveni, tibi prodesse possum, nec (tu) mihi quicquam (prodesse) potes.

4. Hoc — vidisset] ‘Had seen this,’ i. e., the pearl in such a place.

8. illis] ‘For the benefit of those.’ In this fable Phædrus complains of those who were insensible to the merits of his writings.

7. tibi prodesse] Understand

FABULA XXX.

APES ET FUCI, VESPA JUDICE.

Apes in altâ quercu fecerant favos;
 Hos fuci inertes esse dicebant suos.
 Lis ad forum deducta est, vespā judice;

FABULA XXX. 2. suos] Predicate of hos, the subject of essè.

3. vespā judice] Ablative absolute. ‘Before a wasp as judge.’

Quæ, genus utrumque nôsset quum pulcherrime, 5
 Legem duabus hanc proposuit partibus :
 “Non inconueniens corpus, et par est color ;
 In dubium plane res ut meritò venerit ;
 Sed, ne religio peccet imprudens mea,
 Alvos accipite, et ceris opus infundite,
 Ut ex sapore mellis et formâ favi, 10
 De quîs nunc agitur, auctor horum appareat.”
 Fuci recusant ; apibus conditio placet.
 Tunc illa talem protulit sententiam :
 “Apertum est, quis non possit, et quis fecerit ;
 Quapropter apibus fructum restituo suum.” 15
 Hanc præterîssem fabulam silentio,
 Si pactam fuci non recusâssent fidem.

5. Legem] ‘Made this offer,’ or ‘proposal.’

6. Non inconueniens] ‘Not dissimilar.’

7. plane] ‘Altogether;’ this modifies in dubium — venerit.

8. ne religio] The sense is, ‘But lest I, sworn as a judge, should err through ignorance, and violate my oath.’

9. opus] i. e., mel.

11. quîs] Contracted from qui- bus. H. 187, 1. — agitur] ‘Concerning which the inquiry is now before us.’

13. illa] i. e., vespa. — protulit] ‘Gave judgment as follows.’

14. qui — fecerit] ‘Who cannot make and who has made them.’

17. pactam — fidem] ‘The terms agreed upon.’ In this fable, Phædrus is supposed to refer to those who had claimed some of his verses as their own.

FABULA XXXI.

DE LUSU ET SEVERITATE.

Puerorum in turbâ quidam ludentem Atticus
 Æsopum nucibus quum vidisset, restitit,

FABULA XXXI. 1. ludentem — nucibus] ‘Playing with nuts.’ Suetonius, in his life of Augustus (c. 83), relates of him, that ‘for amusement he would sometimes Hence the proverb: ‘Relinquere angle, or play with dice, pebbles, Et quasi delirum risit. Quod sensit simul, or nuts with little boys collected from various countries.' The game appears to have been played by laying three nuts together and casting a fourth so that it would rest upon them, or by casting a nut from a distance into a hole.

3. quasi delirum] 'As though he were a madman.'

4. Derisor — deridendus] 'The one to laugh rather than to be laughed at.'

7. se torquet] 'Perplexes himself.'

9. Novissime] 'At last.' Cf. 14, 9.

13. Ad cogitandum] The accusative of the gerund. H. 565, 1.

FABULA XXXII.

ARBORES IN DEORUM TUTELA.

Olim, quas vellent esse in tutelā suā,
 Divi legerunt arbores. Quercus Jovi, Et myrtus Veneri placuit, Phœbo laurea,

FABULA XXXII. 1. vellent] The subjunctive of result; that is, 'such as they would wish to have under their protection.' H. 501, I.

2. Jovi] The oak, the monarch of trees, was naturally ascribed to Jupiter, the king of the gods; and his oldest sanctuary was the sacred oak of Dodōna.

3. Veneri] The goddess of love.

The myrtle was assigned to her, on account of its luxuriant growth and blossoms; or according to the old fable, because, at her birth, it afforded a place of concealment as she rose from the foam of the sea. — Phæbo] An epithet of Apollo, as god of the clear, beaming light, especially the light of the sun. He delighted in the laurel, because his favorite Daphne was transformed into this tree. Ovid, Met. I. 452-565.

4. Cybēbæ] Cybēle, called also Magna mater, or the mother of the gods. The name in Latin is usually written Cybēle, but here, on account of the verse, Cybēbæ. The pine was attributed to this goddess, because Attis, her favorite, was turned into this tree.—Herculi] Hercules, the most celebrated of all the heroes of antiquity. He was the son of Jupiter by Alcmenē, of Thebes, in Bœotia. It was from the leaves of the poplar that he made himself a garland, on his return from the lower world, whither he had gone to bring the monster Cerberus.

7. Honorem fructu] The sense of this passage seems to be, ‘We have chosen no fruit-bearing trees, in order to avoid the appearance of selling their products for honor, or of receiving honor as a consideration for the fruit which we have supplied to men.’—fructu] Ablative of price. H. 416.

8. mehercules] An elliptical expression for ‘ita me Hercules juret,’ usually employed by males. Cf. 24, 4.—narrabit] In the sense of narrat, or narrato.

11. dicere] Present passive second person singular.—omnibus] Instead of ab omnibus. H. 388, 4.

13. prosit] The subjunctive in a relative clause after a general negative. H. 501, I.

FABULA XXXIII.

JUNO ET PAVO.

Pavo ad Junonem venit, indignè ferens

Cantus luscini quòd sibi non tribuerit;

FABULA XXXIII. 1. Pavo] of Argus, when slain by Mercury, The peacock was Juno’s favorite bird; according to fable, the eyes were transferred to its tail.

2. tribuerit] H. 520, II.

Illum esse cunctis avibus admirabilem,
 Se derideri, simul ac vocem miserit.
 Tunc consolandi gratiā dixit dea : 5

 Delusa ne spes ad querelam recidat. 15

3. Illum] i. e., lusciniium. — esse] Sc. dicens. H. 530, II. 1.

4. miserit] Perfect subjunctive in a dependent clause of the oratio obliqua. H. 529.

8. gemmeam] ‘ Begemmed.’

9. Quo mī] Sc. divi dederunt. — mutam speciem] That is, ‘ beauty without song.’

10. Fatorum] The reply of Juno. — vobis] ‘ To you (birds).’

12. Augurium] From the flight of ravens auspices were taken, and were of favorable import if they appeared on the right of the augurs. The crow, on the contrary, gave its lucky omens on the left hand. Cic. de Div. I. 7; 39.

14. affectare] ‘ Aspire to that.’

15. Delusa] ‘ Lest deluded in your hopes you return to complaining.’

FABULA XXXIV.

ÆSOPUS RESPONDET GARRULO.

Æsopus domino solus quum esset familia,
 Parare cenam jussus est maturius.
 Ignem ergo quærens, aliquot lustravit domus,
 Tandemque, invenit, ubi lucernam accenderet.

FABULA XXXIV. 1. domino] ‘ When Æsop alone formed his master’s entire establishment ;’ dative of the possessor. H. 387.

2. maturius] ‘ Earlier than usual.’

3. domus] Accusative plural; domos is the common form.

Tum circumeunti fuerat quod iter longius, 5
 Effecit brevius: namque rectā per forum
 Cœpit redire. Et quidam e turbā garrulus:

3. intuere] Second person singular present imperative.

6. Frons prima] ‘The first appearance.’ — rara mens] ‘There is but here and there a mind that comprehends.’

7. cura] Sc. poëtæ.

8. sine mercede] ‘Without recompense,’ or ‘reward.’ Without examples and illustrations moral instruction is too frequently dry and uninteresting. Accordingly the moralist recounts a story or fable. Thus Phædrus will have the foregoing moral reflections perused, not without compensation (sine mercede), not without a remunerative or attractive form. — locutus] When the subject of the infinitive and of the leading verb is the same, the participle of the compound form of the infinitive takes the case of the subject of the leading verb, usually the nominative. H. 547, 2.

Qui sæpe laqueos et muscipula effugerat ;
 Proculque insidias cernens hostis callidi,
 “Sic valeas,” inquit, “ut farina es, quæ jaces !”

19. Sic valeas] Subjunctive of desire. H. 488, 1. ‘So may you thrive,’ that is, ‘may you not thrive, as you are not meal, which you pretend to be.’ Some critics suppose that this fable was levelled against an emissary or spy of Tiberius or Sejānus, who lived at Rome, and in outward appearance seemed incapable of doing any harm, yet caused the ruin of many by his informations.

5. hostem] i. e., aprum. — Redit] Contraction for rediit ; hence the i long. — Jactis — telis] 'By throwing weapons.'

6. locutus] H. 547, 2. Cf. 36, 8.

8. sis] Subjunctive of indirect question.

10. Parvæ vindictam rei] 'Revenge for a trifle.'

13. dedi] Present passive infinitive from dedo, 'to be delivered up to the rule of another.' The invention of this fable belongs to Stesichörus, a Greek lyric poet, who flourished about B. C. 570, at Himëra, a town of Sicily. When the citizens had chosen Phaläris general with absolute power, and were on the eve of assigning him a body-guard, Stesichörus related a fable of the same import. Aristot. Rhet. II. 20.

JUSTINUS.

LIFE OF JUSTIN.

THE age in which Justin lived, and even his entire name, are matters of doubt. In most manuscripts, merely the name Justinus is given; in one he is called Justinus Frontinus, and in another M. Junianus Justinus. According to some, his age is supposed to be that of the Antonines; but the words "Imperator Antonine," which occur in the preface of the early editions, are now considered an interpolation of some one of the earlier editors. The first writer by whom he is mentioned is Saint Jerome, about A. D. 407. How long before this time his abridgment was written, it is impossible to decide. That he lived somewhat after the Augustan age, is conclusively proved by his use of several words which occur only in the later writers, as aduno, impossibilis, restaurare; the indiscriminate use of civitas and urbs; by the numerous instances of his disregard of the regular sequence of tenses; and by the employment of Greek constructions in the use of the infinitive.

Trogus Pompejus, of whose history Justin's work is an abridgment, was a Roman who flourished under the reign of Augustus. He himself writes that his ancestors had their origin from the Vocontii, a people of Gallia Narbonensis; that his grandfather received the right of citizenship from Pompey the Great, in the Sertorian war; that his uncle led a troop of cavalry under the same Pompey; and that his father served under Julius Cæsar. Trogus's name Pompejus seems to have been derived from his connection with the family of Pompey.

Trogus's history was entitled "Liber Historiarum Philippicarum," and was intended to give a complete history of the rise, progress, decline, and fall of the Macedonian monarchy. In the execution of his plan, the author introduced the history of the Assyrians, Medes and Persians, as well as of the several states of Greece. The sources of his information were doubtless the Greek historians, and to Theopompus he was indebted for the general plan of his work. It is probable that the style of the history — which is greatly admired for its purity and elegance — is chiefly that of Trogus, though the intermixture of post-Augustan words proves that the book is not simply a collection of extracts.

JUSTINI HISTORIÆ PHILIPPICÆ.

ALEXANDRI MAGNI VITA.

HISTORICAL INTRODUCTION.

BEFORE the time of Philip, the father of Alexander the Great, Macedonia had but little influence upon the condition of Greece. At the accession of Philip to the throne, the kingdom was a narrow territory around Pella, excluded partially by independent and powerful Grecian cities even from the neighboring sea-coast. He first manifested his ability by changing his rude subjects into disciplined soldiers, and conquering the surrounding nations. Next he availed himself of the dissensions between the Grecian states, so that, at the time of his death, Macedonian ascendancy was established from the coasts of the Propontis to those of the Ionian Sea; and all Greece, with the exception of Sparta and some mountainous districts, submitted to his control. It was with soldiers trained in the twenty-four years of his father's reign that Alexander made the conquest of the Persian empire.

longinquæ] 'Distant.' Philip, at the time of his death, was making preparations for the conquest of the Persian empire.

remissam — expeditionem] 'At being released from the expedition' (into Asia).

5. gaudebant] Gaudere, to rejoice inwardly; letari, to show one's gladness.

facem] By the Roman custom, the bride was brought to the bridegroom's house by the light of a torch.

nuptiis filiæ] Philip was assassinated at the celebration of the nuptials of his daughter Cleopatra.

7. haud mediocris] An instance of litotes—i. e., a mode of expressing something by denying the contrary.

metus] The apprehension of an evil; timor, cowardly fear.

8. reputantes] 'Considering.'

Asiam] The name Asia, in Latin authors, meant, at different times, regions very different in extent. In Justin and Nepos, by it is usually meant so much of the continent as was under the sway of the King of Persia. The Roman province Asia included, at first, only the dominions of Attālus, King of Pergāmus. In Cicero's time, it embraced Phrygia, Mysia, Caria, and Lydia, while subsequently the Tigris and the Euphrātes became the limit of the Roman empire in the East.

Eurōpam] i. e., Greece, which was not wholly subdued.

10. barbaras] A term applied by the Greeks and Romans to all nations except themselves.

fidei dubiæ] 'Of doubtful faith.'

quædam] Quidam, a certain one whom we can name; aliquis, a certain one whom we cannot, or do not choose to, name.

3. interventus] 'The succession.'

4. pro tempore] 'As the time demanded.'

6. annos] With the adjective natus, the number of years (the measure of the age) is put in the accusative. H. 378.

II. The beginning of Alexander's reign. He prepares to invade Persia.

14. omnia] Omnes, all, in a general sense; cuncti, all together, opposed to sejuncti; universi, all, opposed to singuli.

15. occidi] It is said that Augustus Cæsar put to death three hundred captives at an altar raised to Julius Cæsar on the ides of March.

jussit] Jubere, to bid, to express a wish; imperare, to order with authority, where obedience is required.

Lyncistæ] An appositive of fratri. Three brothers from Lyncistis, a district of Macedonia, were privy to Philip's assassination.

16. auspiciam] Regularly means divination only from birds; augurium, from any appearance in the ordinary course of nature.

regem eum] Two accusatives. H. 373.

5. ex captivis] The relation of the partitive genitive. H. 398, 4.

9. pependisse] Pendo originally meant to weigh out, hence to pay, as, in the earliest times, payments were made by weighing out metals; then, as a punishment frequently consisted of fines in money, pendere pœnas, to pay the penalty.

juventute] 'The youth,' the abstract for the concrete. Juventus extended from the twentieth to the fortieth year.

15. deos] Bacchus and Hercūles.

16. Privata—deprecatur] 'He attempts to influence the king by his reverence on personal grounds,' appealing to him in consequence of his assumed descent from Hercūles.

17. Æacidarum] The Æacids derived their origin from Æacus, and not from Hercūles. On his father's side, Alexander was a descendant of Hercūles.

18. pueritiæ] Probably Philip was taken to Thebes by Pelopidas for his safety.

1. parcat] Ut omitted. H. purchaser, to take vengeance on 493, 2. an enemy, would readily pay a high price.

majores] ‘Ancestors;’ with deos, two accusatives. H. 373.

2. partim] Used adverbially,
‘in part.’

4. diruitur] The house of Pin-dar, the poet, and those of his descendants, alone were saved.

5. sub coronâ venduntur] The number sold was thirty thousand.
It was the custom in early times to place a chaplet on the head of a captive, when offered for sale as a slave. The chaplet indicated that the seller gave no warranty.
See Festus, 269, 12.

6. extenditur] ‘Is raised.’ The

7. refugiis profugorum] ‘For the refuge of the exiles.’

9. ita — ut] ‘On the condition that.’ In this sense, ita is usually followed by si.

1. remaneret] Manere, to remain, not to leave a place; remanere, to remain, if others leave.

2. tutelam] For the protection of Macedonia, he left Antipater with thirteen thousand men.

3. Adunato — exercitu] ‘Having united his forces;’ but for syntax, see H. 419, 2, 1).

4. incredibili] The termination -ibilis denotes capability, generally in a passive sense. H. 328, 3.

5. duodecim] Agrees with deorum. The Dii Consentes of the Romans were twelve in number, whose gilded statues were ranged along the forum, the same doubtless with those enumerated by Ennius, — Juno, Vesta, Minerva, Ceres, Diana, Venus, Mars, Mercurius, Jovis, Neptunus, Vulcanus, Apollo. According to Arrian, Alexander erected altars to Jupiter, Pallas, and Hercules.

aras] The ara was the low altar, upon which was sometimes erected the altare, or high (altus) altar; this was dedicated only to the gods above, while the ara was dedicated both to the superior and inferior gods.

9. petitæ] ‘Assailed.’

10. ultor] The termination -or denotes agent or doer. H. 321, 1.

longa jam satis] From the time of Cyrus the Elder to the time of Darius, two hundred and thirty years had elapsed.

11. quorumque—acturos] ‘Whose place (vices) it was now time that (the Greeks) should take, as likely to conduct affairs better.’

12. exercitus — animorum præsumptio] ‘The anticipation of his army.’

14. obliti] The accusative is often put with those verbs which signify to remember, and to forget, when they denote to have a thing in the memory (knowledge of a thing), or the reverse (but not to think of a thing, or not to think of it). See also H. 406, II., and 407, 1.

domo militiæ, Persicum aurum et totius Orientis opes jam quasi suam prædam ducebant; nec belli periculisque, sed divitiarum meminerant. Quum delati in continentem essent, primus Alexander jaculum velut in hostilem terram jecit, armatusque de navi tripudianti similis prosiluit, atque ita hostias cædit, precatus, "ne se regem illæ terræ invitæ accipiant." In Ilio quoque ad tumulos heroum, qui Trojano bello ceciderant, parentavit.

VI. Inde hostem petens, milites a populatione Asiæ prohibuit, "parcendum suis rebus" præfatus, "nec perdenda ea, quæ possessuri venerint." In exercitu ejus fuere peditum triginta duo millia, equitum quatuor millia quingenti, naves centum octoginta duæ. Hæc tam parvâ manu universum terrarum orbem utrum admirabilius vicerit, an aggredi ausus fuerit, incertum est. Quum ad tam periculosum bellum exercitum legeret,

4. jaculum] With the ancients, when hostilities were decided on, a javelin was hurled across the hostile frontier as a token of war.

5. hostilem] The termination -ilis denotes belonging or relating to. H. 325.

navi] Ablative case. H. 87, III. 1.

7. In Ilio] When, instead of the genitive of place, the name of a town stands in the ablative with the preposition in, the region about the place is included. H. 423, 3, 2).

8. tumulos heroum] It was here that Alexander stood by the tomb of Achilles, and said that he envied that hero two things — first, that in his lifetime he had found one true friend, Patroclus; and, secondly, that after his death his praises had been sung by Homer.

VI. A description of the Macedonian army. The overthrow of the Persians at the Granicus.

11. prohibuit] Prohibere, to keep off somebody from something; arcere, to bar the progress. Prohibens acts on the offensive, arcens on the defensive.

parcendum suis rebus] 'That they ought to spare their own property;' parcendum (esse), used impersonally.

15. terrarum orbem] 'The world, the circle of the earth,' since the ancients regarded the earth as a circular plane or disk.

16. vicerit] Indirect question, here the subject of incertum est.

incertum est] 'It is uncertain whether we are more to wonder (admirabilis, an adverb) that he conquered,' etc., 'or that he dared non juvenes robustos, nec primum florem ætatis, sed veteranos, plerosque etiam emeritæ militiæ, qui cum patre patruisque militaverant, elegit: ut non tam milites, quàm magistros militiæ electos putares. Ordines

VII. Dum hæc aguntur, interim indicio captivi ad eum defertur, "insidias ei ab Alexandro Lyncistâ," genero Antipatri, qui præpositus Macedoniae erat, "parari." Ob quam causam timens, ne quis interfecto eo in Macedonia motus oriretur, in vinculis eum habuit. Post hæc 10 Gordium urbem petit, quæ posita est inter Phrygiam majorem et minorem: ejus urbis potiundæ non tam propter prædam cupido eum cepit, sed quòd audierat, in eâ urbe in templo Jovis, jugum plaustrum Gordii positum; "ejus nexum si quis solvisset, eum totâ Asiâ re- 15 gnaturum," antiqua oracula cecinisse. Hujus rei causa et origo illa fuit. Gordius quum in his regionibus bubus conductis araret, aves eum omnis generis circumvolare cœperunt. Profectus ad consulendos augures vicinæ urbis, obviam in portâ habuit virginem eximiæ 20

VII. Alexander, having escaped from the plot of the Lyncistian, cuts the Gordian knot.

7. defertur] Deferre rem, to carry information; referre rem, to bring back a report.

Lyncistâ] The Lyncistian proposed to Darius to murder Alexander; in turn, Darius promised him the throne of Macedon and a thousand talents. Alexander was informed of the plot by the mother of Darius, according to the account of Diodorus.

12. potiundæ] For potiendæ. H. 238. As potior was originally construed with the accusative, it can take the gerundive form. H.

562, 4. The gerundive construction is almost always employed when no ambiguity would arise from its use.

14. jugum] The English word yoke is of the same origin with jugum, not a derivative from it.

17. bubus] Ablative plural of bos, contracted from bovibus. H. 90, 2.

19. augures] Were Roman priests who interpreted the will of the gods, or revealed future events from observations taken on the flight and singing of birds, the feeding of the sacred fowls, lightning, dreams, or any unusual occurrence.

pulchritudinis; percontatusque est eam, “quem potissimum augurem consuleret.” Illa, auditā causā consulendi, gnara artis ex disciplinā parentum, “regnum ei portendi,” respondit: polliceturque “se et matrimonii et 5 spei sociam.” Tam pulchra conditio, prima regni felicitas videbatur. Post nuptias inter Phrygas orta seditio est. Consulentibus de fine discordiarum oracula responderunt, “regem discordiis opus esse.” Iterato quærentibus de personā regis, jubentur eum regem obser- 10 vare, quem reversi primū in templum Jovis euntem plastro reperissent. Obvius illis Gordius fuit, statimque eum regem consalutant. Ille plastrum, quo vehenti regnum delatum fuerat, in templo Jovis positum, Majestati regiæ consecravit. Post hunc filius Mida 15 regnavit, qui, ab Orpheo sacrorum solennibus initiatus, Phrygiam religionibus implevit: quibus tutior omni vitā, quā arnis fuit. Igitur Alexander, captā urbe, quum in templum Jovis venisset, jugum plastri Gordii requisivit: quo exhibito, quum capita loramentorum in- 20 tra nodos abscondita reperire non posset, violentius oraculo usus, gladio loramenta cædit: atque ita resolutis nexibus, latentia in nodis capita invenit.

5. conditio] By metonymy, ‘bride.’

6. Phrygas] Accusative plural of Phryges. H. 98.

8. regem — esse] ‘That a king was necessary for composing their differences.’ H. 419, V.

quærentibus] An anacoluthon. Had the word quærentes been used, the construction would have been regular.

9. personā] Means, first, a mask used by a stage player; then the characters assumed by the player; then a person. Here translate personā regis ‘what sort of a character they were to have for a king.’

12. quo vehenti] ‘In which as he rode;’ vehenti, with a neuter signification.

14. Majestati regiæ] ‘To royal Majesty,’ as a goddess; an instance of personification.

Mida] For the various stories connected with Midas, see Class. Dictionary.

20. violentius — usus] ‘Having put a forced interpretation upon the oracle.’

reperire] Invenire, as a general term, to find; reperire supposes a previous concealment of the thing found, and a painstaking on the part of the finder.

VIII. Hæc illi agenti nuntiatur, Dariū cum ingenti exercitu adventare. Itaque timens angustias, magnā celeritate Taurum transcendit; in quā festinatione quingenta stadia cursu fecit. Quum Tarsum venisset, captus Cydni fluminis amœnitate per mediam urbem influentis, projectis armis, plenus pulveris ac sudoris, in præfrigidam undam se projecit. Tum repente tantus nervos ejus occupavit rigor, ut, interclusā voce, non spes modò remedii, sed nec dilatio periculi inveniretur. Unus erat ex medicis, nomine Philippus, qui solus remedium polliceretur. Sed et ipsum Parmeniōnis pridie a Cappadociā missæ epistolæ suspectum faciebant; qui ignarus infirmitatis Alexandri scripserat, "a Philippo medico caveret: nam corruptum illum a Darīo ingenti pecuniā esse." Tutius tamen est ratus, dubiæ se fidei medici credere, quam indubitato morbo in ordinandâ acie] The ab-

nandā acie fuit: quippe omissis ducum officiis, ipse omnia circumire, singulos hortari, veteris gloriæ Persarum, imperiique perpetuæ a diis immortalibus datæ possessionis admonere. Post hæc prælium ingentibus animis committitur. In eo uterque rex vulneratur. 5 Tandiu certamen anceps fuit, quoad fugeret Darius. Exinde cædes Persarum secuta est. Cæsa sunt peditem unum et sexaginta millia, equitum decem millia; capta quadraginta millia. Ex Macedonibus cecidere pedestres centum triginta, equites centum quinquaginta. In castris Persarum multum auri, ceterarumque opum inventum. Inter captivos castrorum mater, et uxor eademque soror, et filiæ duæ Darii fuere. Ad quas visendas hortandasque quum Alexander venisset, conspectis armatis, invicem se amplexæ, velut statim 15 morituræ, complorationem ediderunt. Provolutæ deinde genibus Alexandri, non mortem, sed, dum Darii corpus sepeliant, dilationem mortis deprecantur. Motus tantā mulierum pietate Alexander, et Darium vivere dixit, et timentibus mortis metum dempsit, easque 20
 haberi et salutari ut reginas præcepit. Filias quoque non sordidius dignitate patris sperare matrimonium jussit.

Interjecto tempore, aliæ epistolæ Darii Alexandro redduntur, quibus filiæ matrimonium et regni portio offertur. Sed 5 Alexander "sua sibi dari" rescripsit; jussitque "supplicem venire, et regni arbitria victori permittere." Tum spe pacis amissâ, bellum Darius reparat: cum quadringentis millibus peditum, et centum millibus equitum obviam vadit Alexandro. In itinere nuntiatur, "uxo- 10 rem ejus decessisse, ejusque mortem illacrimatum Alexandrum, exsequiasque benigne prosecutum, idque eum non amoris, sed humanitatis causâ fecisse. Nam semel tantum eam Alexandro visam esse, quum matrem filiasque ejus parvulas frequenter consolaretur." 15 Tunc Darius se ratus verè victum, quum post prælia etiam beneficiis ab hoste superaretur, gratumque sibi esse, si vincere nequeat, quòd a tali potissimum vinceretur. Scribit itaque et tertias epistolas, et gratias agit, quòd nihil in suos hostile fecerit. Offert deinde 20 majorem partem regni usque flumen Euphrâten, et Hortatur milites suis scribere, rariorem habituros occasionem propter militiam remotiorem. Datos fascēs epistolarum tacite ad se deferri jubet; ex quibus cognito de se singulorum iudicio, in unam cohortem eos, qui de rege durius opinati fuerant, contribuit, aut consumpturus eos, aut in ultimis terris in colonias distributurus. Inde Drancas, ceterosque populos, qui in radice Caucasi morabantur, subegit. Interea unus ex amicis Darii Bessus vinctus perducitur, qui regem non solum prodiderat, verum et interfecerat. Quem in ultionem perfidiae excruciantem fratri Darii tradidit; reputans non tam hostem suum fuisse Dariū, quàm amicum ejus, a quo esset occisus. Et, ut his terris nomen relinqueret, urbem Alexandriam super amnem Tanaim condidit, intra diem septimum decimum muro sex millium

5. Hortatur] Here followed by the infinitive, but usually by the subjunctive.

10. durius — fuerant] Means here not merely ‘had entertained harsh opinions,’ but ‘had given expression to them.’

consumpturus] Curtius states that this division was compelled to march apart from the rest of the army as in disgrace, and that the desire of washing away the stain urged them to the display of their bravery.

12. Caucasi] When Alexander crossed the Paropamisus (Hindū Kush) chain, his followers regarding this achievement as the highest geographical adventure, applied the name Caucasus to the range.

13. morabantur] ‘Dwelt,’ as wandering tribes tarried but a short time in one place.

19. amnem] Fluvius, flumen, the ever-flowing mass of water; amnis, the stream, larger than fluvius; rivus, a small stream, rivulet.

Tanaim] Mr. Taylor, in his “Names and Places,” chap. 9, takes ground that the syllable Tan- of Tanais, in Celtic, is the same that appears in the modern name Don, and means water or river, and that the termination -is has the same meaning. The Greeks gave the name of Tanais to the Jaxartes, as if Alexander had extended Europe to that river.

passuum consummato, translatis eò trium civitatum populis, quas Cyrus condiderat. In Bactriānis quoque Sogdianisque duodecim urbes condidit, distributis his, quoscunque in exercitu seditiosos habebat.

VI. His ita gestis, sollemni die amicos in convivium 5 vocat. Ubi ortā inter ebrios rerum a Philippo gestarum mentione, præferre se patri ipse, rerumque suarum magnitudinem extollere cælo tenus cœpit, assentante majore convivarum parte. Itaque quum unus e senibus Clitus, fiducia amicitiae regiæ, cujus palmam tenebat, 10 memoriam Philippi tueretur, laudaretque ejus res gestas; adeo regem offendit, ut telo a satellite raptò eundem in convivio trucidaverit. Quā cæde exultans, mortuo patrociniū Philippi, laudemque paternæ militiæ objectabat. Postquam satiatus cæde animus con- 15 quievit, et in iræ locum successit æstimatio, modò personam occisi, modò causam occidendi considerans, pigere facti cœpit: quippe paternas laudes tam iracunde accepisse se, quàm nec convicia debuisset; amicumque senem et innoxium a se occisum inter epulas et pocula, 20 dolebat. Eodem igitur furore in pœnitentiam, quo pridem in iram versus, mori voluit. Primum in fletus

VI. Alexander kills his friend Clitus at a banquet. His subsequent repentance and remorse.

7. præferre se ipse patri] Means that he himself (and not some one else) preferred himself to his father, whereas se ipsum would mean that he preferred himself (and not some one else) to his father.

8. cælo tenus] The usual expression is in cælum or ad cælum. Tenus always follows its case.

10. cujus — tenebat] 'Of which he held the principal place.'

14. mortuo patrociniū objecta- bat] 'He scoffed at the dead man for his defence.' "Go now," said he, "to Philip, Parmenio, and Attalus."

16. personam occisi] 'The character.'

17. pigere] Used personally. Other editions insert eum, but then there is an anacoluthon, the regular construction requiring considerans to be considerantem.

18. tam iracunde quam nec debuisset] Literally, 'as angrily as he ought not,' but translate, 'with more anger than he ought to have felt in listening to insults to his memory.'

6. cujus — eum]. Governed by pudebat. H. 410, III. 1.

pudebat] Piget, it is mortifying, causes distaste; pœnitet, it is painful, makes us regret, repent; pudet me, I am ashamed at being exposed.

10. quantum — invidiæ] ‘How many remarks and how much ill will.’ H. 396, III. 2, 3). (3).

13. non] Modifies terribilior.

15. Amyntas] Was a cousin of Alexander, and put to death by him for a plot against his life.

noverca] Cleopatra was a niece of Attālus, whom Philip married when he divorced Olympias. After Philip’s murder, she was put to death by Olympias, and her infant child perished with her.

16. Attālus] Was one of the generals of Philip, who gave offence to Alexander, with whom he tried in vain to make terms, and by whose order he was finally assassinated.

Eurylōchus] Of Eurylōchus, if Justin is correct, nothing is known. Subsequently to this time, one of that name received from Alexander a magnificent reward for exposing the plot of Hermolāus.

mam deductos barbariam, inter infestas et irritatas bello gentes, destituat." Multum profuere Callisthenis philosophi preces, condiscipulatu apud Aristotēlen familiaris illi, et tunc ab ipso rege ad prōdenda memoriæ acta ejus accitus. Revocato igitur ad bellum animo, Chorasmos et Dahas in deditionem accepit. 5

VII. Deinde, quod primò ex Persico superbix regix more distulerat, ne omnia pariter invidiosiora essent, non salutari, sed adorari se jubet. Acerimus inter recusantes Callisthēnes fuit. Quæ res et illi, et multis principibus Macedōnum exitio fuit: siquidem sub specie insidiarum omnes interfecti. Retentus tamen est a Macedonibus mos salutandi regis, explosā adoratione. Post hæc Indiam petit, ut Oceāno, ultimoque Oriente finiret imperium. Cui gloriæ, ut etiam exercitus ornamenta convenirent, phaleras equorum et arma militum 15

VII. Alexander vents his rage upon his discreet advisers; marches to the east; undertakes to surpass Bacchus and Hercules.

7. quod] Has for its antecedent adorari. H. 445, 7. 'Which point of the Persian fashion of royal pride he had put off?'

8. pariter] 'At the same time,' to be joined with omnia.

invidiosiora] H. 444, 1.

9. adorare] 'That he should be worshipped' after the oriental fashion of making the salām, or prostrating one's self before kings and superiors.

inter recusantes] The relation of the partitive genitive H. 398, 4, 2).

10. Callisthēnes] Alexander's ambition prompted him to take with him on his expedition men of literary talent, in order that his exploits might be commemorated by their genius. Conspicuous among these was Callisthēnes, a man of sedate character, of simple and severe habits. He wrote a history of the expedition, extending to the battle of Arbēla, in which he did full justice to the greatness and success of Alexander. He subsequently fell under the monarch's displeasure for refusing to exalt him into a god, and lost his life in consequence of his refusal.

illi] Two datives. H. 390, I. and II. 1, 1).

11. sub specie] 'Under the pretence.'

13. explosā] 'Discontinued.'

16. phaleras] Bosses of gold, silver, or other metal, cast or chased, with some appropriate device, such, for instance, as the image of a king, worn upon the argento inducit; exercitumque suum, ab argenteis clypeis, Argyraspidas appellavit. Quum ad Nysam urbem venisset, oppidanis non repugnantibus fiduciã religionis Libëri patris, a quo condita urbs erat, parci jussit; lætus non militiam tantum, verum et vestigia se dei secutum. Tunc ad spectaculum sacri montis duxit exercitum, naturalibus bonis, vite, hederãque non aliter vestiti, quàm si manu cultus, colentiumque industriã exornatus esset. Sed exercitus ejus, ubi ad montem accessit, repentino impetu mentis, in sacros dei ululatus instinctus, cum stupore regis, sine noxã discurrit; ut intelligeret, non tam oppidanis se parcendo, quàm exercitui suo consuluisse. Peragratã Indiã quum ad saxum miræ asperitatis et altitudinis, in quod multi populi confugerant, pervenisset, cognoscit, Herculem ab expugnatione ejusdem saxi terrã motu prohibitum. breast of persons of distinction, and by soldiers as a military decoration. Similar ornaments were attached to the headstalls of horses, to a throat-collar, or to a martingale.

2. Argyraspidas] 'Silver shield-bearers.'

6. naturalibus bonis] 'The beauties of nature.'

7. vestiti] Agrees with montis.

8. manu cultus] 'Tilled by art.'

10. mentis] Mens, the reasoning powers; animus, the mind in general.

12. parcendo] 'By showing mercy'; ablative of the gerund. H. 566, I.

17. superare] Depends upon cupidine. The infinitive is used instead of the gerund in -di. This departure from the general rule occurs in the best authors, and especially in the poets.

18. saxo] Ablative in special construction after potitus. H. 419, I.

VIII. Defeat of Porus. Alexander seems to yield to the request of his soldiers to push his conquests no farther.

20. Porus] Was of a stature so gigantic, that seated upon an elephant he seemed of the same proportions to the animal, that an ordinary horseman bears to his horse. His ability, beauty, and valor cornomine, viribus corporis et animi magnitudine pariter insignis, qui bellum jampridem, auditā Alexandri opinione, in adventum ejus parabat. Commisso itaque prælio, exercitum suum Macedōnas invadere jubet; sibi regem eorum privatam hostem deposcit. Nec Alexander 5 pugnæ moram fecit: sed primā congressione vulnerato equo, quum præceps ad terram decidisset, concursu satellitum servatur. Porus multis vulneribus obrutus capitur. Qui victum se adeò doluit, ut, quum veniam ab hoste invenisset, neque cibum sumere voluerit, ne- 10 que vulnera curari passus sit, ægreque sit ab eo obtentum, ut vellet vivere. Quem Alexander ob honorem virtutis incolumem in regnum remisit. Duas ibi urbes condidit, unam Nicæam, alteram ex nomine equi Bucephälē vocavit. Quum ad Cuphītes venisset, ubi eum 15 cum ducentis millibus equitum hostes opperiebantur, exercitus omnis, non minus victoriarum numero quàm laboribus fessus, lacrimis eum deprecatur, "finem tandem belli faceret, aliquando patriæ reditusque meminis-responded to his stature. Having been captured and brought before Alexander, he was asked how he would like to be treated. "Like a king," was his answer. The conqueror, pleased with his undaunted bearing, not only released him, but enlarged his dominions. In return for this generosity, Porus became a faithful and efficient ally.

1. nomine, viribus, magnitudine] Ablatives of specification. H. 429.

2. Alexandri opinione] Alexandri is the objective genitive. 'The opinion entertained of Alexander.'

4. Macedōnas] Greek accusative plural. H. 98.

11. molitionibus] ‘Vastness.’

14. in eadem] ‘To their quarters,’ i. e., to the same places from which they had come.

IX. The war is renewed. In the city of the Sugambri Alexander fights for his life; though wounded, he maintains the contest till rescued by his soldiers.

15. Acesinem] Acesines, the chief of the five great tributaries of the Indus, which gave the name Punjab (i. e., Five Waters) to the great plain of North-west India. Its Sanscrit name, if Hellenized, would have made a word so much like ‘Alexander-eater’

Quam desertam a defensoribus, quum de muro, quem primus ceperat, animadvertisset, in urbis planitiem sine ullo satellite desiluit. Itaque quum eum hostes solum conspexissent, clamore edito, undique concurrunt, si possint in uno capite orbis bella finire, et ultionem tot gentibus dare. Nec minus Alexander constanter restitit, et unus adversus tot millia præliatur. Incredibile dictu est, ut eum non multitudo hostium, non vis magna telorum, non tantus lacescentium clamor terruerit; solus tot millia ceciderit ac fugaverit. Ubi vero obrui multitudine se vidit, trunco se, qui propter murum stabat, applicuit: cujus auxilio tutus, quum diu agmen sustinuisset, tandem cognito periculo ejus, amici ad eum desiliunt; ex quibus multi cæsi; præliumque tamdiu anceps fuit, quoad omnis exercitus, muris dejectis, in auxilium veniret. In eo prælio sagittâ sub mammâ trajectus, quum sanguinis fluxu deficeret, genu posito tam diu præliatus est, donec eum, a quo vulneratus fuerat, occideret. Curatio vulneris gravior ipso vulnere fuit.

X. Itaque ex magnâ desperatione tandem salutis redditus, Polyperchonta cum exercitu Babyloniam mit-that the Macedonians changed it to avoid the evil omen, the more so, perhaps, on account of the disaster which befell the Macedonian fleet at the turbulent junction of the river with the Hydaspes. Smith's Dict.

Hæc igitur ex causâ Babyloniam festinanti, veluti conventum terrarum orbis acturo, quidam ex Magis prædixit, "ne urbem introiret," testatus "hunc locum ei fatalem fore." Ob hoc omissâ Babyloniam, in Borsippam urbem trans Euphrâten, desertam olim, concessit. Ibi ab Anaxarcho philosopho compulsus est rursus Magorum prædicta contemnere, ut falsa et incerta; et, si fatis constant, ignota mortalibus: at, si naturæ debeantur, immutabilia. Reversus igitur Babyloniam, multis diebus otio datis, intermissum olim convivium sollemniter instituit: totusque in lætitiâ effusus, quum diei noctem pervigilem junxisset, recedentem jam e convivio Medius Thessalus, instauratâ comissatione, et ipsum et sodales ejus invitat. Accepto poculo, mediâ portione repente veluti telo confixus ingemuit: elatusque e convivio semianimis, tanto dolore cruciatus est, ut ferrum in remedia posceret, tactumque hominum velut vulnera indolesceret. Amici causas morbi, intemperiem ebrietatis disseminaverunt: re autem verâ insidiæ fuerunt, quarum infamiam successorum potentia oppressit.

1. ex Italiã] Notice the change of construction from the genitive to the ablative. Historians differ on the question whether or not the Romans sent an embassy.

2. Babyloniæ] The genitive of place. H. 421, II.

6. Magis] The Magi were the ministers of religion among the Persians, and held in great esteem.

10. compulsus est] 'Was constrained.'

15. diei] Dative case; 'had joined to the day a night without sleep,' i. e., had feasted all night.

17. comissatione] Comissatio was a reveling, feasting, or drinking bout, commencing after the cena, and often protracted to a late hour of the night.

21. tactumque hominum indolesceret] 'And felt pain at the touch of his attendants.'

22. intemperiem] The best authenticated accounts establish the fact that Alexander's death was caused by excess, and not by poison.

XIV. Auctor insidiarum Antipāter fuit, qui quum carissimos amicos ejus interfectos videret; Alexandrum Lyncistam, generum suum occisum; se magnis rebus in Græciā gestis, non tam gratum apud regem, quàm invidiosum esse; a matre quoque ejus Olympiāde variis se criminationibus vexatum. Huc accedebant ante paucos dies supplicia in præfectos devictarum nationum crudeliter habita. Ex quibus rebus se quoque a Macedoniā non ad societatem militiæ, sed ad pœnam evocatum arbitratur. 1. qui] An anacoluthon, the sentence being incomplete. H. 704, III. 4.

10. ad occupandum regem] 'To get the start of the king.'

12. Iollā] Iollas is represented as being the one who offered the fatal draught to the king; but Plutarch states that the story was never heard of till after Iollas's death, and six years after that of Alexander.

ministrare regi] 'To attend the king at table.'

13. testā] 'Earthen vessel.'

14. nec aliter ferri — potuerit] 'And could not be carried in any other way.'

aliter nisi — alii quam] Alius, aliter may stand with quam if the proposition in which they occur is negative, or interrogative with a negative sense, and sometimes under other circumstances in the later writers. Instead of nihil aliud quam we often find nihil aliud nisi. Madvig.

16. apud Thessālum] 'At the house of the Thessalian.'

17. prægustare] It was a custom with the Persians (and Alexander was served after the Persian manner) that the cup-bearer should first drink of the cup which he offered to the king. In this way the princes were able to avoid the danger of being poisoned.

18. temperare] 'Mix.' The ancients seldom drank the wine pure.

Quum lacrimarent omnes, ipse non sine lacrimis tantum, verum etiam sine ullo tristoris mentis argumento fuit, ut quosdam impatientius dolentes consolatus sit: quibusdam mandata ad parentes eorum dederit: adeo, sicuti in hostem, ita et 15 in mortem invictus animus fuit. Dimissis militibus, amicos circumstantes percontatur, "videanturne similem sibi reperturi regem?" Tacentibus cunctis, tum ipse, "ut hoc nesciat, ita illud scire vaticinarique se, ac pene oculis videre" dixit, "quantum sit in hoc 20 certamine sanguinis fusura Macedonia; quantis cædibus, quo cruore, mortuo sibi parentatura." 5. plerosque] It is chiefly in later writers that plerique is found followed by the partitive genitive.

6. defunctos] A euphemism. Defungi, literally to have done with a thing; with vita expressed and without it, to die.

12. argumento] 'Evidence,' 'token.'

16. percontatur] Quærere, to ask, if one desires more accurate information on the spot; rogare, if one addresses his question to the good will of the person interrogated; percontari, if a person desires information respecting something not known.

17. tacentibus] Silere, to be still, not to talk; tacere, to keep silence when one might or ought to speak.

18. nesciat] Subjunctive of concession. H. 515, I.

19. oculis videre] Pleonasm. H. 704, II.

mum, corpus suum in Hammōnis templo condi jubet. Quum deficere eum amici viderent, quærunt, "quém imperii faciat heredem?" Respondit, "dignissimum." Tanta illi magnitudo animi fuit, ut, quum Herculem filium, quum fratrem Aridæum, quum Roxānen uxorem 5 prægnantem relinqueret; oblitus necessitudinum, dignissimum nuncuparet heredem: prorsus quasi nefas esset, viro forti alium, quàm virum fortem, succedere; aut tanti regni opes aliis, quàm probatis, relinqui. Hæc voce veluti bellicum inter amicos cecinisset, aut malum 10 discordiæ misisset, ita omnes in æmulationem consurgunt, et ambitione vulgi tacitum favorem militum quærunt. 7. prorsus quasi] 'Just as if.'

10. malum discordiæ] See Paris in Class. Dict.

12. ambitione vulgi] 'By paying court to the common soldiers.'

tacitum] 'Exciting no remark.'

13. præclusā voce] 'Having lost his voice.'

16. electus esse] When the subject of the leading verb and of the infinitive are the same, the participle of the compound form of the infinitive takes the case of the subject of the leading verb.

XVI. His eulogy.

17. Decessit] A euphemism. Decedere, literally, to depart; decedere de vita or decedere vita, to die.

tres et triginta] In expressing the numerals from twenty to a hundred, the smaller with et is put first, or the larger without et.

annos] With natus, the number of years (the measure of the age) is put in the accusative.

21. perpetes] 'Continually.' H. 443.

3. Olympici] The Olympic games were celebrated in honor of Zeus Olympius at Olympia, a plain in Elis, every fifth year, the interval of four years between each celebration of the festival being called an Olympiad. The dating by Olympiads extended from 776 B. C. to 440 A. D. In addition to the athletic games, horse and chariot races, there were contests in which musicians, poets, and artists strove for the victory.

5. acerrimus] ‘Very zealous.’

7. philosophorum] Depends upon inclito, in the relation of the partitive genitive, ‘a renowned one of the philosophers,’ ‘a renowned philosopher.’ See Zumpt, § 430, n. 1.

11. nec inermes] Nec qualifies timuerint, ‘not even when unarmed.’

14. calcaverit] ‘Subdue.’

15. fraude civili] ‘The treachery of his subjects.’

LIFE OF CORNELIUS NEPOS.

THE little that has been written on the origin and life of Cornelius Nepos is based mainly on inferences and conjectures. As the elder Pliny calls him accola Padi, and Ausonius makes Gaul the country of his nativity, it has been conceded that he was born somewhere in Cisalpine Gaul, perhaps, as is often stated, at Hostilia, but, according to Mommsen, more probably at Ticinum, now Pavia. The date of his birth cannot be exactly determined, but his intimacy with Atticus—who was born B. C. 109 and died B. C. 33, and whom Nepos survived at least four years—may justify the assumption that he lived during the first three quarters of the century preceding our era. In early life he took up his residence at Rome, where, in social and literary intercourse with such friends as the orator Cicero, the poet Catullus, and the polished and amiable Atticus, he pursued a long career of literary activity, undisturbed by the ambitions and strifes which at that time distracted the Roman world. He belonged to the equestrian order, and sympathized with the Optimates, or the party of the aristocracy, to which his distinguished friends also belonged. His moral superiority is seen in his hearty admiration of noble qualities and virtuous deeds, and in his generous appreciation of foreign characters, especially of Rome's greatest enemy. But intellectually he did not rank so high: he seems to have possessed but little of the judicial faculty, and is sometimes obnoxious to the charge of credulity, if not of carelessness, in the use of his authorities. The biographies of his Greek and Barbarian heroes are to be viewed, therefore, as inartificial sketches, written from a moral point of view for that portion of the Roman public which was supposed to be unacquainted with the Greek authors. His subjects are, for the most part, attractive and interesting; and his style, notwithstanding occasional inaccuracies, Græcisms, and peculiarities, is generally simple, perspicuous, and classical, and approaches more nearly than that of Cicero and Cæsar to the language of conversation and daily life. Nepos wrote also on history, geography, and morals; but only a part of a work, de viris illustribus, is extant. This was divided into at least sixteen books, one of which, de excellentibus ducibus exterarum gentium, we possess complete; while from another, de Latinis historicis, only the lives of Cato and Atticus remain. For many centuries, the book de excellentibus ducibus exterarum gentium, was ascribed to Æmilius Probus; but the comparative purity of the style of the work, and a comparison with the lives of Cato and Atticus, known as the productions of Nepos, led Lambinus, in 1569, to dispute the claims of Probus; and, this judgment having been confirmed, Cornelius Nepos has become a familiar name in the classical schools of the civilized world.

CORNELII NEPOTIS

EXCELLENTIUM IMPERATORUM VITÆ.

MILTIADES.

I. MILTIADES, Cimōnis filius, Atheniensis, quum et antiquitate generis, et gloriā majorum, et suā modestiā unus omnium maxime floreret, eāque esset ætate, ut non jam solum de eo bene sperare, sed etiam confidere

I. Miltiades conducts a colony to the Thracian Chersonese; is mocked by the Lemnians, B. C. 515.

1. Cimōnis] The celebrated Cimon, whose life has been sketched by Nepos, was not the father, but the son, of Miltiades.

Atheniensis] Origin or nationality is usually expressed in Latin by derivatives from the names of places or countries. H. 326 and 3.

et — et — et] The first et is correlative to the third; the second connects the two terms denoting the inherited distinctions, which are to be considered conjointly.

2. antiquitate generis] According to Herodotus, Miltiades could trace his lineage to Ææcus, who lived about B. C. 1270.

gloriā majorum] Ææcus was a son of Zeus, and one of the judges in Hades. Ajax son of Telämon, one of the Homeric heroes, and Codrus, the last king of Athens, were numbered among the ancestors of Miltiades.

modestiā] 'Good conduct,' as regulated by the bounds (modus) of discretion.

3. unus — floreret] 'Was most conspicuous of all,' sc. Atheniensium or hominum; the addition of unus or unus omnium brings out more strongly the exclusive signification of the superlative. Omnium is the partitive genitive.

 bus armis erat dimicandum. His consulentibus nomi-natim Pythia præcepit, ut Miltiādem imperatorem sibi 10 sumerent: id si fecissent, incepta prospera futura. Hoc futurum] Sc. esse, which Nepos always omits with the future infinitive active. H. 545, 3.

1. sui] Ejus would be more natural, but the reflexive is used with especial emphasis, as his own fellow-citizens could best judge him.

qualem — judicarunt] ‘As they judged him on acquaintance.’

2. accidit] The subject is ut vel- lent, etc. H. 495, 2.

Chersonēsum] The word signifies land-island, i. e., peninsula. Several Greek names of maritime countries ending in us are construed like names of towns. H. 379, 4.

3. Cujus generis] ‘Of this class.’

5. Delphos] This was a small but noted town in Phocis, on the south-western slope of Mount Parnassus, and was the seat of the most celebrated oracle of antiquity.

deliberatum] ‘To ask advice;’ it denotes the purpose, but this construction, though quite classical, is not very common. H. 569, 4.

qui — Apollīnem] Is explanatory, showing how the purpose was to be effected. Apollo is consulted as the god of prophecy, revealing the will of Zeus in oracles through the Pythia.

6. duce] ‘As leader,’ an appositive of condition or quality.

7. cum quibus] Nepos always places cum before the relative; the best authors usually append it when not emphatic.

8. nominatim] ‘Expressly;’ for the responses were usually vague and ambiguous. For the derivation, see H. 334, 2.

9. Pythia] The Pythia, or priestess of the Pythian Apollo, was, in early times, a young girl; afterwards, no woman under fifty years of age could be elected a prophetess. Seated on a tripod, over a chasm in the earth, whence rose an intoxicating smoke, she fell into a state of delirium, and uttered the sounds which were believed to be the revelations of the god. In the most flourishing period of this oracle, there were three Pythias. The name is derived from Pytho, the older name of Delphi and its environs.

10. fecissent] The pluperfect subjunctive for the future perfect in direct discourse. H. 533, 4.

futura] Depends on a verbum

oraculi responso Miltiādes cum delectā manu classe Chersonēsum profectus quum accessisset Lemnum, et incolas ejus insulæ sub potestatem redigere vellet Atheniensium, idque Lemnii suā sponte facerent, postulasset: illi irridentes responderunt, tum id se facturos, quum ille, domo navibus proficiscens, vento aquilone venisset Lemnum. Hic enim ventus, ab septentrionibus oriens, adversum tenet Athēnis proficiscentibus. Miltiādes, morandi tempus non habens, cursum direxit, quo tendebat, pervenitque Chersonēsum. 5 10

II. Ibi brevi tempore barbarorum copiis disjectis, totā regione, quam petierat, potitus, loca castellis idonea communiit, multitudinem, quam secum duxerat, in agris collocavit, crebrisque excursionibus locupletavit. declarandi 'implied in præcepit. Translate; 'if they did that (she said) their undertakings would be successful.'

1. responso] 'In accordance with this response.' Ablative of cause. H. 414, 2.

2. profectus quum] In rendering, begin the period with quum, and translate the participle as if it were profectus esset, supplying a conjunction. H. 579.

4. suā sponte] Is opposed to compulsion; ultra, to the suggestion or influence of another.

facerent] Follows postulasset, ut being omitted, as the construction is free from ambiguity. H. 493, 2, and 558, VI.

6. domo] Ablative of place from which. H. 424, 2.

navibus] Translate with proficiscens, as one word; 'sailing.'

aquilone] Appositive to vento.

the specific to the generic, but the specific generally precedes the generic. Observe that vento aquilone belongs to venisset, and that this wind would be favorable as far as Cape Sunium.

7. enim] Like autem, quidem, etc., follows one or more words. H. 602, III.

8. adversum tenet] Sc. cursum, 'blows against.'

9. morandi — habens] 'As he had no time to lose.'

II. Miltiades, having conquered the Chersonese, returns to Lemnos and reduces that island and the Cyclades.

12. regione] Ablative after potitus. H. 419, I.

castellis] Ablative of means.

16. devicisset] 'Had completely subdued.' For the force of de, cf. debellare, decertare.

1. res constituit] 'Settled affairs.'

2. Erat—regiā] 'For he held the rank of a king among them: 'esse, with the genitive or ablative of character or quality, is often to be translated rather freely by 'have,' 'enjoy,' 'hold,' 'show,' etc.

3. carebat] The subjunctive would have been more in harmony with classical usage. H. 516, II. 3.

nomine] i. e., regis; for the ablative with verbs and adjectives of plenty and want, cf. H. 419, III.

neque—magis] In such expressions, non minus is followed by the more important, non magis by the less emphatic, of the two contrasted terms.

neque—consecutus] 'Having attained it not more by,' etc.

4. eo] Ablative singular neuter; 'on that account.'

5. a quibus] Here the preposition denotes not so much a local as a causal relation; 'at whose order,' 'under whose direction.'

8. Chersonēso—constitutā] i. e., rebus Chersonēsi constitutis.

9. revertitur] The historical present is employed to give greater liveliness to the narrative.

10. urbem] Probably the city of Myrīna, representing the whole island.

tradant] Sc. Lemnii, implied in Lemnum.

vento boreā] The same as vento aquilone, on p. 107, l. 6.

11. sese dedituros] The omission of the subject of the future infinitive active, when it is a personal or reflexive pronoun which corresponds to the subject of the leading verb, is very frequent in the historians, in which case esse is generally omitted, always in Nepos. Cf. ch. I. l. 4.

12. se—habere] Is the language of Miltiades; supply dixit.

Chersonēsi] Genitive of place. H. 424, 3, 2).

13. res ceciderat] 'The event had fallen out; 'a figure derived from dice-playing.'

1. dicto] Sc. adversariorum; many understand it dicto suo.

2. atque] This particle, like et and -que, is often best rendered by 'but,' when it connects an affirmative to a negative sentence, thus forming an antithesis.

3. ceteras insulas] i. e., of the Ægeān; but there are other islands in this sea besides Lemnos and the Cyclādes.

According to older and more trustworthy writers, it was not Miltiādes son of Cimon, but his uncle, Miltiādes son of Cypsēlus, who colonized the Chersonese. Miltiādes son of Cimon afterwards succeeded his elder brother Stesagōras as "tyrant of the Chersonese," and captured Lemnos.

III. Miltiades, while guarding Dariūs's bridge over the Hister, suggests a plan for the liberation of Græce, but its execution is prevented by Histieūs. B. C. 513.

5. Eisdem temporibus] i. e., when Miltiādes was in the Chersonese.

Dariūs] Son of Hystaspes, reigned from B. C. 521 to B. C. 485.

6. trajecto] Translate by the infinitive, supplying the conjunction: H. 579.

7. Histro] With the Romans, the lower Danube; the Greeks called the whole river Hister.

quā — traduceret] 'In order to take over his troops there;' quā is equivalent to ut eā. H. 500.

8. abesset] The subjunctive shows that the thought is Dariūs's. According to Herodōtus, he expected to return within sixty days.

10. quibus — imperia] 'And to whom severally he had given permanent sovereignty over their cities;' suarum refers to quibus. H. 449, II. 2.

11. facillime] Modifies retenturum.

Græcā — loquentes] Is equivalent to Græce loquentes, and a circumlocution for Græcos; with qui — incolerent, it may be trans-

 15 nerent expedire et multitudini, quod Darii regno ipso-lated 'the Greek-speaking inhabitants of Asia.'

1. se oppresso] Translate by a conditional clause; so ponte rescisso and quo exstincto below. H. 578, III.

relinqueretur] Expresses the conclusion to the condition involved in se oppresso; but the subjunctive is that of a subordinate clause in indirect discourse. H. 531.

2. In hoc—crederetur] 'Then Miltiades was among the number of those to whom that charge was intrusted; hoc—cui means 'so constituted that to it,' and the subjunctive is therefore one of result. H. 500. Tum implies that afterwards the relations of Miltiades to the king were different. Cui refers to numero.

3. Hic] 'At this juncture.' Cf. Phædrus, 2, 4.

afferrent] 'Brought the news.'

4. gerere—premiq̄ue] Follows

afferrent as an object clause. H. 550.

5. a fortunā] Fortune is here viewed as a real agent. H. 388, 2.

7. transportaverat] The indicative shows that the clause does not strictly belong to the indirect discourse, but is an explanatory remark of the author. H. 476 and 531, 4.

9. Græci] An appositive of qui.
genere] Ablative of specification. H. 429.

Persarum] Subjective genitive. H. 396, I.

12. Ad hoc—accederent] 'When a great many were falling in with this proposal.'

13. Milesius] 'Of Milētus.' See Atheniensis, ch. I. line 1. Milētus was the capital of Ionia.

ne—obstitit] 'Prevented the execution of the project.'

14. summas imperiū] 'Chief places of authority.'

15. regno] Ablative as means

Hujus quum sententiam plurimi essent secuti, Miltiades, non dubitans tam multis consciis ad regis aures consilia sua perventura, Chersonesum reliquit ac rursus Athēnas demigravit. Cujus ratio etsi non valuit, tamen magno-pere est laudanda, quum amicioꝝ omnium libertati quàm suæ fuerit dominationi.

IV. Darius autem quum ex Eurōpā in Asiam redisset, hortantibus amicis, ut Græciam redigeret in suam potestatem, classem quingentarum navium comparavit, eique Datim præfecit et Artaphernem, hisque ducenta peditum, decem milia equitum dedit: causam interseor instrument of support. H. 419, II. and 1.

1. quo] i. e., Dario. Translate 'for if he were destroyed.'

2. ade] — abhorrere] 'He was so completely averse to.'

3. putet] The transition from the imperfect to the present implies that the leading verb, (obstitit) understood, is thought of as if it were the historical present; and the result is thus viewed in its relation to the present rather than to the past. H. 482, 2.

5. plurimi] Antithetic to plerique; 'most,' or 'a majority;' plurimi says more than plerique, plerique more than complures.

non dubitans] 'Feeling assured.' Non dubito, 'I doubt not,' is followed uniformly in Nepos by the accusative with the infinitive, whereas Cicero and Cæsar always use quin with the subjunctive. H. 498, 3 and 2).

6. tam — consciis] 'Since so many were privy thereto.' H. 430 and 431, 2.

8. demigravit] He did not return to Athens till B. C. 493, when Mardonius began to threaten Greece.

9. amicioꝝ] i. e., Miltiades.

IV. On the invasion of the Persians, Miltiades insists on meeting them in the open field. B. C. 490.

11. autem] Is here, as often, a particle of transition, used to prevent abruptness, which was particularly distasteful to the Latin authors.

12. hortantibus amicis] 'At the exhortation of his friends.' H. 431, 2.

redigeret] Subjunctive of purpose following comparavit. H. 489.

14. ducenta] Supply milia.

15. interserens] The usual word is interponens.

rens, se hostem esse Atheniensibus, quòd eorum auxilio Iōnes Sardis expugnassent, suaque præsidia interfecissent. Illi præfecti regii, classe ad Eubœam appulsâ, celeriter Eretriam ceperunt, omnisque ejus gentis cives
 5 abreptos in Asiam ad regem miserunt. Inde ad Atticam accesserunt, ac suas copias in campum Marathōna deduxerunt. Is est ab oppido circiter milia passuum decem. Hoc tumultu Athenienses tam propinquo tamque magno permoti auxilium nusquam, nisi a Lace-
 10 dæmoniis, petiverunt, Phidippumque, cursorem ejus generis, qui hemerodrōmæ vocantur, Lacedæmōnem miserunt, ut nuntiaret, quam celeri opus esset auxilio. Domi autem creant decem prætores, qui exercitui præessent, in eis Miltiādem. Inter quos magna fuit con-
 15 tentio, utrum mœnibus se defenderent, an obviam irent hostibus, acieque decernerent. Unus Miltiādes maxime nitebatur, ut primo quoque tempore castra fierent. Id

1. hostem] Is used adjectively for inimicus, to represent his enmity to the Athenians as based on national, and not merely on personal, grounds.

2. Sardis] This antiquated ending of the accusative plural of words that have ium in the genitive plural was quite common till the time of Cicero.

4. ejus gentis] 'Of this community.'

6. Marathōna] Greek accusative in apposition to campum. H. 93. Marathon is twenty-two English miles north-east from Athens.

7. oppido] Athens.

milia passuum] For the Roman mile, see Justin I. c. 15, l. 17.

11. qui] Agrees with the predicate noun. H. 445, 4.

hemerodrōmæ] Is a Greek word transcribed; 'day-couriers.'

12. auxilio] Ablative after opus esset. H. 419, V.

13. prætores] 'Leaders;' the original meaning. In the classical period, the prætors were judicial officers.

præessent] The imperfect subjunctive often follows the historical present. H. 481, IV.

15. utrum] From its derivation, implies a choice or alternative, and is often used, as here, with an, in double questions. For other interrogative particles, see H. 346, II. 1 and 2.

16. hostibus] Dative after obviam. H. 392, II. 2.

17. nitebatur] 'Insisted;' the imperfect here denotes continued or persistent action. H. 469, II.

primo — tempore] 'At the very first opportunity;' quòque is here the ablative of quisque.

si factum esset, et civibus animum accessurum, quum viderent, de eorum virtute non desperari, et hostes eādem re fore tardiores, si animadverterent, auderi adversus se tam exiguis copiis dimicari.

V. Hoc in tempore nulla civitas Atheniensibus auxilio fuit præter Platæenses. Ea mille misit militum. Itaque horum adventu decem milia armatorum completa sunt: quæ manus mirabili flagrabat pugnandi cupiditate. Quo factum est, ut plus, quàm collegæ, Miltiades valeret. Ejus auctoritate impulsus Athenienses copias ex urbe eduxerunt, locoque idoneo castra fecerunt. Deinde postero die sub montis radicibus, acie regione instructā non apertissimā prælium commiserunt (namque arbores multis locis erant raræ), hoc consilio, ut et montium altitudine tegerentur, et arborum tractu equitatus hostium impediretur, ne multitudine clauderentur. Datis, etsi non æquum locum videbat suis, tamen, fretus numero copiarum suarum,

1. et — accessurum] ‘Not only would courage be added to the citizens.’

2. eorum] Is used for sua, because Miltiades speaks from his own point of view; but se is found in the last clause of the period.

non desperari] ‘That there was no loss of confidence;’ an impersonal construction, like that of auderi below. H. 301, 3.

et hostes — tardiores] ‘But also the enemy, for the same reason, would be less bold.’

3. auderi] ‘That there was courage.’

V. Battle of Marathon, September 29, B. C. 490.

5. tempore] ‘Crisis,’ ‘emergency,’ not merely an ablative of time. H. 426, 2, 1).

6. Ea] i. e., civitas Platæensium, implied in Platæenses.

mille] As a noun, is used in the singular, only in the nominative and accusative. H. 178.

8. pugnandi] Gerunds are construed like nouns in like circumstances. H. 560.

9. Quo factum est] ‘Of this the result was.’

ut — valeret] Is subject of factum est. H. 495, 2.

11. loco] For the omission of in, see H. 422, 1, 1).

13. regione] Seldom local without in. Construe acie instructā (in) regione non apertissimā.

14. namque] Introduces an explanation of non apertissimā.

raræ] ‘Here and there.’

18. numero] Ablative after fretus. H. 419, IV.

confligere cupiebat: eoque magis, quòd, priusquam Lacedæmonii subsidio venirent, dimicare utile arbitrabatur. Itaque in aciem peditum centum, equitum decem milia produxit, præliumque commisit. In quo
 5 tanto plus virtute valuerunt Athenienses, ut decemlicem numerum hostium profligarint; adeoque perterruerunt, ut Persæ non castra, sed naves petierint. Quā pugnā nihil adhuc exstitit nobilius; nulla enim unquam tam exigua manus tantas opes prostravit.

10 VI. Cujus victoriæ non alienum videtur quale præmium Miltiadi sit tributum docere, quo facilius intelligi possit, eandem omnium civitatum esse naturam. Ut enim populi Romani honores quondam fuerunt rari et tenues, ob eamque causam gloriosi; nunc autem effusi
 15 atque obsoleti: sic olim apud Athenienses fuisse reperi-

2. venirent] Subjunctive of time, with the accessory notion of purpose or design. H. 523, II.

5. plus — valuerunt] i. e., quam Persæ.

6. profligarint] The use of the perfect subjunctive for the imperfect in clauses denoting result, though exceptional, is a favorite construction with Nepos, and represents the action or state, not in its temporal relation to the leading clause, but simply as completed or past. So also petierint, below.

8. adhuc] Is equivalent to ad hoc tempus — i. e., till the time of Nepos.

VI. The reward of Miltiades.

10. Cujus victoriæ, etc.] 'It seems not irrelevant to state what sort of a reward for this victory,' etc.; victoriæ is the objective genitive after præmium. H. 396, II.

11. quo] A final conjunction, preferred to ut when a comparative follows. It retains here something of its ablative character.

12. possit] Has for its subject the following clause. H. 549.

eandem] Emphatic. H. 594, I.

Ut] Correlative to sic, line 15, below.

13. populi] The subjective genitive. H. 396, I.

rari et tenues] 'Infrequent and inexpensive.'

14. nunc] Antithetic to quondam. Supply sunt. H. 460, 3.

effusi atque obsoleti] 'Profuse and worthless;'; effusi is opposed to rari et tenues; obsoleti, to gloriosi.

15. fuisse] The subject, being indefinite, is omitted. H. 545, 2, 2).

reperimus] Present; the perfect would be reperimus.

mus. Namque huic Miltiādi, quia Athēnas totamque Græciam liberarat, talis honos tributus est in porticu, quæ Pæcile vocatur, quum pugna depingeretur Marathoniam, ut in decem prætorum numero prima ejus imago poneretur, isque hortaretur milites, præliumque committeret. Idem ille populus, posteaquam majus imperium est nactus, et largitione magistratum corruptus est, trecentas statuas Demetrio Phalereo decrevit.

VII. Post hoc prælium classem septuaginta navium Athenienses eidem Miltiādi dederunt, ut insulas, quæ

1. Namque] Is equivalent to an emphatic nam, and is mainly causal or explanatory, but likewise implies a close connection with the preceding sentence; nam introduces a conclusive reason, enim a confirming circumstance.

huic] i. e., to the person under consideration. H. 450. Construe: talis honos tributus est ut quum pugna Marathoniam depingeretur in porticu quæ vocatur Pæcile, etc.

3. Pæcile] Is a Greek adjective, meaning 'pictured,' 'decorated.' A porticus was a walk covered with a roof, which was supported by columns, at least on one side. Such public walks were sometimes built in the most magnificent style, and adorned with pictures and statues by the most celebrated artists. Polygnōtus is said to have painted the fresco representing the battle of Marathon.

depingeretur] The subjunctive is regularly used after quum, when the relation of cause is implied, even if it be only one of several concurring causes.

5. isque] 'And that he.'

7. largitione] Reference is had to the custom of distributing to the people money from the public treasury. This practice eventually led to all sorts of abuses, and to wide-spread corruption.

7. est] Is repeated because its participle is passive, while nactus is active in meaning.

8. trecentas] So stated from a love of round numbers; there were really 360.

Demetrio] A native of Phalērum, a borough of Attica. He governed Athens; under Cassander, from B. C. 317 to B. C. 307, when he was driven from power, and sentenced to death. He, however, withdrew to Egypt, where he died B. C. 283. He was the last of the distinguished orators of Greece.

VII. Miltiades fails to reduce Paros; is condemned to pay a fine, and dies in prison.

9. navium] The genitive of external quality.

10. eidem] 'Likewise.' Idem, when joined to a noun or pronoun, is often to be translated 'also,' 'likewise,' 'at the same time,' etc. H. 451, 3.

barbaros adjuverant, bello persequeretur. Quo imperio plerasque ad officium redire cœgit, nonnullas vi expugnavit. Ex his Parum insulam, opibus elatam, quum oratione reconciliare non posset, copias e navibus 5 eduxit, urbem operibus clausit omnique comœatu privavit; dein vineis ac testudinibus constitutis, propius muros accessit. Quum jam in eo esset, ut oppido potiretur, procul in continenti lucus, qui ex insulâ conspicebatur, nescio quo casu, nocturno tempore incensus est.
 10 Cujus flamma ut ab oppidanis et oppugnatoribus est visa, utrisque venit in opinionem, signum a classariis regiis datum. Quo factum est, ut et Parii a deditione deterrerentur, et Miltiades, timens, ne classis regia adventaret, incensis operibus, quæ statuerat, cum totidem
 15 navibus, atque erat profectus, Athēnas magnā cum offensione civium suorum rediret. Accusatus ergo est proditi-

1. imperio] The ablative of means.

2. cœgit] Takes the subjunctive with ut oftener than the infinitive.

3. Ex his — quum] Construe: quum ex his, etc.

5. operibus] 'With (military) works.'

6. vineis ac testudinibus] It is thought that Nepos has been guilty of an anachronism in ascribing the use of these engines to Miltiades.

propius] And proxime, like prope, take the accusative. H. 437, 1.

7. Quum — potiretur] 'When he was already on the point of becoming master,' etc.; but est in the expression in eo est, ut is always used impersonally.

oppido] Called urbem in line 5 — i. e., Paros, the island and town having the same name.

8. in continenti] Improbable, as a fire on the main land would hardly be seen at Paros.

9. nescio quo] Is equivalent to aliquo. The expression nescio quis always requires that a verb be supplied to complete the sentence.

11. utrisque — opinionem] 'Both parties conceived the idea;' alicui venit in mentem is the usual expression.

12. regiis] i. e., the Persian king's.

datum] Sc. esse. H. 545, 3.

14. totidem — atque] 'As many as.' Ac and atque are used in the sense of 'as' and 'than' after adjectives and adverbs denoting similarity and dissimilarity, equality and inequality.

15. magnā — offensione] 'To the great displeasure.'

16. proditiōis] The genitive of crime. H. 410, 2.

tionis, quòd, quum Parum expugnare posset, a rege corruptus infectis rebus discessisset. Eo tempore æger erat vulneribus, quæ in oppugnando oppido acceperat. Itaque quoniam ipse pro se dicere non posset, verba fecit frater ejus Stesagōras. Causā cognitā capitis absolutus, pecuniā multatus est, eaque lis quinquaginta talentis æstimata est, quantus in classem sumptus factus erat. Hanc pecuniam quòd solvere in præsentia non poterat, in vincula publica conjectus est ibique diem obiit supremum. 5 10

VIII. Hic etsi crimine Pario est accusatus, tamen alia causa fuit damnationis. Namque Athenienses propter Pisistrāti tyrannidem, quæ paucis annis ante fuerat omnium civium suorum potentiam extimescebant. Miltiādes, multum in imperiis magnisque versa- 15

2. infectis rebus] 'Without having accomplished his object.'

3. in oppugnando oppido] The gerundive does not imply the idea of necessity which is contained in the future passive participle. For gerundives and their use, see H. 562 and 3; for the construction in this case, H. 566, II.

4. ipse pro se] 'For himself in person.'

posset] The subjunctive as the statement of Stesagōras. H. 520, II.

5. capitis] Caput comprehends life, freedom, and citizenship; Nepos generally uses it with reference to the first.

6. pecuniā] 'But was fined in a sum of money;' the omission of the conjunction intensifies the antithesis.

multatus est] Est belongs also to absolutus.

talentis] The ablative of price. H. 416.

7. quantus — sumptus] 'For so great an outlay.'

8. præsentia] Is the ablative singular — i. e., 'just then,' 'at the moment.'

9. diem — supremum] A euphemism for 'died.'

VIII. The real cause of the condemnation of Miltiades.

11. crimine Pario] 'On a charge relating to Paros;' the ablative of means.

13. Pisistrāti tyrannidem] The rule of Pisistrātus lasted, with interruptions, from B. C. 560 to B. C. 527, and was continued under the Pisistratidæ till the ejection of Hippias, in the year B. C. 510.

14. potentiam] A capacity, which can be exerted at will, of producing an effect; potestas, legal authority, delegated power.

15. multum — versatus] 'As he had been much engaged in mili-tus, non videbatur posse esse privatus, præsertim quum consuetudine ad imperii cupiditatem trahi videretur. Nam in Chersonēso omnes illos, quos habitarat, annos perpetuam obtinuerat dominationem, tyrannusque fu-5 erat appellatus, sed justus. Non erat enim vi consecutus, sed suorum voluntate, eamque potestatem bonitate retinebat. Omnes autem et dicuntur et habentur tyranni, qui potestate sunt perpetuā in eā civitate, quæ libertate usa est. Sed in Miltiāde erat quum summa 10 humanitas, tum mira communitas, ut nemo tam humilis esset, cui non ad eum aditus pateret, magna auctoritas apud omnes civitates, nobile nomen, laus rei militaris maxima. Hæc populus respiciens maluit illum innoxium plecti, quàm se diutius esse in timore.

tary offices, and that, too, in important ones.'

1. esse privatus] 'Remain a private individual.'

3. habitarat] Sc. ibi — i. e., in the Chersonese.

8. sunt] 'Hold,' 'exercise.' Cf. ch. II. page 108, line 2.

11. cui — pateret] 'As not to have free access to him.' H. 500.

Observe, in the last part of this period, the absence of connectives (asyndeton), and compare ch. I. l. 1. The rule is, omit all, or express all, if each notion is to be made prominent.

13. maluit — timore] 'Preferred rather that he should be punished, though guiltless, than that they should live longer in fear.'

THEMISTOCLES.

I. THEMISTOCLES, Neōcli filius, Atheniensis. Hujus vitia ineuntis adolescentiæ magnis sunt emendata virtutibus, adeò ut anteferatur huic nemo, pauci pares putentur. Sed ab initio est ordiendus. Pater ejus Neōcles generosus fuit. Is uxorem Halicarnasiam civem duxit, ex quā natus est Themistocles. Qui quum minus esset probatus parentibus, quòd et liberius vivebat et rem familiarem negligebat, a patre exheredatus est. Quæ contumelia non fregit eum, sed erexit. Nam quum judicasset sine summā industriā non posse eam exstingui, totum se dedit rei publicæ, diligentius amicis famæque serviens.

I. The talents and ambition of Themistocles.

The introduction is a mere superscription; no fuit is to be supplied.

1. Neōcli] Many Greek proper nouns in -es not increasing, form their genitive in -i, for -is, in writers of the golden age. H. 92, 2.

Hujus] Limits vitia, which is also modified by ineuntis adolescentiæ; 'his youthful faults,' 'the shortcomings of his youth.'

3. anteferatur] The present makes the assertion valid to the time of the author.

4. ordiendus] The personal construction, in place of est ordiendum, has here the best authority. See also Alcibiādes, last clause.

generosus] Is equivalent to nobili genere ortus.

5. Halicarnasiam] Is a noun, uxorem being predicate accusative, and civem appositive. Halicarnassus was a celebrated city on the coast of Caria.

ex quā] After nascor, gigni, and oriri, the name of the father is put in the ablative, generally without a or ab; the mother's name also stands in the ablative, more commonly with ex or de.

6. minus—parentibus] 'Did not meet the approval of his parents;' minus is often used for non; probatus is a participial adjective. H. 391.

7. liberius] 'Too freely.' H. 444, 1.

8. Quæ contumelia] 'This disgrace nevertheless.' The connective force of the relative may often be expressed by 'and,' 'now,' 'for,' 'but,' 'however,' etc., according to the context.

10. industriā] 'Activity.'

11. diligentius—serviens] 'Paying more than ordinary attention.'

Multum in judiciis privatis versabatur; sæpe in contionem populi prodibat; nulla res major sine eo gerebatur; celeriter quæ opus erant, reperiebat, facile eadem oratione explicabat. Neque minus in rebus gerendis promptus, quàm excogitandis, erat, quòd et de instantibus, ut ait Thucydides, verissime judicabat, et de futuris callidissime conjiciebat. Quo factum est, ut brevi tempore illustraretur.

II. Primus autem gradus fuit capessendæ reipublicæ bello Coreyræo; ad quod gerendum prætor a populo factus non solùm præsentī bello, sed etiam reliquo tempore ferociorem reddidit civitatem. Nam quum pecunia publica, quæ ex metallis redibat, largitione magistratum quotannis interiret, ille persuasit populo, ut eā pecuniā classis centum navium ædificaretur. Quā celeriter

1. privatis] 'Affecting individual interests.'

in contionem — prodibat] 'Took part in the assembly of the people.'

3. quæ] The antecedent of the relative is often omitted when it is the object of the preceding verb. H. 445, 6.

opus] Here stands as a predicate. H. 419, 3, 2).

5. instantibus] 'The present.'

6. Thucydides] A celebrated Greek historian, born at Athens about B. C. 470. His work, which contains an account of the first twenty-one years of the Peloponnesian war, is one of the masterpieces of antiquity, though unfinished at the author's death, which happened about B. C. 400.

II. Themistocles begins his career as a statesman and general.

9. capessendæ reipublicæ]. 'In managing affairs of state.' For verbs in -esso, see H. 332, 2, 2).

10. Coreyræo] Probably a mistake for Æginetico, as Herodotus and Thucydides mention a war with Ægina, but none against Corcyra.

12. ferociorem] 'More warlike.'

13. metallis] i. e., from the silver mines of Mount Laurium, near Cape Sunium, the yearly product of which was said to be one hundred talents.

redibat] 'Accrued.'

largitione magistratum] Here, as in Miltiades, ch. VI. line. 7, the expression ought to be largitione publica, for the money was distributed according to law, ten drachmas (about $1.85) to each citizen.

14. interiret] 'Perished,' or 'was wasted.'

effectā, primum Corcyræos fregit, deinde maritimos prædones consecrando mare tutum reddidit. In quo quum divitiis ornavit, tum etiam peritissimos belli navalis fecit Athenienses. Id quantæ saluti fuerit universæ Græciæ, bello cognitum est Persico. Nam quum Xerxes et mari et terrā bellum universæ inferret Eurōpæ cum tantis copiis, quantas neque antea, nec postea habuit quisquam: hujus enim classis mille et ducentarum navium longarum fuit, quam duo milia onerariarum sequebantur; terrestres autem exercitus septingenta pedum, equitum quadringenta milia fuerunt: cujus de adventu quum fama in Græciam esset perlata, et maxime Athenienses peti dicerentur propter pugnam Marathoniā, miserunt Delphos consultum, quidnam facerent de rebus suis. Deliberantibus Pythia respondit, ut mœnibus ligneis se munirent. Id responsum quo valeretur, quum intelligeret nemo, Themistocles persuasit, consilium esse Apollinis, ut in naves se suaque confer-

2. tutum] Predicate adjective. H. 373, 3.

In quo] 'Hereby.'

4. Id] i. e., the fact that he made Athens a naval power.

saluti — Græciæ] Two datives. H. 390.

5. bello — Persico] i. e., in the second Persian war, B. C. 480, with particular reference to the battle of Salāmis. Xerxes was the second son of Darius Hystaspis, and succeeded him in the year B. C. 485.

6. et mari et terrā] Is less common than terrā marique.

8. hujus — classis — fuit] 'For his fleet consisted of.'

9. navium longarum] The predicate genitive. H. 403. These were built long and narrow, and were called, from their banks of oars, biremes, triremes, etc., while the naves onerariæ, 'transports,' were broad and capacious.

11. cujus — fama] 'When the report of his approach.'

14. miserunt] Sc. legatos; but the verb may here be considered as used absolutely.

facerent de] 'They should do about;' but de with facere is generally to be translated 'with.'

15. respondit, ut] Instead of the accusative with the infinitive to denote a fact, the subjunctive is used to express a direction.

16. Id — valeretur] 'What this response meant;' literally, 'in what direction it had force.'

17. persuasit] Sc. Atheniensibus. When this verb means to rent: eum enim a deo significari murum ligneum. Tali consilio probato, addunt ad superiores totidem naves triremes, suaque omnia, quæ moveri poterant, partim Salamīna, partim Trœzēna deportant; arcem sacerdotibus paucisque majoribus natu ad sacra procuranda tradunt, reliquum oppidum relinquunt.

III. Hujus consilium plerisque civitatibus displicebat, et in terrā dimicari magis placebat. Itaque missi sunt delecti cum Leonīdā, Lacedæmoniorum rege, qui Thermopŷlas occuparent, longiusque barbaros progredi non paterentur. Hi vim hostium non sustinuerunt, eoque loco omnes interierunt. At classis communis Græciæ trecentarum navium, in quā ducentæ erant Atheniensium, primum apud Artemisium, inter Eubœam continentemque terram, cum classiariis regis conflictit. Angustias enim Themistōcles quærebat, ne multitudine circumiretur. Hic etsi pari prælio discesserant, tamen convince, it takes the accusative with the infinitive, as in this passage; otherwise it is followed by ut with the subjunctive, to denote the purpose of the persuasion.

1. eum — ligneum] ‘For that was the wooden wall meant by the god;’ eum for eas (naves) is made to agree with the following noun, which belongs to the predicate. H. 445, 4.

2. Tali] Is equivalent to hoc, with the notion of shrewdness.

4. arcem] Is emphatic, and, with reliquum oppidum, forms an antithesis. By arcem the Acropŷlis is meant, which was a precipitous rock rising 350 feet from the plain, 1000 feet in length, and 500 in breadth. In after-times it was covered with temples, statues, and other works of art—the Propylæa, Parthēnon, Erechthēum, and the Temple of Minerva Promāchos being the most conspicuous.

5. ad sacra procuranda] ‘To attend to the sacred rites.’

6. reliquum] Is here partitive — ‘the rest of.’ H. 441, 6.

III. Leonidas falls at Thermopŷlæ; the naval action off Artemisium.

11. non paterentur] ‘Hinder,’ ‘prevent.’

12. omnes] i. e., the Spartans and the Thespians; the rest of the allies had been sent away when Leonidas saw that they must be overwhelmed.

classis] Is limited by two genitives. H. 397, 2.

17. pari prælio] ‘After a drawn battle;’ ablative of manner.

discesserant] i. e., Græci, implied in classis Græciæ.

eodem loco non sunt ausi manere; quòd erat periculum, ne, si pars navium adversariorum Eubœam superasset, ancipiti premerentur periculo. Quo factum est, ut ab Artemisio discederent, et exadversum Athēnas apud Salamīna classem suam constituerent.

IV. At Xerxes, Thermopylis expugnatis, protinus accessit astu, idque, nullis defendentibus, interfectis sacerdotibus, quos in arce invenerat, incendio delevit. Cujus flammā perterriti classarii quum manere non auderent, et plurimi hortarentur, ut domos suas discede- 10 rent, mœnibusque se defenderent: Themistocles unus restitit, et universos pares esse posse ajebat, dispersos testabatur perituros, idque Eurybiadi, regi Lacedæmoniorum, qui tum summæ imperiī præerat, fore affirmabat. Quem quum minus, quàm vellet, moveret, noctu 15 de servis suis, quem habuit fidelissimum, ad regem misit, ut ei nuntiaret suis verbis: adversarios ejus in fugā esse: qui si discessissent, majore cum labore et

2. superasset] ‘Doubled.’ The Persians are said to have attempted this, but the part of the fleet detached for that purpose was lost in a storm.

3. ancipiti] ‘Twofold,’ i. e., in front and rear.

IV. The Persians burn Athēns; their defeat at Salamis, September 20, B. C. 480.

7. accessit] Accedere followed by the accusative without a preposition is not used by the best authors.

astu] Is a Greek word Latinized, meaning ‘city,’ used especially of Athens.

nul'is] The plural is rarely used substantively.

9. Cujus] i. e., incendii.

10. domos] ‘To their homes;’ plural, as different localities are meant. This word in both numbers follows the construction of names of towns. H 379, 3, 1).

12. universos] ‘Combined;’ antithetic to dispersos.

pares] i. e., Persis; ‘be a match for.’

ajebat—testabatur—affirmabat] Observe the persistence of the speaker, and the energy of the expressions.

13. regi] He was not king, but commander-in-chief.

15. vellet] Potential subjunctive. H. 485.

moveret] ‘Impressed.’

16. fidelissimum] Belongs logically to the antecedent clause—‘the most faithful slave that he had.’

17. suis verbis] ‘In his words,’ i. e., in those of Themistocles.

- longinquo tempore bellum confecturum, quum singulos consecretari cogere; quos si statim aggredere, brevi universos oppressurum. Hoc eo valebat, ut ingratis ad depugnandum omnes cogere. Hæc re

1. confecturum] The subject of the infinitive is sometimes omitted when it can be readily inferred from the context.

2. quos si, etc.] 'But if he attacked them at once.'

3. Hoc—valebat] 'This had for its aim.'

8. etiam] With the comparative, means 'even,' 'still.' H. 444, 3, 1).

9. Themistocli] See Neocli, ch. I., line 1.

V. Xerxes, duped by Themistocles, returns in haste to Asia.

10. Hic] 'Here,' i. e., at Salamis.

tantas—copiarum] 'Had such forces left.'

11. opprimere posset] 'He might have crushed.'

12. eodem] i. e., Themistocles. gradu depulsus est] 'Was baffled,' 'driven from his vantage-ground;' a term of the gladiatorial school and camp.

13. certiores—agi] 'Informed him that it was in contemplation;' certiores facere, literally 'to make more certain,'—i. e., 'to inform,'—here takes the accusative with the infinitive, like a verbum declarandi.

15. excluderetur] i. e., Xerxes. Such changes of subject are not infrequent.

16. idque—persuasit] 'And he made him believe it.'

17. diebus] Ablative of time within which. H. 426. Minus has no influence on the construction. H. 417, 3.

reversus est] Revertit would have been more in accordance est, seque a Themistöcle non superatum, sed conservatum judicavit. Sic unius viri prudentiâ Græcia liberata est, Europæque succubuit Asia. Hæc altera victoria, quæ cum Marathonio possit comparari tropæo. Nam pari modo apud Salamîna parvo numero navium maxima post hominum memoriam clâssis est devicta. 5

VI. Magnus hoc bello Themistöcles fuit, neque minor in pace. Quum enim Phalerico portu, neque magno neque bono, Athenienses uterentur, hujus consilio triplex Piræi portus constitutus est, isque mœnibus circumdatus, ut ipsam urbem dignitate æquipararet, utilitate superaret. Idem muros Atheniensium restituit præcipuo suo periculo. Namque Lacedæmonii, causam idoneam nacti propter barbarorum excursiones, quâ negarent, oportere extra Peloponnësum ullam urbem habere, ne essent loca munita, quæ hostes possiderent, Athenienses ædificantes prohibere sunt conati. Hoc 15 with classical usage. Cicero always uses the active form of the perfect, but the deponent forms alone of the present tenses are used.

2. liberata est] Substantially true; for Mardonius, who remained with 300,000 barbarians, was defeated at Plataea the following year.

3. succubuit Asia] Is the language of rhetoric. Alexander became the master of Asia B. C. 331.

Hæc altera] 'This is the second;' supply est.

4. possit] Subjunctive of result. H. 501.

tropæo] The sign is put by metonymy for the thing signified — i. e., victory.

6. post — memoriam] 'Mentioned in the history of mankind.'

VI. Themistocles constructs the harbors of the Piræus, and fortifies it and the city, against the wishes of the Lacedæmonians. B. C. 477.

8. neque — bono] 'Which was,' etc. An adjective or a participle is often best translated by a relative clause.

10. triplex] As it consisted of three basins.

13. præcipuo — periculo] 'At his own especial peril.'

14. quâ negarent] 'For saying that no city,' etc.; literally, 'by which they might say that no city,' etc. H. 501, III.

16. habere] Subject of oportere. H. 549, 2. Supply muros.

ne — possiderent] 'That there might be no strongholds for the enemy to occupy.'

17. ædificantes] This present

longe alio spectabat, atque videri volebant. Athenienses enim duabus victoriis, Marathoniā et Salaminiā, tantam gloriam apud omnes gentes erant consecuti, ut intelligerent Lacedæmonii, de principatu sibi cum iis certamen fore. Quare eos quàm infirmissimos esse volebant. Postquam autem audierunt, muros instrui, legatos Athēnas miserunt, qui id fieri vetarent. His præsentibus desierunt, ac se de eā re legatos ad eos missuros dixerunt. Hanc legationem suscepit Themistōcles, et solus primo profectus est; reliqui legati ut tum exirent, quum satis altitudo muri exstructa videretur, præcepit; interim omnes, servi atque liberi, opus facerent, neque ulli loco parcerent, sive sacer, sive privatus esset, sive publicus, et undique, quod idoneum ad muniendum putarent, congererent. Quo factum est, ut Atheniensium muri ex sacellis sepulcrisque constarent.

VII. Themistōcles autem, ut Lacedæmōnem venit, adire ad magistratus noluit, et dedit operam, ut quàm participle implies that the Athenians were already engaged in their work, as otherwise ne or quominus, with the subjunctive, would have been expected after prohibere.

1. atque] ‘Than.’ H. 417, 4.

videri] The subject is hoc understood.

4. principatu] ‘Leadership,’ ‘hegemony.’ This was a political and military preëminence, conceded to that state of Greece which showed the greatest power, valor, and efficiency in war. From the beginning of the Persian invasions till B. C. 477, Sparta took the lead; then Athens until B. C. 404, when Sparta regained her position: but Thebes overcame Sparta at Leuctra and Mantinēa. The continued rivalries, feuds, and contentions of these states made it easy for Alexander the Great to annex them to his empire.

5. quàm] With the superlative, denotes the highest possible degree. H. 170, 2.

6. instrui] ‘Were in process of erection.’ The verb here marks the initial stage of the building; exstructi, below, means ‘built up,’ actually erected — i.e., raised from below.

8. desierunt] Sc. Athenienses.
ad eos] i.e., ad Lacedæmonios.

10. tum] ‘Only then,’ ‘not till then.’

12. facerent] The imperative of direct discourse takes the subjunctive in indirect discourse. H. 529.

VII. Themistocles, by his skilful diplomacy while deal-longissime tempus duceret, causam interponens, se collegas exspectare. Quum Lacedæmonii quererentur, opus nihilo minus fieri, eumque in eā re conari fallere, interim reliqui legati sunt consecuti. A quibus quum audisset, non multum superesse munitionis, ad ephoros Lacedæmoniorum accessit, penes quos summum erat imperium, atque apud eos contendit, falsa iis esse delata; quare æquum esse, illos viros bonos nobilesque mittere, quibus fides haberetur, qui rem explorarent; interea se obsidem retinerent. Gestus est ei mos, tres-⁵ que legati, functi summis honoribus, Athēnas missi sunt. Cum his collegas suos Themistocles jussit proficisci, iisque prædixit, ut ne prius Lacedæmoniorum legatos dimitterent, quàm ipse esset remissus. Hos postquam Athēnas pervenisse ratus est, ad magistratum senatumque Lacedæmoniorum adiit, et apud eos liberrimè professus est: Atheniensis suo consilio, quod communi ing with the Spartans, gains time to complete the walls of Athens.

1. tempus duceret] 'Spin out the time.'

4. sunt consecuti] Observe the force of con, 'came up with,' i. e., 'joined.'

5. munitionis] 'Of the work of fortifying.' Verbal nouns in -io are primarily abstract. H. 321, 2.

ephoros] The ephoroi were five in number, and were elected annually. They constituted the highest civil magistracy, controlling even the kings. The term signifies 'supervisors,' and as such they managed the affairs of the state in all its internal and external relations, using the kings as their generals and executive officers.

7. iis] i. e., Lacedæmoniis.

8. illos] i. e., ephoros.

10. Gestus — mos] 'His wish was complied with.'

11. functi] Is equivalent to a relative clause. H. 577.

13. prædixit] 'Told them beforehand;' nearly equivalent to præcepit.

ut ne] The negative belongs to prius, not to the whole clause.

15. magistratum] 'The government,' i. e., the ephoroi.

senatum] This consisted of twenty-eight elders over sixty years of age, and the two kings.

17. Atheniensis] Accusative plural. Cf. Miltiades, p. 112, l. 2.

quod — possent] The relative refers to the following deos — sepsisse, and is introduced before that, to mitigate the indignation of the Spartans when they heard jure gentium facere possent, deosque publicos suosque patrios ac penates, quo facilius ab hoste possent defendere, muris sepsisse; neque in eo, quod inutile esset Græciæ, fecisse. Nam illorum urbem ut propugnaculum op-

 10 miserant, se remitterent; aliter illos numquam in patriam essent recepturi.

VIII. Tamen non effugit civium suorum invidiam. Namque ob eundem timorem, quo damnatus erat Miltiades, testularum suffragiis e civitate ejectus, Argos 15 habitatum concessit. Illic quum propter multas ejus virtutes magnā cum dignitate viveret, Lacedæmonii legatos Athēnas miserunt, qui eum absentem accusa-the admission of Themistocles.

1. deos] The dii publici were the national gods, worshipped alike by all the Greeks; the dii patrii were the gods of Athens or Attica; the penates, those of the family or household.

4. oppositum] Following the predicate noun, agrees with it rather than with urbem.

6. fecisse naufragium] Referring to the battles of Marathon and Salamis.

7. intuerentur] Subjunctive of cause or reason. H. 517.

8. universæ] 'As a whole.'

10. miserant] Cf. Miltiades, p. 110, line 7, transportaverat.

11. essent recepturi] Would regularly have been recepturos esse. Cf. Phædrus, 9, 6; where a similar construction occurs.

VIII. Banishment of Themistocles. B. C. 471.

13. quo] Ablative of cause. H. 414, 2.

14. testularum suffragiis] Ostracism is here meant. By this means the Athenian democracy banished, generally for ten years, any one who was suspected of ambitious designs, or whose pre-eminence was regarded as dangerous to the state. This was effected by 6000 votes, which were recorded on pieces of tile. But the sentence involved no loss of honor or of property.

Argos] Is probably accusative plural, as the neuter form is used mostly by poets and geographers.

15. ejus] Irregular, as a result of the author's negligence, for suos.

rent, quòd societatem cum rege Perse ad Græciam opprimendam fecisset. Hoc crimine absens proditiōis damnatus est. Id ut audivit, quòd non satis tutum se Argis videbat, Corcÿram demigravit. Ibi quum ejus principes animadvertisset timere, ne propter se bellum 5 iis Lacedæmonii et Athenienses indicerent, ad Admētum, Molossum regem, cum quo ei hospitium erat, confugit. Huc quum venisset, et in præsentiā rex abesset, quo majore religione se receptum tueretur, filiam ejus parvulam arripuit, et cum eā se in sacrarium, quod 10 summā colebatur cærimoniā, conjecit. Inde non prius egressus est, quàm rex eum datā dextrā in fidem reciperet; quam præstitit. Nam quum ab Atheniensibus et Lacedæmoniis exposceretur publice, supplicem non prodidit, monuitque, ut consuleret sibi; difficile 15 enim esse, in tam propinquo loco tuto eum versari. Itaque Pydnam eum deduci jussit, et quod satis esset præsidii, dedit. Hic in navem omnibus ignotus nautis descendit. Quæ quum tempestate maximā Naxum fer-

1. Perse] From Perses, æ; it is an appositive of rege, and is used perhaps to give prominence to the nationality. So Molossum, below, for Molossorum.

6. iis] i. e., Corcyræis, implied in Corcÿram, above.

7. hospitium] 'Guest-friendship.' This was a mutual agreement between two persons to receive and entertain, to succor and protect, each other, under all circumstances. This relation was hereditary, and was regarded as sacred until it was renounced, which may have been the case here, as Thucydides says that Admētus was at variance with Themistocles.

9. quo — tueretur] 'In order that he might protect himself when received with a greater religious obligation.'

12. in fidem reciperet] 'Took him under his protection.' Subjunctive of time, with the accessory notion of cause. H. 523, II. The pluperfect would have been expected.

13. quam præstitit] 'And he kept this engagement.'

15. monuitque] 'But warned him.'

difficile — esse] Supply dixit.

16. tuto] An adverb of manner. H. 335, 4, 2).

17. Pydnam] A town of Macedonia, near the Thermaic Gulf, on which it had a harbor.

satis esset] The subjunctive expresses the opinion of Admētus.

retur, ubi tum Atheniensium erat exercitus, sensit Themistöcles, si eo pervenisset, sibi esse pereundum. Hac necessitate coactus domino navis, qui sit, aperit, multa pollicens, si se conservasset. At ille, clarissimi viri
 5 captus misericordiā, diem noctemque procul ab insulā in salo navem tenuit in ancoris, neque quemquam ex eā exire passus est. Inde Ephësum pervenit, ibique Themistöclen exponit; cui ille pro meritis gratiam postea retulit.

10 IX. Scio, plerosque ita scripsisse, Themistöclen, Xerxe regnante, in Asiam transisse. Sed ego potissimum Thucydīdi credo, quòd ætate proximus de iis qui illorum temporum historiam reliquerunt, et ejusdem civitatis fuit. Is autem ait, ad Artaxerxem eum venissibi] Dative of the agent. H. 383, I.

2. pervenisset] i. e., Themistöcles.

esse pereundum] Used impersonally. H. 301, 2.

3. qui sit] 'Who he is,' i. e., as to rank, condition, etc.; quis sit would mean 'what his name is.' H. 454.

4. clarissimi] Best translated by 'so distinguished.'

6. in salo] 'In the roads,' in opposition to in portu.

7. Ephësum] This was a city of great celebrity and wealth, to which its excellent harbor largely contributed. Its temple of Diāna was so magnificent as to be accounted one of the seven wonders of the world. The burning of this sanctuary in A. D. 262 by the Goths, disastrous earthquakes, and the destruction of the harbor by the deposits of the Caÿster, effected, in the course of time, the total ruin of the city.

8. Themistöclen] Some Greek proper names in -es of the third declension sometimes form the accusative in -en, after the manner of the first. H. 93, 3.

gratiam — retulit] 'Returned the favor.' Cf. Justin, p. 71, line 19.

IX. Themistocles repairs to the king of Persia.

11. Xerxe] Emphatic, as opposed to Artaxerxes, below. Xerxes reigned from B. C. 485 to B. C. 465; Artaxerxes Longimānus, from B. C. 465 to B. C. 424.

13. ejusdem — fuit] 'Belonged to the same state.' H. 402, III.

16. veni] Perfect, with reference to the time when the letter would be read; 'I, Themistöcles, have come.' Themistöcles is appositive to ego, the subject of veni.

Grajorum] For Græcorum; an

Nam quum in Asiam reverti vellet, prælio apud Salamina factò, litteris cum certiore feci, id agi, ut pons, quem in Hellesponto fecerat, dissolveretur, atque ab hostibus circumiretur: quo nuntio ille periculo est liberatus. Nunc autem confugi ad te, exagitatus a cunctâ Græciâ, tuam petens amicitiam: quam si ero adeptus, non minus me bonum amicum habebis, quàm fortem inimicum ille expertus est. Te autem rogo, ut de iis rebus, quas tecum colloqui volo, annum mihi tempus des, eoque transacto ad te venire patiaris."

X. Hujus rex animi magnitudinem admirans, cupiensque talem virum sibi conciliari, veniam dedit. Ille omne illud tempus litteris sermonique Persarum se dedit: quibus adeò eruditus est, ut multò commodius dicatur apud regem verba fecisse, quam ii poterant, qui archaism, i. e., the use of an ancient word or expression. The genitive here limits qui.

1. domum] As we say, 'the house of Brunswick,' meaning family.

3. ipse] Sc. esse cœpit.

6. agi] 'That it was in contemplation.' Cf. p. 124, line 14.

9. exagitatus] 'Pursued.'

10. non minus, etc.] 'You will have (in) me a no less valuable friend than he found me a valiant enemy;' amicum is appositive to me.

12. quas] Irregular for de quibus. Colloqui, being intransitive, properly takes only the neuter accusative of a pronoun.

13. annuum] Here a grammatical equivalent for anni.

13. ad te venire] Supply me as subject from mihî.

X. Themistocles finds favor with Artaxerxes, and fixes his residence at Magnesia, where he di s, about B. C. 460.

17. litteris] 'The literature.' sermoni] 'The language,' as a means of communication.

18. eruditus est] Is equivalent to a reflexive verb; 'he instructed himself,' with adeò, 'he became so learned.'

multò] Ablative, denoting the measure of difference. H. 418.

19. qui in Perside] The Asiatic Greeks are probably meant; otherwise the statement of Nepos is an exaggeration. Thucydides says Themistocles learned what in Perside erant nati. Hic quum multa regi esset pollicitus, gratissimumque illud, si suis uti consiliis vellet, illum Græciam bello oppressurum: magnis muneribus ab Artaxerxe donatus in Asiam rediit, domiciliumque

 5 Magnesiæ sibi constituit. Namque hanc urbem ei rex donarat, his quidem verbis: quæ ei panem præberet (ex quâ regione quinquaginta talenta quotannis redibant); Lampsacum autem, unde vinum sumeret; Myunta, ex quâ obsonium haberet. Hujus ad nostram memoriam
 10 monumenta manserunt duo: sepulcrum prope oppidum, in quo est sepultus; statua in foro Magnesiæ. De cu-he could of the language of the Persians.

1. multa — illud] 'Many promises, and especially this most welcome one.'

5. sibi] The dative of advantage following constituit, in place of suum modifying domicilium.

6. quidem] Gives an emphasis to the preceding word, but need not always be translated.

præberet] Subjunctive of purpose. H. 500. The Oriental kings were wont thus to make presents, to friends and favorites, of the entire income of cities and districts.

7. regione] This explanatory term includes urbem, the antecedent of quâ, and its environs.

quinquaginta] Stands for the distributive, as quotannis is expressed.

8. autem] This adversative and vero mark only a transition, and follow the words which they connect; sed and verum denote a direct opposition; at emphasizes the opposition. H. 587, III. 2.

9. ad — memoriam] 'To our time, i. e., to that when Nepos wrote.

10. oppidum] i. e., Athens. The tomb of Themistocles — according to Pausanias, a writer of the second century of our era — stood near the Piræus.

11. est sepultus] 'Lies buried.' The perfect — especially the perfect passive — may sometimes denote the condition in which a thing now is in consequence of a previous action; cf. mortuus est, 'died,' 'is dead.'

foro] A forum was an open place suitable in situation and surroundings for the transaction of public or private business. A Roman forum was a levelled space of ground of an oblong form, and surrounded by buildings, temples, porticoes, etc. Some fora were devoted exclusively to purposes of trade, and called, from their special use, forum bovarium, the cattle market; forum olitorium, the vegetable market, etc. Others, like the forum Romanum, were appropriated mainly for the administration of justice, for holding assemblies of the people, and for the transaction of public affairs, though such persons as bankers and usurers occupied shops in the adjacent porticoes. The word forum, in conjunction with a genitive or proper adjective, forms the name of many market and assize towns, as Forum Appii, Forum Aurelium, etc.

1. multimodis] Antiquated and colloquial for multis modis.

apud plerosque] 'In a great many authors.'

3. neque negat] 'Without denying,' or 'though he does not deny.'

4. venenum — sumpsisse] Appositive to famam. H. 554, II. Supply eum.

7. quoniam] Refers to clam.

8. concederetur — esset damnatus] The subjunctives show that the statements are those of Thucydides.

ARISTIDES.

I. ARISTĪDES, Lysimāchi filius, Atheniensis, æqualis fere fuit Themistōcli. Itaque cum eo de principatu contendit: namque obtreclarunt inter se. In his autem cognitum est, quanto antestaret eloquentia innocentiae. Quamquam enim adeò excellebat Aristīdes abstinentiā, ut unus post hominum memoriam, quem quidem nos audierimus, cognomine Justus sit appellatus: tamen, a Themistōcle collabefactus, testulā illā exsilio

I. Aristides, the rival of Themistocles, is banished for ten years, B. C. 483, but is recalled on the invasion of the Persians.

1. æqualis fere] 'Nearly of the same age with.'

2. Themistōcli] With æqualis, the genitive of names of persons is more common, in the classic period, than the dative.

de principatu] 'For the pre-eminence.'

3. obtreclarunt inter se] 'Were rivals.' Grote thinks it highly probable that one cause of their rivalry was the attempt of Themistocles to convert Athens from a land power into a sea power.

4. quanto] The ablative of measure of difference. H. 418.

antestaret] 'Is mightier;' a general remark, and therefore better translated by the present.

innocentiæ] 'Blamelessness.'

6. abstinentiā] 'In disinterestedness.'

ut unus — audierimus] 'That he is the only one in the history of mankind, that at least I have heard of, that has been,' etc. A relative clause, used to limit or restrict a general statement, takes the subjunctive. H. 501, II.

7. nos] i. e., ego. An individual not infrequently speaks of himself in the first person plural when he thinks more of the condition and bearings of the subject under discussion than of himself personally in distinction from others. H. 446, 2.

cognomine] 'By the surname of.' Ablative of specification. H. 429.

Justus] Is predicate adjective after appellatus.

sit appellatus] The perfect here represents the result as valid even to the time of the author. H. 482, 2.

8. testulā] Is equivalent to testularum suffragiis, in Themistocles, ch. VIII. p. 128, line 14.

illā] Represents the thing as well known. H. 450, 5.

exsilio] The ablative of punishment. H. 410, 5, 3).

II. Interfuit autem pugnae navali apud Salamina, quæ facta est prius, quam pœnam liberaretur. Idem prætor fuit Atheniensium apud Plataeas in prælio, quo 15

3. cedensque] 'And giving up the struggle.'

scribentem] In this act lies the purpose expressed in ut pelleretur. The name only of the person to be banished was written on the tile. For the difference between the present participle and the infinitive after verbs of perceiving, see H. 551, 4.

5. cur — duceretur] Subjunctive of result. H. 500; cur is here a relative adverb.

pœnam] Not intended to be, but really such.

6. se — Aristidem] Ignorare is stronger than non nosse. 'Did not know Aristides at all.'

7. placere] The subject is quod — appellaretur.

8. ceteros] Ceteri means the others of the same species; alii, others, different from those already mentioned; reliqui, the rest, remaining ones.

9. annorum] Genitive of characteristic. H. 396, IV.

non pertulit] 'Did not suffer to the end.' He was in exile only three years at most.

10. descendit] 'Came down,' i.e., from the interior to the coast.

11. quam] For postquam. H. 427, 3.

erat expulsus] The pluperfect is used after postquam when a definite intervening time is mentioned. Cf. III. ad fin.

II. Aristides commands the Athenians at Plataeas, and causes the transfer of the hegemony to Athens.

13. Interfuit] Not in the Athenian fleet, but he captured Psyttalia, a small island near Salamis, and killed the Persians that had occupied that position.

15. quo Mardonius, etc.] The facts would have led us to expect

Mardonius fusus, barbarorumque exercitus interfectus est. Neque aliud est ullum hujus in re militari illustre factum, quàm hujus imperii memoria; justitiæ vero, et æquitatis, et innocentiae multa: in primis, quod ejus 5 æquitate factum est, quum in communi classe esset Græciæ simul cum Pausaniâ, quo duce Mardonius erat fugatus, ut summa imperii maritimi ab Lacedæmoniis transferretur ad Athenienses. Namque ante id tempus et mari et terrâ duces erant Lacedæmonii. Tum autem 10 et intemperantiâ Pausaniæ, et justitiâ factum est Aristidis, ut omnes fere civitates Græciæ ad Atheniensium societatem se applicarent, et adversus barbaros hos duces deligerent sibi.]

III. Quos quò facilius repellerent, si forte bellum 15 renovare conarentur, ad classes ædificandas exercitusque comparandos quantum pecuniæ quæque civitas daret, Aristides delectus est, qui constitueret, ejusque arbitrio quadringena et sexagena talenta quotannis Delum sunt collata. Id enim commune ærarium esse quo barbarorum exercitus fusus Mardoniusque interfectus est.

2. Neque — ullum] ‘But there is no other.’

3. quàm] ‘Except.’ Nisi might also have been used here. In such instances, alius and aliter stand in a negative clause, or with an interrogative used negatively.

memoria] ‘Account.’ According to Plutarch, Aristides was second only to Miltiades at the battle of Marathon.

4. in primis — factum est] ‘Especially that which resulted,’ etc.

6. quo duce] ‘Under whose lead;’ ablative absolute. H. 430.

7. summa — maritimi] ‘The chief command on the sea.’

10. intemperantiâ] ‘The overbearing conduct.’

12. hos — sibi] ‘Chose them (the Athenians) as their leaders;’ duces is predicate. H. 373, 1.

III. Aristides is appointed to fix the amount to be contributed by each state to a common treasury, but dies in poverty about B. C. 470.

18. quadringena, etc.] Four hundred and sixty talents a year. H. 174, 2, 1).

19. Delum] Limit of motion. Cf. Justin II. ch. I. line 7.

Id] i. e., Delum; the pronoun agrees in gender with the predicate noun, instead of the antecedent. H. 445, 4.

voluerunt. Quæ omnis pecunia postero tempore Athēnas translata est. Hic quā fuerit abstinentiā, nullum est certius indicium, quam quod, quum tantis rebus præfuisset, in tantā paupertate decessit, ut, quī efferretur, vix reliquerit. Quo factum est, ut filiæ ejus publice alerentur, et de communi ærario dotibus datis collocarentur. Decessit autem fere post annum quartum, quàm Themistocles Athēnis erat expulsus. 5

3. quam — præfuisset] ‘Than the fact that, though he had had charge of so important affairs.’

4. decessit] Sc. de vita.

quī efferretur] ‘Means for his burial;’ literally, ‘wherewith he could be carried out,’ i. e., for burial; quī is an old ablative. H. 187, 1.

5. publice alerentur] ‘Were supported at the expense of the state,’ i. e., in the Prytanēum, a building where the guests and beneficiaries of the state were entertained at the public charge.

6. dotibus datis] ‘With dowries.’ Plutarch states they were in this case 3000 drachmas, or about $560.

8. erat expulsus] Cf. p. 135, l. 11.

ALCIBIADES.

I. ALCIBIÄDES, Cliniae filius, Atheniensis. In hoc, quid natura efficere possit, videtur experta. Constat enim inter omnes, qui de eo memoriae prodiderunt, nihil illo fuisse excellentius, vel in vitiis, vel in virtutibus. Natus in amplissimā civitate, summo genere, omnium ætatis suæ multò formosissimus, ad omnes res aptus, consiliique plenus (namque imperator fuit summus et mari et terrā); disertus, ut in primis dicendo valeret, quòd tanta erat commendatio oris atque orationis, ut nemo ei posset resistere; dives; quum tempus posceret, laboriosus, patiens; liberalis, splendidus non minus in vitā, quàm victu; affabilis, blandus, temporibus callidissime serviens: idem, simulac se remise-

I. The origin and character of Alcibiades.

For the beginning, cf. Themistocles, ch. I. line 1.

2. natura] Observe that the leading subject stands in the dependent clause.

possit] According to the rule for the sequence of tenses, posset would be the regular tense after experta (esse), — cf. antestaret, Aristides, ch. I. line 4, — but the present marks more emphatically the universality of the proposition.

3. memoriae prodiderunt] ‘Have written.’

4. nihil] More comprehensive and stronger than neminem. So Cicero ad Atticum, 2, 24: “Nihil me infortunatius, nihil fortunatius est Catulo.” excellentius] ‘More remarkable.’

vel—vel] ‘Either,’ ‘or;’ i. e., will you thus, or will you thus? — vel being a contracted form of velis, from volo. Aut indicates a difference of the object, and vel a difference of expression.

5. Natus] This word and the following adjectives belong to the predicate of the sentence agreeing with idem, below; ‘born, etc. — he on the other hand — was found to be,’ etc.

9. commendatio—orationis] ‘The fascination of his elocution and language.’

11. laboriosus] ‘Painstaking.’

patiens] ‘Hardy.’

12. vitā] ‘Public life.’

victu] ‘Style of living,’ with reference to his dwelling, attire, table, etc.

13. se remisera] ‘Had unbent himself.’ The pluperfect here, in rat, neque causa suberat, quare animi laborem perferret, luxuriosus, dissolutus, libidinosus, intemperans reperiebatur, ut omnes admirarentur, in uno homine tantam esse dissimilitudinem, tamque diversam naturam.

II. Educatus est in domo Pericli (privignus enim 5 ejus fuisse dicitur), eruditus a Socrate; socerum habuit Hipponicum, omnium Græcā linguā loquentium divitissimum; ut, si ipse fingere vellet, neque plura bona comminisci, neque majora posset consequi, quam vel natura vel fortuna tribueret. 10 conjunction with the imperfect, denotes a repeated action. H. 472, 2.

1. animi laborem] 'Mental toil.'

4. diversam] 'Contradictory.'

II. The youth and education of Alcibiades.

5. in domo Pericli] He lost his father, Clinias, at the battle of Coronæa, and Pericles became his guardian.

Pericli] This illustrious Athenian orator and statesman was born about B. C. 509, and began his political career in the year B. C. 469. By his talents, wisdom, and eloquence, he soon gained a prominent position, and, in B. C. 444, the foremost place in the state. By his liberality and enterprise, with the coöperation of the great sculptors, architects, and painters of his day, he not only raised Athens to a degree of splendor befitting the imperial rank which she had acquired by her maritime ascendancy, but made his age an epoch in the history of art. He died of a lingering fever, in the year B. C. 429, in the third year of the Peloponnesian war.

privignus] A mistake; the grandfather of Alcibiades and the mother of Pericles were brother and sister.

6. Socrate] Cf. Phædrus, 28, 2. socerum] Alcibiades received with his wife ten talents, which was regarded as an immense dowry in those times. Note that inherited wealth is placed by the author among the gifts of nature, while the dowry is regarded as one of the favors of fortune.

7. Græcā—loquentium] A periphrasis for Græcorum; cf. Miltiades, ch. III. line 11.

8. fingere] 'To give play to his imagination.'

vellet] This use of the imperfect, either in the condition or in the conclusion of hypothetical sentences, in the place of the pluperfect, — by which completed actions of the past are transferred, at least partly, to the present, — is a peculiarity of the Latin language. In translating, conform to the English idiom.

10. tribueret] The subjunctive of attraction. H. 527.

III. Bello Peloponnesio hujus consilio atque auctoritate Athenienses bellum Syracusanis indixerunt; ad quod gerendum ipse dux delectus est; duo præterea collegæ dati, Nicia et Lamachus. Id quum appareret, priusquam classis exiret, accidit, ut unâ nocte omnes Hermæ, qui in oppido erant Athēnis, dejicerentur præter unum, qui ante januam erat Andocidi. Itaque ille postea Mercurius Andocidis vocitatus est. Hoc quum appareret non sine magnâ multorum consensione esse factum, quæ non ad privatam, sed publicam rem pertineret, magnus multitudini timor est

III. Alcibiades instigates a war against Syracuse: he is suspected of sacrilege and treason. B. C. 415.

1. Bello] This war, which was waged between the Athenians and Spartans, began B. C. 431, and ended with the discomfiture of the Athenians, B. C. 404.

2. Syracusanis] Syracuse, once the largest, richest, and most powerful city of Sicily, was situated on the eastern coast of the southern portion of that island. It was founded by the Dorians, B. C. 735. In its most prosperous times, it had a circumference of 180 stadia, or over 20 English miles. Being connected with Sparta by ties of race, it would naturally side with that state, rather than with Athens.

4. dati] Sc. sunt, to be supplied from est, at the end of the preceding clause.

Nicia] For Nicias, a Latin for a Greek form. H. 43, 3. Nicias, — on whom alone, in consequence of the recall of Alcibiades and the death of Lamachus, the conduct of this war devolved, — though a brave and experienced general, was at last compelled, after great disasters and sufferings, to surrender himself and his army to the Syracusans, who put him to death, B. C. 413.

5. priusquam — exiret] The subjunctive shows a connection between this clause and accidit ut dejicerentur, which is merely a periphrasis for dejecti sunt. H. 523, II. and 2.

6. Hermæ] These were square blocks of stone, surmounted with a head of Hermes or Mercurius, and were placed in the streets and at the entrances of houses. The Pelasgians represented Hermes without hands and feet.

dejicerentur] Thucydides and Plutarch say that they were mutilated.

7. Andocidi] The genitive; cf. Pericli, ch. II. l. 5. Andocides was one of the ten Attic orators. Being implicated in this act of sacrilege, he was punished with atimy, a state of infamy, by which one lost the protection of the laws, and in general the rights of a citizen.

11. pertineret] The subjunctive of result. H. 501.

injectus, ne qua repentina vis in civitate exsisteret, quæ libertatem opprimeret populi. Hoc maxime convenire in Alcibiādem videbatur, quòd et potentior et major, quàm privatus, existimabatur. Multos enim liberalitate devinxerat, plures etiam operā forensi suos reddiderat. Quare fiebat, ut omnium oculos, quotiescumque in publicum prodisset, ad se converteret, neque ei par quisquam in civitate poneretur. Itaque non solum spem in eo habebant maximam, sed etiam timorem, quòd et obesse plurimum et prodesse poterat. 10 Aspergebatur etiam infamiā, quòd in domo suā facere mysteria dicebatur; quod nefas erat more Atheniensium; idque non ad religionem, sed ad conjurationem pertinere existimabatur.

IV. Hoc crimine in contione ab inimicis compellabatur. 15 Sed instabat tempus ad bellum proficiscendi. Id ille intuens, neque ignorans civium suorum consue-

1. vis] 'Act of violence.'

2. Hoc] i. e., the presumed conspiracy against the freedom of the people.

convenire] 'To apply.'

4. privatus] Cf. Miltiādes, ch. VIII. p. 118, line 1.

5. operā forensi] 'By his service as an advocate,' i. e., in the assemblies of the people, and in the courts of law.

suos] 'His adherents.' The predicate accusative.

7. in publicum prodisset] 'Appeared in public.'

11. Aspergebatur] 'He (i. e., his character) was stained.'

facere mysteria] 'To celebrate the mysteries,' i. e., those of the Eleusinian Ceres (Demēter), which it was unlawful to celebrate otherwise than in the prescribed ways; a "sham celebration" of these rites was alleged against Alcibiādes.

IV. Alcibiades is accused, and recalled from Sicily, but escapes to Sparta.

15. compellabatur] 'Was called to account.' This was only preliminary to a formal accusation, which was brought against him after his arrival in Sicily. See below.

17. neque ignorans] 'Knowing very well;' an example of litotes. The two negatives here, and generally when the second is emphatic, not only destroy each other, but produce a stronger affirmation.

consuetudinem] i. e., of accusing persons in their absence, or of getting rid of prominent and suspected citizens.

tudinem, postulabat, si quid de se agi vellent, potius de præsentē quæstio haberetur, quàm absens invidiæ crimine accusaretur. Inimici vero ejus quiescendum in præsentī, quia noceri non posse intelligebant, et illud

2. haberetur] For the omission of ut, see H. 493, 2.

invidiæ crimine] 'On an invidious charge.'

3. quiescendum] Sc. esse sibi. H. 391, 2, and 388.

4. noceri] Sc. ei. For this impersonal construction, cf. Justin, I. ch. I. line 2, p. 55.

8. sacra] Refers to mysteria, in ch. III. line 12, p. 141.

reum fecerunt] 'Accused;' a juridical expression.

9. a magistratu] 'By the government.'

10. ad causam dicendam] 'To plead his cause;' cf. reum fecerunt, above.

essetque—administrandæ] 'And cherished strong hopes of conducting his command successfully.'

11. non parere] 'Disobey.'

12. trierem] A Greek word for triremem.

13. Hac] Refers to trierem.

Thurios] A city founded, B. C. 443, by a colony of Athenians, near the ruins of Sybāris.

15. erga] In classical language is seldom used in a hostile sense.

utilissimum] Predicate adjective. H. 373, 2.

17. Elidem] The capital of the country of the same name; if the latter had been meant, it would have been in Elidem.

18. bonis publicatis] We occasionally find ablatives absolute formed with the perfect participle, to express a circumstance which does not precede, but accompanies or follows, the main action. Madvig, 431, Obs. 2.

publicatis, audivit, et, id quod usu venerat, Eumolpīdas sacerdotes a populo coactos, ut se devoverent, ejusque devotionis, quo testatior esset memoria, exemplum, in pilā lapideā incisum, esse positum in publico, Lacedæmōnem demigravit. Ibi, ut ipse prædicare consueverat, non adversus patriam, sed inimicos suos bellum gessit, quod iidem hostes essent civitati. Nam quum intelligerent, se plurimum prodesse posse reipublicæ, ex eā eiecisse plusque iræ suæ, quàm utilitati communi paruisse. Itaque hujus consilio Lacedæmonii cum Perse rege amicitiam fecerunt; dein Deceliam in Atticā munerunt, præsidioque ibi perpetuo posito in obsidione Athēnas tenuerunt. Ejusdem operā Ioniam a societate averterunt Atheniensium. Quo facto multò superiores bello esse cœperunt.

V. Neque vero his rebus tam amici Alcibiādi sunt facti, quàm timore ab eo alienati. Nam quum acerrimi

1. et — venerat] ‘And, as had actually happened, that;’ id quod relates to the entire statement which follows; usu is an ablative of cause.

Eumolpīdas] The Eumolpīdæ were an ancient priestly family, descended from Eumolpus, a Thracian, who is said, as priest of Ceres, to have founded the Eleusinian mysteries. By virtue of their office, it would be their duty to take cognizance of the crime of Alcibiādes.

2. se] Refers to Alcibiādes, the leading subject.

3. testatior] ‘Better attested.’

4. lapideā] An adjective of material (H. 324); -eus answering to the English -en, as in golden, oak-en, etc.

7. intelligerent] Subjunctive of concession. H. 515, I.

8. se] i. e., Alcibiādem.

ex eā eiecisse] ‘They had banished him.’ Supply subject and object from the context.

11. rege] Darius Nothus reigned from B. C. 424 to B. C. 405.

Deceliam] This was a village about fifteen miles north of Athens, on the road to Eubœa, whence the Athenians obtained many of their supplies.

12. in obsidione] ‘In a state of siege.’

V. Alcibiades, suspected by the Spartans, flees to the Persians, in the year B. C. 411, but is afterwards reinstated in command by the Athenians.

16. Neque vero] So also we find regularly neque tamen for non tamen, and usually neque enim, neque igitur.

viri præstantem prudentiam in omnibus rebus cognoscerent, pertimuerunt, ne caritate patriæ ductus aliquando ab ipsis descisceret, et cum suis in gratiam rediret. Itaque tempus ejus interficiundi quærere instituerunt. Id Alcibiâdes diutius celari non potuit: erat enim eâ sagacitate, ut decipi non posset, præsertim quum animum attendisset ad cavendum. Itaque ad Tissaphernem, præfectum regis Darii, se contulit. Cujus quum in intimam amicitiam pervenisset, et Atheniensium, male gestis in Siciliâ rebus, opes senescere, contra Lacedæmoniorum crescere videret: initio cum Pisandro prætore, qui apud Samum exercitum habebat, per internuntios colloquitur, et de reditu suo facit mentionem. Erat enim eodem, quo Alcibiâdes, sensu, populi potentiæ non amicus, et optimatum fautor. Ab hoc destitutus primum per Thrasybûlum, Lyci filium, ab exercitu recipitur, prætorque fit apud Sa-

2. pertimuerunt] 'Feared greatly;' cf. perterreo, permagnus, in which likewise per heightens the signification.

3. cum—rediret] 'Should become reconciled to his countrymen.'

4. interficiundi] For interficiendi. H. 238.

5. Id] Accusative after celari. H. 374, 1 and 1).

celari] 'Be kept ignorant of.'

6. sagacitate] 'Acuteness;' the word properly denotes keenness of the senses, especially of smelling.

8. Tissaphernem] He was a trap of Lydia and Caria, and the enemy of Cyrus the Younger.

11. Lacedæmoniorum] 'That (i. e., the power) of the Lacedæmonians.' For 'that,' as the representative of a noun in such cases, the Latin has no word. Z. 767.

12. Pisandro] This Pisander was one of the chiefs of the oligarchical faction in the Athenian army. Andrôcles, the leader of the popular party at this time, was an enemy of Alcibiâdes.

Samum] Was principally celebrated as the birthplace of Pythagoras.

14. eodem, quo] 'Of the same — as.' H. 451, 5.

15. optimatum] The more usual genitive plural of optimates. H. 89, 5.

16. per] 'Through the mediation of.' The person here is regarded rather as the means than as the agent. H. 414, 5, 1).

Thrasybûlum] An energetic and enterprising leader, who afterwards, as the champion of the mum; post, suffragante Theramēne, populiscito restituitur, parique absens imperio præficitur simul cum Thrasybūlo et Theramēne. Horum in imperio tanta commutatio rerum facta est, ut Lacedæmonii, qui paullo ante victores viguerant, perterriti pacem pete- 5 rent. Victi enim erant quinque præliis terrestribus, tribus navalibus, in quibus ducentas naves triremes amiserant, quæ captæ in hostium venerant potestatem.

 Alcibiādes simul cum collegis receperat Ioniam, Helle-spontum, multas præterea urbes Græcas, quæ in orā 10 sitæ sunt Thraciæ, quarum expugnarant complures, in iis Byzantium; neque minus multas consilio ad amici-tiam adjunxerant, quòd in captos clementiā fuerant usi.
 Ita prædā onusti, locupletato exercitu, maximis rebus gestis, Athēnas venerunt. 15

VI. His quum obviam universa civitas in Piræum descendisset, tanta fuit omnium expectatio visendi Alcibiādis, ut ad ejus triremem vulgus conflueret, proinde ac si solus advenisset. Sic enim populo erat popular party, overthrew the oligarchy at Athens.

1. suffragante Theramēne] 'With the coöperation of Theramēnes.'
 Theramēnes was one of the Thirty Tyrants. He possessed superior abilities, but was so inconstant and time-serving that he became unpopular with both parties, and was finally seized, and put to death by poison, at the order of Critias, the chief of the Thirty.

2. pari—imperio] 'With equal authority.'

simul cum] 'Together with;'
 not temporal here.

9. Hellespontum] i. e., the region bordering on the Hellespont.

12. neque—multas] 'And quite as many.'

consilio] 'By their policy.'

14. locupletato—gestis] Et is generally omitted between two ablatives absolute.

VI. Alcibiades is received at Athens with great enthusiasm, and the curse of the Eumolpidæ is removed. B. C. 408.

16. Piræum] Cf. Themistocles, ch. VI. line 10. The Piræus is about five miles south-west from Athens.

17. omnium] Subjective genitive.

visendi] Visere, a frequentative from video, has often rather an intensive force. H. 332, 2, 2).

19. Sic—persuasum] 'For the people had become convinced of this;'
populo is the dative of advantage. H. 335.

persuasum, et adversas superiores, et præsentēs secundas res accidisse ejus operā. Itaque et Siciliæ amissum, et Lacedæmoniorum victorias culpæ suæ tribuebant, quòd talem virum e civitate expulissent. Neque
 5 id sine causā arbitrari videbantur. Nam postquam exercitui præesse cæperat, neque terrā, neque mari hostes pares esse potuerant. Hic ut e navi egressus est, quamquam Theramēnes et Thrasybūlus iisdem rebus præfuerant, simulque venerant in Piræum, tamen

 15 venit, contione advocatā sic verba fecit, ut nemo tam ferus fuerit, quin ejus casu illacrimarit, inimicumque iis se ostenderit, quorum operā patriā pulsus fuerat, proinde ac si alius populus, non ille ipse, qui tum flebat, eum sacrilegii damnasset. Restituta ergo huic sunt 20 publice bona; iidemque illi Eumolpīdæ sacerdotes rursus resacrare sunt coacti, qui eum devoverant; pilæque illæ, in quibus devotio fuerat scripta, in mare præcipitatae.

2. amissum] Occurs nowhere else as a noun.

6. cæperat] The pluperfect is used on account of the pluperfect potuerat, in the leading clause.

11. victoribus] i. e., on their return home; but they received also, at Olympia, chaplets of wild olive leaves. "The re-entry of Alcibiādes was not merely unostentations, but even mistrustful and apprehensive." He had been in exile from B. C. 415 to B. C. 407.

12. tæniis] These served as ornaments to the chaplets.

13. reminisci] Historical infinitive for the historical present, or imperfect indicative. H. 545, 1.

16. casu] An old dative. H. 116, 4, 3).

illacrimarit] Subjunctive of result after quin, in the sense of ut non. H. 498.

17. proinde ac si] Is less common than perinde ac si.

21. resacrare] 'To release from the curse.'

pilæque illæ] Refers to p. 143, line 4, where, however, only one pila is mentioned. H. 450.

VII. Hæc Alcibiādī lætitia non nimis fuit diuturna. Nam quum ei omnes essent honores decreti, totaque respublica domi bellique tradita, ut unius arbitrio gereretur; et ipse postulasset, ut duo sibi collegæ darentur, Thrasybūlus et Adimantus, neque id negatum esset: 5 classe in Asiam profectus, quod apud Cymen minus ex sententiā rem gesserat, in invidiam recidit. Nihil enim eum non efficere posse ducebant. Ex quo fiebat, ut omnia minus prospere gesta culpæ tribuerent, quum eum aut negligenter, aut malitiose fecisse loquerentur: 10 sicut tum accidit. Nam, corruptum a rege capere Cymen noluisse, arguebant. Itaque huic maxime putamus malo fuisse nimiam opinionem ingenii atque virtutis. Timebatur enim non minus, quàm diligebatur, ne, secundā fortunā magnisque opibus elatus, tyrannidem 15 concupisceret. Quibus rebus factum est, ut absentī magistratum abrogarent, et alium in ejus locum substituerent. Id ille ut audivit, domum reverti noluit, et se Pactyen contulit, ibique tria castellā communiit, Bornos, Bisanthen, Neontīchos; manūque collectā primus 20 Græcæ civitatis in Thraciam introiit, gloriosius existi-

VII. Alcibiades is removed from his command, and retires to Thrace, in the year B. C. 407.

1. non — diuturna] ‘Was none too lasting.’

7. ex sententiā] ‘To their mind,’ i. e., of the Athenians.

Nihil — ducebant] ‘For there was nothing that they thought he could not do;’ ‘they thought he could do everything.’ Non after a general negative gives it the force of a general affirmative: H. 585, 1.

10. malitiose] ‘With evil intent.’ i. e., with traitorous designs.

11. corruptum] ‘Because he had been bribed.’ H. 578, II.

12. huic — malo] Two datives. H. 390.

13. opinionem — virtutis] ‘The opinion which they (i. e., the Athenians) had of his ability and valor.’ Ingenii and virtutis are objective genitives. H. 396, II.

16. absenti] Sc. ei, dative of disadvantage.

20. Neontīchos] A Greek word, equivalent to Newcastle.

collectā — civitatis] ‘And was the first man of a Greek state that assembled,’ etc.

21. in Thraciam] The interior mans, barbarorum prædā locupletari, quàm Grajorum. Quā ex re creverat quum famā, tum opibus, magnamque amicitiam sibi cum quibusdam regibus Thraciæ pepererat.

- 5 VIII. Neque tamen a caritate patriæ potuit recedere. Nam quum apud Ægos flumen Philōcles, prætor Atheniensium, classem constituisset suam, neque longe abesset Lysander, prætor Lacedæmoniorum, qui in eo erat occupatus, ut bellum quàm diutissime duceret, quòd ipsis pecunia a rege suppeditabatur, contra Atheniensibus exhaustis præter arma et naves nihil erat super: Alcibiādes ad exercitum venit Atheniensium, ibique præsentē vulgo agere cœpit; si vellent, se coacturum Lysandrum dimicare, aut pacem petere 15 spondet; Lacedæmonios eo nolle classe configere quòd pedestribus copiis plus, quàm navibus, valerent; sibi autem esse facile Seuthen, regem Thracum, adducere, ut eos terrā depelleret; quo facto necessario aut classe conflicturum, aut bellum compositurum. Id etsi vere 20 dictum Philōcles animadvertēbat, tamen postulata facere noluit, quòd sentiebat, se, Alcibiāde recepto, nulmust have been intended, as there had long before this been Greek colonies on the coast.

VIII. In his exile Alcibiades remains devoted to his country, but his counsels are disregarded.

5. Neque tamen] Cf. neque vero, ch. V. line 16.

6. Nam quum] The conclusion begins at line 12.

Ægos flumen] Called from the Greek Ægospotami, i. e., 'Goat's River.' It was a small stream in the Thracian Chersonese, directly opposite to Lampsācus, about two miles from Sestos. The Latin writers translate only the limited noun, retaining the Greek genitive.

Philōcles] There were five other Athenian commanders, but Philōcles was acting general the day of the battle. He was taken prisoner, and shortly afterwards put to death.

9. in eo — ut] 'Was intent upon.'

12. erat super] Unusual for suppererat; a case of hyperbaton. H. 704, IV.

13. præsente vulgo] 'In the presence of the soldiery;' probably in order to gain their support. agere] 'To declare.'

lius momenti apud exercitum futurum, et, si quid secundi evenisset, nullam in eā re suam partem fore; contra ea, si quid adversi accidisset, se unum ejus delicti futurum reum. Ab hoc discedens Alcibiādes, “quoniam,” inquit, “victoriæ patriæ repugnans, illud moneo, juxta hostem castra habeas nautica; periculum est enim, ne immodestiā militum vestrorum occasio detur Lysandro vestri opprimendi exercitus.” Neque ea res illum fefellit. Nam Lysander, quum per speculatores comperisset, vulgum Atheniensium in terram prædatum exisse, navesque pæne inanes relictas, tempus rei gerendæ non dimisit, eoque impetu bellum totum delevit.

IX. At Alcibiādes, victis Atheniensibus non satis tuta eadem loca sibi arbitrans, penitus in Thraciam se supra Propontidem abdidit, sperans, ibi facillime suam fortunam oculi posse. Falso. Nam Thraces, postquam eum cum magnā pecuniā venisse senserunt, insidias fecerunt; qui ea, quæ apportarat, abstulerunt, ipsum capere non potuerunt. Ille cernens, nullum locum sibi tutum in Græciā propter potentiam Lacedæmoniorum, ad Pharnabāzum in Asiam transiit;

4. futurum reum] ‘Would be held accountable.’

5. illud moneo] ‘I give you this warning;’ the accusative for the genitive. H. 410, 3, 1).

6. castra—nautica] ‘A naval camp.’ The ships of the ancients were drawn ashore, and sometimes protected by works, while the men pitched their tents around them; in the present instance it seems to mean the place where the ships were moored. Habeas is in the subjunctive after ut omitted. H. 493, 2.

7. ne] Is dependent upon periculum. H. 493, 3.

vestrorum] Alcibiādes now includes the other commanders in his remarks.

11. tempus—gerendæ] ‘The chance to strike a blow.’

13. delevit] ‘Put an end to.’

IX. Alcibiades leaves Thrace, and, crossing over to Asia, tries to win the Persian king as an ally to the Athenians.

15. penitus—se—abdidit] ‘Retired into the interior.’

17. fortunam] ‘His condition.’ Falso] ‘In vain.’ Sc. sperravit.

22. Pharnabāzum] The satrap

quem quidem adeò suā cepit humanitate, ut eum nemo in amicitia antecederet. Namque ei Grynium dederat in Phrygia castrum, ex quo quinquagena talenta vectigalis capiebat. Quā fortunā Alcibiades non erat contentus, neque Athēnas victas Lacedæmoniis servire poterat pati. Itaque ad patriam liberandam omni ferebatur cogitatione. Sed videbat, id sine rege Perse non posse fieri; ideoque eum amicum sibi cupiebat adjungi; neque dubitabat, facile se consecuturum, si modo ejus conveniendi habuisset potestatem. Nam Cyrum fratrem ei bellum clam parare, Lacedæmoniis adjuvantibus, sciebat; id si aperuisset, magnam se initurum gratiam videbat.

X. Hoc quum moliretur, peteretque a Pharnabāzo, ut ad regem mitteretur, eodem tempore Critias ceteriof the Persian provinces near the Hellespont.

1. cepit humanitate] 'Charmed by his culture.'

2. in amicitia] i. e., in Pharnabāzus's.

Grynium] Was a small fortress in the south-west of Mysia. Though thus situated, it belonged to the satrapy of Pharnabāzus, for which Phrygia seems to have been the general term.

3. castrum] Is seldom found except in connection with names of places; as Castrum Inui, Castrum Novum, etc.; otherwise castellum.

quinquagena] i. e., annually, as the distributive shows.

6. omni—cogitatione] Translate 'all his thoughts were turned.'

7. rege Perse] Artaxerxes Mneumon, who reigned from B. C. 405 to B. C. 359.

10. ejus conveniendi potestatem]

'An opportunity of meeting him.'

11. Cyrum] Cyrus the Younger, who, having assembled an army of 10,000 Greeks and 100,000 Persians, rebelled against his brother, B. C. 401, and fell at Canaxa, near the Euphrātes, the same year.

X. Pharnabazus, instigated by the Thirty Tyrants at Athens, causes Alcibiades to be assassinated in the year B. C. 404.

15. Critias] A man of high rank, large wealth, and eminent abilities, who, as a poet, orator, and historical writer, is mentioned with praise. He was a pupil of Socrātes and an uncle of Plato. As chief of the Thirty Tyrants, he displayed such a lust of power, such malignity and atrocity, that he brought ruin on himself and his party.

que tyranni Atheniensium certos homines ad Lysandrum in Asiam miserant, qui eum certiozem facerent, nisi Alcibiadem sustulisset, nihil earum rerum fore ratum, quas ipse Athēnis constituisset; quare, si suas res gestas manere vellet, illum persequeretur. His Laco rebus commotus statuit accuratius sibi agendum cum Pharnabāzo. Huic ergo renuntiat, quæ regi cum Lacedæmoniis essent, nisi Alcibiadem vivum aut mortuum sibi tradidisset. Non tulit hunc satrapes, et violare clementiam, quàm regis opes minui maluit. Itaque missi Susamithren et Bagæum ad Alcibiadem interficiendum, quum ille esset in Phrygiâ; iterque ad regem compararet. Missi clam vicinitali, in quâ tum Alcibiades erat, dant negotium, ut eum interficiant. Illi quum ferro aggredi non auderent, noctu ligna contulerunt circa casam eam, in quâ quiescebat, eaque succenderunt, ut incendio conficerent, quem manu superari posse diffidebant. Ille autem ut sonitu flammæ est excitatus, certos] 'Trustworthy;' not 'certain' in the sense of quosdam.

1. tyranni] Who had been placed in power at Athens, by Lysander, on the overthrow of the democracy at the close of the Peloponnesian war.

3. nisi — sustulisset] 'If he did not make away with.'

4. ratum] 'Secure.'

5. res gestas manere] 'His measures to be permanent.'

Laco] i. e., Lysander.

7. Huic — essent] 'He told him, therefore, that he disclaimed the alliance of the king with the Lacedæmonians.'

9. Non — satrapes] 'The satrap did not hold out against him.' Satrapes is a Persian word, which the Latin writers sometimes translate by prætor or præfectus. We find satraps, satrapis, and satrapem, but the other forms are of the first declension.

10. clementiam] 'The claims of humanity.'

11. Susamithren] The uncle of Pharnabāzus; Bagæus was a brother of the satrap.

13. clam] Belongs to dant.

14. interficiant] Is in the plural, because vicinitali is a collective noun. H. 461.

Illi] i. e., vicini, implied in vicinitali.

17. quem, etc.] 'One who they did not believe could,' etc.

18. ut] 'As soon as,' like postquam, ubi, etc., is in narratives generally followed by the historical perfect.

sonitu] 'Crackling.' Justin says he was burned in his chamber.

etsi gladius ei erat subductus, familiaris sui subalare telum eripuit. Namque erat cum eo quidam ex Arcadiā hospes, qui numquam discedere voluerat. Hunc sequi se jubet, et id, quod in præsentiā vestimentorum 5 fuit, arripit. His in ignem ejectis, flammæ vim transiit. Quem ut barbari incendium effugisse viderunt, telis eminus missis interfecerunt, caputque ejus ad Pharnabāzum retulerunt. At mulier, quæ cum eo vivere consuerat, muliebri suā veste contactum ædificiū incendio 10 mortuum cremavit, quod ad vivum interimendum erat comparatum. Sic Alcibiādes, annos circiter quadraginta natus, diem obiit supremum.

XI. Hunc infamatum a plerisque tres gravissimi historici summis laudibus extulerunt: Thucydīdes, qui 15 ejusdem ætatis fuit; Theopompus, qui post aliquanto natus, et Timæus; qui quidem duo maledicentissimi, nescio quo modo, in illo uno laudando conspirant. Namque ea, quæ supra scripsimus, de eo prædicarunt, atque hoc amplius: quum Athēnis, splendidissimā civitate, 20 natus esset, omnes splendore ac dignitate superasse vitæ; postquam inde expulsus Thebas venerit,

1. erat subductus] 'Had been secretly withdrawn.'

subalare telum] 'Side-weapon; ' probably a dagger that could be worn sub ala, 'under the arm.'

2. eripuit] i. e., from its sheath.

5. arripit] 'Catches up.'

8. mulier] Her name was Timandra.

10. cremavit] The Greeks sometimes buried their dead and sometimes burned them.

11. quadraginta] He is supposed to have been at least forty-five years old at the time of his death.

- XI. Some authors blame, others praise Alcibiades.

13. gravissimi] 'Very authoritative.'

14. summis—extulerunt] "Thucydīdes extols only the capacity and warlike enterprise of Alcibiādes. His picture of the dispositions and conduct of Alcibiādes is the reverse of eulogy." Grote, vol. vi. p. 23.

15. Theopompus] Was born at Chios about B. C. 380. He was a considerable orator as well as historian, but of his works only a few fragments remain.

16. et Timæus] Et connects Theopompus and Timæus as together opposed to Thucydīdes; it forms no exception to the rule adeò studiis eorum inservisse, ut nemo eum labore corporisque viribus posset æquiparare (omnes enim Bœotii magis firmitati corporis, quam ingenii acumini inserviunt); eundem apud Lacedæmonios, quorum moribus summa virtus in patientiā ponebatur, sic duritiæ se dedisse, ut parsimoniā victus atque cultus omnes Lacedæmonios vinceret; venisse ad Persas, apud quos summa laus esset fortiter venari, luxuriose vivere: horum sic imitatum consuetudinem, ut illi ipsi eum in his maxime admirarentur. Quibus rebus effecisse, ut, apud quoscumque esset, princeps poneretur, habereturque carissimus. Sed satis de hoc; reliquos ordiamur.

stated on page 118. Timæus was a Sicilian, who died B. C. 256, at the age of ninety-six years. Some fragments only of his work are extant.

eorum] i. e., Thebanorum, implied in Thebæ.

5. patientiā] 'Endurance.'

6. victus—cultus] 'Of diet and manner of life.'

1. studiis] 'Favorite pursuits.'

12. satis] Sc. scripsimus.

EPAMINONDAS.

I. EPAMINONDAS, Polymnīdis filius, Thebānus. De hoc priusquam scribimus, hæc præcipienda videntur lectoribus, ne alienos mores ad suos referant; neve ea, quæ ipsis leviora sunt, pari modo apud ceteros fuisse arbitrentur. Scimus enim, musicen nostris moribus abesse a principis personā; saltare vero etiam in vitiis poni: quæ omnia apud Græcos et grata, et laude digna ducuntur. Quum autem exprimere imaginem consuetudinis atque vitæ velimus Epaminondæ, nihil videmur 10 debere prætermittere, quod pertineat ad eam declarandam. Quare dicemus primum de genere ejus; deinde, quibus disciplinis et a quibus sit eruditus; tum de moribus ingenique facultatibus, et si qua alia memoriâ digna erunt; postremo de rebus gestis, quæ a plurimis 15 animi anteponuntur virtutibus.

II. Natus est igitur patre, quo diximus, genere

I. Remarks of the author on the customs of the Greeks, and a statement of what he proposes to treat.

2. hæc — videntur] ‘The following directions seem necessary to be given.’

3. ad suos] Sc. mores, i. e., as a standard of judgment.

4. ipsis leviora] ‘Rather trivial in their sight.’

6. abesse a] ‘Is inconsistent with.’

in vitiis poni] ‘Is set down as a fault.’ Cf. Cicero, pro Murena, sec. 13, nemo fere saltat sobrius, nisi forte insanit. But sacred dances were customary at Rome.

8. exprimere imaginem] ‘To draw a picture.’

9. videmur debere] ‘It seems that we ought.’

10. pertineat] Subjunctive of result.

declarandam] ‘To throw light on.’

12. quibus disciplinis] ‘In what branches of learning.’

II. The youth and education of Epaminondas.

16. igitur] Here a transition particle, resuming the interrupted narrative, like autem in ch. IV. line 14.

diximus] i. e., eum natum esse.

honesto, pauper jam a majoribus relictus; eruditus autem sic, ut nemo Thebānus magis. Nam et citharizare, et cantare ad chordarum sonum doctus est a Dionysio, qui non minore fuit in musicis gloriā, quā Damon aut Lamprus, quorum pervulgata sunt nomina; 5 cantare tibiis ab Olympiodōro, saltare a Calliphronē. At philosophiæ præceptorem habuit Lysim, Tarentinum, Pythagorēum; cui quidem sic fuit deditus, ut adolescens tristem et severum senem omnibus æqualibus suis in familiaritate anteposuerit; neque prius eum 10 a se dimiserit, quā in doctrinis tanto antecesserit condiscipulos, ut facile intelligi posset, pari modo superaturum omnes in ceteris artibus. Atque hæc ad nostram consuetudinem sunt levia, et potius contemnenda; at in Græciā utique olim magnæ laudi erant. 15 Postquam ephebus est factus et palæstræ operam dare cœpit, non tam magnitudini virium servivit, quā velocitati. Illam enim ad athletarum usum, hanc ad belli existimabat utilitatem pertinere. Itaque exercebatur plurimum currendo et luctando ad eum finem, quoad 20

1. eruditus] Sc. est. 'Was so well educated.'

2. nemo] Is used adjectively. H. 457, 1.

citharizare] Is a Greek word Latinized, used only by Nepos.

5. Damon] He and Lamprus were contemporaries of Pericles.

6. cantare tibiis] 'To play on the pipes.' The tibia was of various shapes and materials, and was the most common of the musical instruments among the Greeks and Romans. When the performer used two of these pipes at the same time, he was said canere or cantare tibiis.

8. Pythagorēum] Pythagōras was a celebrated Greek philosopher, who lived in the sixth century B. C.; he spent a great part of his life in Magna Græcia.

13. Atque] 'Now indeed.'

ad—consuetudinem] 'According to our customs.' But philosophical studies at least had become respectable in the time of Nepos.

16. palæstræ] The palæstra has been supposed by some to form a part of the gymnasium. Running, jumping, throwing quoits, wrestling, and boxing were the principal athletic exercises.

19. exercebatur] 'He trained himself.' The passive is here used in a reflexive sense.

20. ad eum finem, quoad] 'Only stans complecti posset atque contendere. In armis vero plurimum studii consumebat.

III. Ad hanc corporis firmitatem plura etiam animi bona accesserant. Erat enim modestus, prudens, 5 gravis, temporibus sapienter utens, peritus belli, fortis manu, animo maximo; adeò veritatis diligens, ut ne joco quidem mentiretur. Idem continens, clemens, patiensque admirandum in modum, non solum populi, sed etiam amicorum ferens injurias; in primis commissa 10 celans, quod interdum non minus prodest, quàm diserte dicere; studiosus audiendi: ex hoc enim facillime disci arbitrabatur. Itaque quum in circulum venisset, in quo aut de republicâ disputaretur, aut de philosophiâ sermo haberetur, numquam inde prius discessit, quàm 15 ad finem sermo esset adductus. Paupertatem adeò so far as.' This belongs only to luctando.

1. stans] There were two kinds of wrestling: in one the antagonists contended while standing, in the other while lying on the ground. The latter method was inconsistent with the purpose of Epaminondas, as he desired to increase his agility for the purposes of war, and not to become a finished wrestler.

posset] Subjunctive of time, with the accessory notion of purpose. H. 521.

III. The mental and moral characteristics of Epaminondas.

4. modestus] 'Unassuming.'

5. gravis] 'Staid;' as denoting sobriety of character.

temporibus] 'Opportunities.' Cf. Alcibiâdes, ch. I. line 12.

6. diligens] A participle in many cases becomes a mere adjective. This occurs when the word, having lost the element of time, expresses a permanent quality or condition; whereas, while it retained its participial signification, it expressed simply an act or state of its verb. Most of these words admit of comparison, and are frequently followed by the genitive. H. 399, 2, 1).

9. in primis — celans] '(And) especially a keeper of secrets.'

11. disci] 'That knowledge was acquired;' an infinitive without a subject, which is contained in the verb itself.

12. quum] 'Whenever;' repeated action is here denoted. H. 471, 3.

13. de republicâ disputaretur] 'There was a discussion of political questions;' the subjunctive is one of result.

facile perpessus est, ut de republicā nihil præter gloriā cepit, amicorum in se tuendo caruerit facultatibus: fidē ad alios sublevandos sæpe sic usus est, ut judicari possit, omnia ei cum amicis fuisse communia. Nam quum aut civium suorum aliquis ab hostibus esset 5 captus, aut virgo amici nubilis quæ propter paupertatem collocari non posset, amicorum consilium habebat, et, quantum quisque daret, pro facultatibus imperabat. Eamque summam quum fecerat, priusquam acciperet pecuniam, adducebat eum, qui quærebat, ad eos, qui 10 conferebant, eique ut ipsi numerarent, faciebat; ut ille, ad quem ea res perveniebat, sciret, quantum cuique deberet.

IV. Tentata autem ejus est abstinentia a Diomedonte, Cyzicēno. Namque is rogatu Artaxerxis regis 15 Epaminondam pecuniā corrumpendum suscepit. Hic magno cum pondere auri Thebas venit, et Micythum adolescentulum quinque talentis ad suam perduxit voluntatem, quem tum Epaminondas plurimum diligebat. Micythus Epaminondam convenit, et causam adventus 20 Diomedontis ostendit. At ille Diomedonti coram, caruerit] 'Did without.'

1. nihil — cepit] i. e., for his services.

2. in se tuendo] 'For his own support.'

3. fidē] Sc. amicorum; their confidence in him is meant.

4. possit] The present brings the possibility down to the times of the author.

6. virgo] 'Maiden daughter;' supply esset.

paupertatem] 'Narrowness of means,' requiring the practice of economy; inopia and egestas, galling poverty, involving suffering.

11. ipsi] Is the nominative.

IV. The incorruptibility of Epaminondas.

14. autem] Is here a transition particle, which may be omitted in translating.

15. Artaxerxis] i. e., Mnemōnis, who wished to counteract Spartan influence by securing the friendship of the Thebans.

17. pondere] The sum is said to have been 30,000 darics — about $160,000.

21. Diomedonti] Dative after inquit.

coram] 'To his face.'

10 Hunc Diomēdon quum rogaret, ut tuto exiret, suaque, quæ attulerat, liceret efferre: “Istud quidem,” inquit, “faciam; neque tuā causā, sed meā, ne, si tibi sit pecunia adempta, aliquis dicat, id ad me ereptum pervenisse, quod delatum accipere noluissem.” A quo quum quæ-

15 sisset, quò se deduci vellet, et ille Athēnas dixisset; præsidium dedit, ut tuto perveniret. Neque vero id satis habuit, sed etiam, ut inviolatus in navem ascenderet, per Chabriam Atheniensem, de quo supra mentionem fecimus, effecit. Abstinentiæ erit hoc satis tepecunia] May be either nominative or ablative. H. 419, V. and 3, 2).

1. Nihil] For non, is often used with verbs, rarely with adjectives.

2. gratis] A contracted ablative plural, from gratia, used adverbially.

facere] Follows paratus. H. 552, 3.

5. tuique similem] Similis is generally followed by the genitive when an internal or essential likeness is denoted. H. 399, 3, 2).

8. potueris] Subjunctive of concession, after quum. H. 515, I.

9. ego] The nominative of the personal pronouns of the first and second persons is expressed when they are emphatic or antithetic.

magistratui] ² To the government.'

11. Istud.] Is the regular demonstrative of the second person. H. 450.

12. tibi] Dative of disadvantage.

13. ereptum] 'By seizure.'

15. Athēnas] Sc. se velle deduci, and the whole is the object of dixisset.

17. satis] Is here an adjective. See below, erit satis.

18. supra] A brief sketch of the life of Chabrias forms a part of the extant works of Nepos. He died in the year B. C. 357.

19. Abstinentiæ, etc.] Arrange: hoc testimonium abstinentiæ erit satis. Cf. Aristides, ch. I. line 6.

stimonium. Plurima quidem proferre possumus; sed modus adhibendus est, quoniam uno hoc volumine vitam excellentium virorum complurium concludere constituimus, quorum separatim multis milibus versuum, complures scriptores ante nos explicarunt. 5

V. Fuit etiam disertus, ut nemo ei Thebānus par esset eloquentiā; neque minus concinnus in brevitate respondendi, quā in perpetuā oratione ornatus. Habuit obtrectatorem Meneclidem quendam, indidem Thebis, et adversarium in administrandā republicā, 10 satis exercitatum in dicendo, ut Thebānum scilicet: namque illi genti plus inest virium, quam ingenii. Is, quod in re militari florere Epaminondam videbat, hortari solebat Thebānos, ut pacem bello anteferrent, ne illius imperatoris opera desideraretur. Huic ille, 15 “Fallis,” inquit, “verbo cives tuos, quòd hos a bello revocas; otii enim nomine servitatem concilias. Nam

1. possumus] Possemus is found in some texts. The indicative here denotes real, unconditional ability.

sed modus — est] ‘But a limit must be set.’

4. quorum] ‘Sc. vitam. versuum] From verto, ‘turn,’ from the turning of the hand or writing instrument to a new line; we should say ‘pages,’ or ‘volumes,’ in the modern sense — terms inapplicable to the long papyrus or parchment rolls (volumina) of the ancients. Pliny speaks of pages (paginae) in letters, which were often written on wax tablets.

V. Epaminondas shows his adroitness in the aptness of his replies.

6. disertus ut] The adverbs

ita, sic, tam are often omitted with verbs and adjectives, and ut alone is equivalent to ita, etc., — ut.

10. Thebis] Ablative of source or origin. H. 425.

11. ut Thebānum scilicet] ‘For a Theban, you understand.’ Sc. exercitatum in dicendo esse expectari poterat, where Thebānum exercitatum esse would be the subject of poterat. Ut denotes a limitation by the comparison, and scilicet adds the notion of sarcasm.

15. imperatoris] Is appositive to illius, ‘as commander.’ The appositive often denotes not the character of the person or thing generally, but only during the time implied in the sentence.

16. verbo] ‘The word,’ i. e., ‘peace.’ Cf. otii nomine, below.

quòd hos — revocas] ‘In trying

- paritur pax bello. Itaque qui eā diutinā volunt frui, bello exercitati esse debent. Quare si principes Græciæ vultis esse, castris est vobis utendum, non palæstrā.” Idem ille Meneclides quum huic objiceret, quòd liberos non haberet, neque uxorem duxisset; maximeque insolentiam, quòd sibi Agamemnōnis belli gloriam videretur consecutus: “at,” ille, “desine,” inquit, “Meneclidā, de uxore mihi exprobrare; nam nullius in istā re minus uti consilio volo.” (Habebat enim Meneclides suspicionem adulterii.) “Quòd autem me Agamemnōnem æmulari putas, falleris. Namque ille cum universā Græciā vix decem annis unam cepit urbem; ego contra ea unā urbe nostrā dieque uno totam Græciam, Lacedæmoniis fugatis, liberavi.”
- 15 VI. Idem quum in conventum venisset Arcādum, petens, ut societatem cum Thebānis et Argivis facerent; contraque Callistrātus, Atheniensium legatus, qui eloquentiā omnes eo præstabat tempore, postularet, ut potius amicitiam sequerentur Atticōrum, et in oratione to restrain.’ The imperfect here denotes an attempted action. H. 469, 1.

3. cultis] The Thebans are addressed.

5. neque uxorem duxisset] Celibacy was regarded as inconsistent with patriotism in the early times of Greece and Rome.

6. sibi] Dative after videretur.

Agamemnōnis — gloriam] ‘Agamemnon’s glory in war.’

10. Quòd — putas] ‘As to your supposing.’

11. falleris] ‘You deceive yourself.’ H. 465, 1.

13. Lacedæmoniis fugatis] At the battle of Leuctra, in the year B. C. 371.

VI. The eloquence of Epaminondas, in opposition to Callistratus, B. C. 370.

15. quum — venisset] The conclusion begins with huic in respondendo Epaminondas, below.

17. Callistrātus] A celebrated Athenian orator, whose eloquence excited the admiration and fired the ambition of Demosthēnes. In public affairs he generally sided with Sparta.

18. omnes] Omnibus is the more usual construction.

20. multa] The neuter accusative of a pronoun or of a numeral adjective (unum, multa, pauca) sometimes follows a verb to express the extent of the action.

eisque hoc posuisset; animadvertere debere Arcādas, quales utraque civitas civis procreasset, ex quibus de ceteris possent judicare; Argīvos enim fuisse Orestem et Alcmaëōnem, matricidas; Thebis Œdīpum natum, qui quum patrem suum interfecisset, ex matre liberos procreasse: hic in respondendo Epaminondas, quum de ceteris perorasset, postquam ad illa duo opprobria pervenit, admirari se dixit stultitiam rhetoris Attīci, qui non animadverterit, innocentes illos natos domi, scelere admissio, quum patriā essent expulsi, receptos esse ab Atheniensibus. 2. utraque] Duo, 'two,' in opposition to any other number, is used of two objects hitherto unmentioned, or when it is unknown that only two exist. When two objects already spoken of are to be viewed conjointly, ambo is employed; while uterque represents them as separated in space or time.

3. Orestem] He killed his mother, Clytemnestra, because she had murdered his father, Agamemnon. Alcmaëon slew his mother, Eriphyle, for having betrayed his father, Amphiarāus.

4. matricidas] An objective compound; i. e., one in which one element is related to the other as a grammatical object.

Œdīpum] He was a son of Laus, king of Thebes, and Iocaste. Having been exposed on Mount Cithæron, he was found by a Corinthian shepherd, and reared by the king of Corinth. Having reached the age of manhood, though ignorant of his birth, he resolved to visit Thebes. On his way thither, he met Laus on the road between Delphi and Daulis. In a scuffle provoked by the charioteer of the king, Laus was slain by his son, who knew neither the rank of the king, nor his relationship to him. Afterwards, having destroyed the Sphinx, a monster which was molesting the Thebans, he married his mother, Iocaste. Some years thereafter, he discovered his origin, and the crimes he had ignorantly committed. Filled with grief and remorse, he banished himself from Thebes, and retired to Attica, where he died in a grove sacred to the Furies, near Colonus.

5. qui quum] Is equivalent to et quum is.

6. procreasse] Supply eum as subject.

7. duo opprobria] i. e., against the Thebans and Argives.

8. rhetoris] This term is here used contemptuously.

9. animadverterit] Subjunctive of cause or reason. H. 517.

1. legati] 'When he was ambassador.'

5. Leuctricâ pugnâ] Leuctra was a village in the south of Bœotia, not far from Plataea; Cleombrôtus, the Spartan king, was defeated and slain.

VII. Epaminondas, forgetful of injuries, rescues the army, and assumes a grave responsibility for the salvation of the state.

9. duceret] Subjunctive, as expressing the thought of Epami-nondas. H. 520, II.

12. eo — deducta] 'Had been brought to that pass.'

16. privatus — militis] 'In a private capacity, as a common soldier.'

19. hoc — fecit] i. e., 'acted in this way.'

20. fuit illustre] Sc. hoc testimonium.

22. vir fortis] He was one of the most distinguished and successful commanders of his age, and second only to his friend Epaminondas.

venissent, ob eamque rem imperium iis esset abrogatum, atque in eorum locum alii prætores successissent: Epaminondas populiscito non paruit, idemque ut facerent, persuasit collegis, et bellum, quod susceperat, gessit. Namque animadvertēbat, nisi id fecisset, totum 5 exercitum propter prætorum imprudentiam inscientiamque belli periturum. Lex erat Thebis, quæ morte multabat, si quis imperium diutius retinisset, quàm lege præfinitum foret. Hanc Epaminondas quum reipublicæ conservandæ causā latam videret, ad perniciem civi- 10 tatis conferre noluit; et quattuor mensibus diutius, quam populus jusserat, gessit imperium.

VIII. Postquam domum reditum est, collegæ ejus hoc crimine accusabantur. Quibus ille permisit, ut omnem causam in se transferrent, suâque operâ factum 15 contenderent, ut legi non obedirent. Quâ defensione illis periculo liberatis, nemo Epaminondam responsurum putabat, quòd, quid diceret, non haberet. At ille in judicium venit; nihil eorum negavit, quæ adversarii crimini dabant, omniaque, quæ collegæ dixerant, con- 20 fessus est, neque recusavit, quo minus legis pœnam subiret; sed unum ab iis petivit, ut in periculo suo scriberent: "Epaminondas a Thebânis morte multatus

9. foret] Unusual for esset.

11. conferre] Repeat as subject hanc (legem).

mensibus] Ablative of measure of difference. H. 418.

VIII. Epaminondas defends himself when accused, and is honorably acquitted.

13. reditum est] By the passive of intransitive verbs, it is simply asserted that the action takes place, usually without special reference to the agent, which, however, is sometimes expressed by the ablative with a preposition.

14. crimine] The ablative of means.

18. quid — haberet] 'He would not know what to say; non habeo quod dicam is equivalent to 'I have nothing to say.'

20. crimini dabant] 'Alleged against him,' the dative of the person being understood. H. 390, 2.

periculo] 'In the record of his condemnation.'

est, quòd eos coëgit apud Leuctra superare Lacedæmonios, quos ante se imperatorem nemo Bœotiōrum ausus fuit aspicere in acie; quòdque uno prælio non solum Thebas ab interitu retraxit, sed etiam universam Græciam in libertatem vindicavit, eoque res utrorumque perduxit, ut Thebāni Spartam oppugnarent, Lacedæmonii satis haberent, si salvi esse possent; neque prius bellare destitit, quam Messēne restitutā urbem eorum obsidione clausit." Hæc quum dixisset, risus omnium cum hilaritate coörtus est; neque quisquam iudex ausus est de eo ferre suffragium. Sic a iudicio capitis maximā discessit gloriā.

IX. Hic extremo tempore imperator apud Mantineam quum acie instructā audacius instaret hostes, cognitus a Lacedæmoniis, quòd in unius pernicie ejus patriæ sitam putabant salutem, universi in unum impetum fecerunt, neque prius abscesserunt, quàm magnā cæde multisque occisis fortissime ipsum Epaminondam ausus fuit] The perfect participle with fuit expresses a lasting condition.

2. ante se imperatorem] 'Before he was commander.' Se is used for eum, as if the language of Epaminondas were reported in indirect discourse.

6. Spartam oppugnarent] This could not have been cited by Epaminondas as a fact, and the insolence of the whole speech, as here given, is quite inconsistent with his character.

Lacedæmonii] The omission of the conjunction (asyndeton) heightens the contrast.

8. Messēne restitutā] Ithōme had been captured, and the whole district subdued, by the Spartans, in the year B. C. 455.

Epaminondas restored the independence of the Messenians, in order to check the ambition of Sparta.

11. iudicio capitis] 'A capital trial.'

IX. Epaminondas falls victorious at Mantinea, B. C. 362.

14. instaret hostes] Unusual, for instaret hostibus.

15. cognitus] Agrees with Epaminondas, the intended subject, but, by an anacoluthon, universi (Lacedæmonii) is made the subject.

17. abscesserunt] In compound verbs, abs is used before c, p, and t. H. 338, III. 1.

magnā cæde, etc.] The ablative of manner. 'Amid great carnage, pugnantem, sparo eminus percussum, concidere viderunt. Hujus casu aliquantum retardati sunt Bœotii; neque tamen prius pugna excesserunt, quàm repugnantes profligarunt. At Epaminondas, quum animadverteret, mortiferum se vulnus accepisse, simulque, si fer- 5

vero stirps mihi potest deesse. Namque ex me natam relinquo pugnam Leuctricam, quæ non modo mihi superstes, sed etiam immortalis sit necesse est.” Quo and after many had been slain.’

1. pugnantem] ‘While fighting.’

sparo] This missile had, fixed to a wooden shaft (hastile), a pointed iron head (ferrum), with a curved blade attached. It was not a regular weapon of warfare. It is called by Virgil agrestis sparus, and might be used by rude levies of the peasantry.

concidere] Pausanias says that he was killed by Gryllus, the son of Xenophon.

7. usque eo — quoad] ‘Until.’ H. 522, I.

X. His apology for not marrying. At his death, Thebes loses her pre-eminence.

14. diceret] i. e., Pelopidas. The subjunctive follows quum, and is in the same construction with reprehenderetur.

vide — ne] ‘Beware lest.’ H. 558, VI.

15. relicturus sis] Subjunctive of cause or reason. H. 517.

16. ex me natam] ‘As a daughter.’

17. Leuctricam] A proper adjective is often equivalent to the English objective with of. H. 441, 5.

mihi superstes] ‘Survive me.’ H. 391.

18. necesse est] Observe the subject and result preceding. In this construction ut is usually omitted. H. 495, 2.

Quo tempore] This was the year B. C. 379.

tempore, duce Pelopīdā, exsules Thebas occuparunt, et præsidium Lacedæmoniorum ex arce expulerunt, Epaminondas, quamdiu facta est cædes civium, domo se tenuit; quòd neque defendere malos volebat, neque
 5 impugnare, ne manus suorum sanguine cruentaret. Namque omnem civilem victoriam funestam putabat. Idem, postquam apud Cadmēam cum Lacedæmoniis pugna cœpit in primis stetit. Hujus de virtutibus vitæque satis erit dictum, si hoc unum adjunxero, quod
 10 nemo it infitias, Thebas et ante Epaminondam natum, et post ejusdem interitum, perpetuò alieno paruisse imperio; contra ea, quamdiu ille præfuerit reipublicæ, caput fuisse totius Græciæ. Ex quo intelligi potest, unum hominem pluris, quàm civitatem, fuisse.

3. domo] The ablative of place; se tenere is thus often followed by an ablative, as castris, oppido, etc.

4. malos] i. e., those who sympathized and acted with the Spartans.

6. civilem] 'Over one's fellow-citizens.'

7. Cadmēam] So called from Cadmus, the mythical founder of Thebes.

10. it infitias] Infitiatur would be more classical. Ire infitias is said not to occur in Cicero or Cæsar.

11. paruisse] By this is meant only that Thebes generally held a secondary place among the Grecian states.

14. pluris] 'Of more importance;' genitive of value. H. 402, 1.

HANNIBAL.

I. HANNIBAL, Hamilcāris filius, Carthaginiensis. Si verum est, quod nemo dubitat, ut populus Romānus omnes gentes virtute superarit, non est infitiandum, Hannibālem tanto prāstitisse ceteros imperatores prudentiā, quanto populus Romānus antecedit fortitudine cunctas nationes. Nam quotiescumque cum eo congressus est in Italiā, semper discessit superior. Quod nisi domi civium suorum invidiā debilitatus esset, Romānos videtur superare potuisse. Sed multorum obtretractatio devicit unius virtutem. Hic autem velut hereditate relictum odium paternum erga Romānos sic conservavit, ut prius animam, quam id, deposuerit; qui quidem, quum patriā pulsus esset, et alienarum opum

I. Hannibal's genius for command, and his hatred of the Romans.

1. Hamilcāris] Hamilcar Barcas, the father of Hannibal, was one of the greatest generals that Carthage ever produced. Cato said that in comparison with him no king was worth mentioning. He fell in Spain, in the year B. C. 229, when Hannibal, according to Mommsen, was twenty years old.

2. quod] For de with the ablative; only the neuter of a pronoun can thus follow dubito.

ut] Such expressions as verum est take more frequently the infinitive alone, or the accusative with the infinitive. Si verum est — ut is by some explained as equivalent here to si vere factum est — ut. Z. § 623.

4. prāstitisse — imperatores] Hannibal himself admitted the claims of Alexander the Great and Pyrrhus to be ranked as great generals.

5. antecedit] The subjunctive is here used on account of the accusative with the infinitive preceding. H. 527, 3.

6. cum eo] i. e., populo Romano.

7. Quod nisi] Quod denotes the connection of the thought here expressed with the preceding statement. Translate: 'Now, if he had not been.' H. 453, 6.

9. videtur — potuisse] 'He might, it seems, have overcome.'

10. virtutem] 'Ability.'

12. qui quidem] 'Since in fact — he.'

13. pulsus esset — indigeret] Observe the sequence of events deindigeret, numquam destiterit animo bellare cum Romānis.

II. Nam ut omittam Philippum, quem absens hostem reddidit Romānis; omnium his temporibus potentissimus rex Antiöchus fuit. Hunc tantā cupiditate incendit bellandi, ut usque a rubro mari arma conatus sit inferre Italiæ. Ad quem quum legati venissent Romāni, qui de ejus voluntate explorarent darentque operam, consiliis clandestinis ut Hannibālem in suspicio-

10 nem regi adducerent, tanquam ab ipsis corruptum alia, atque antea, sentire; neque id frustra fecissent, idque Hannibal comperisset, seque ab interioribus consiliis segregari vidisset: tempore dato adiit ad regem, eique quum multa de fide suā et odio in Romānos commemo-noted by different tenses, which are otherwise in the same construction.

1. animo] 'In thought.'

II. Hannibal incites Philip of Macedonia and Antiochus of Syria to take up arms against the Romans; he gives an account of his oath of everlasting enmity to the Romans.

3. Nam] This causal introduces the proof of the last assertion. H. 587, V.

ut omittam] 'To leave unmentioned.' Philip V., the son of Demetrius II., reigned from B.C. 220 to B.C. 179. He was twice engaged in war with the Romans, but his power was broken by the battle of Cynoscephälæ, in the year B. C. 197.

absens] i. e., while he was in Italy.

4. omnium] i. e., regum, rex belonging to potentissimus.

5. Antiöchus] Surnamed the Great, reigned from B. C. 223 to B. C. 187. His war with the Romans lasted from B. C. 192 to B. C. 189.

6. rubro mari] The author means the Mare Erythræum, lying between Arabia and India.

10. regi] 'With the king;' the dative for the possessive genitive. H. 398, 5.

tanquam] Limits corruptum only.

11. sentire] Follows suspicionem. Supply eum, i. e., Hannibālem, as subject.

neque] Quum is to be repeated here.

12. se interioribus — segregari] 'Was excluded from his more secret plans.'

13. tempore dato] 'When an opportunity presented itself.' Cf. p. 144, line 4.

14. quum multa — commemorasset] Translate: 'after reminding him of his many manifestations of his good faith,' etc.

rasset, hoc adjunxit: "Pater meus," inquit, "Hamilcar, puerulo me, utpote non amplius novem annos nato, in Hispaniam imperator proficiscens Carthagine, Jovi optimo maximo hostias immolavit. Quæ divina res dum conficiebatur, quæsivit a me, vellemne secum in castra 5 proficisci? Id quum libenter accepissem, atque ab eo petere cœpisssem, ne dubitaret ducere; tum ille, "faciam," inquit, "si mihi fidem, quam postulo, dederis." Simul me ad aram adduxit, apud quam sacrificare instituerat, eamque, ceteris remotis, tenentem jurare jussit, num- 10 quam me in amicitia cum Românis fore. Id ego jusjurandum patri datum usque ad hanc ætatem ita conservavi, ut nemini dubium esse debeat, quin reliquo tempore eâdem mente sim futurus. Quare, si quid amice de Românis cogitabis, non imprudenter feceris, si me 15 celaris; quum quidem bellum parabis, te ipsum frustra beris, si non me in eo principem posueris."

2. puerulo me] The ablative absolute of time, belonging to proficiscens. H. 431, 2.

3. Jovi] The Greek and Roman authors called foreign divinities by the names of the Greek and Roman gods, according to their assumed similarity. The Phœnician Baal is here meant.

optimo maximo] Without a conjunction, when used in connection with prayers and sacrifices.

4. divina res] 'Religious rite,' i. e., the sacrifice.

5. a me] Quæro, peto, and postulo never take two accusatives, but always have the ablative of the person with a preposition.

6. libenter accepissem] i. e., with the ear or mind; 'had heard with pleasure.'

10. tenentem] Sc. me; this added solemnity to the oath. Oaths were confirmed, also, by the images of the gods, as now by the Bible or the crucifix.

11. jusjurandum] A spurious compound; i. e., one which consists of two unaltered words in the nominative, and which may again be resolved into its constituent parts. Cf. respublica.

14. sim futurus] The subjunctive with quin, after non dubium, implied in nemini dubium. H. 498, 3.

15. feceris] The use of the future perfect for the future in the consecutive clause here denotes the act as simultaneous with that expressed by celaris in the following conditional clause, and both these clauses form the conclusion to the condition, si quid cogitabis. H. 473, 1.

III. Hac igitur, quā diximus, ætate cum patre in Hispaniam profectus est; cujus post obitum, Hasdrubāle imperatore suffecto, equitatu omni præfuit. Hoc quoque interfecto, exercitus summam imperii ad eum delatit. Id Carthaginem delatum publice comprobatum est. Sic Hannibal, minor quinque et viginti annis natus imperator factus, proximo triennio omnes gentes Hispaniæ bello subegit; Saguntum, fœderatam civitatem, vi expugnavit; tres exercitus maximos comparavit. Ex his unum in Africam misit, alterum cum Hasdrubāle fratre in Hispaniā reliquit, tertium in Italiam secum duxit. Saltum Pyrenæum transiit. Quacumque iter fecit, cum omnibus incolis conflixit; neminem, nisi victum, dimisit. Ad Alpes posteaquam venit, quæ Italiam

III. After Hasdrubal's death Hannibal is elected commander-in-chief; he captures Saguntum, B. C. 219, and crossing the Pyrenees and the Alps, invades Italy, B. C. 218.

1. quā diximus] Sc. eum patre profectum esse. Cf. Epaminondas, p. 154, line 16.

3. imperatore] Belongs to the predicate, and agrees with Hasdrubāle in case. This construction is, with passive participles, confined mainly to the nominative and accusative.

5. Id] i. e., the act of conferring on him the supreme command.

6. annis] The ablative after minor (major), with natus added as a complement, is uncommon. Hannibal was older than the author represents him, as he became general in the year B. C. 221.

8. Saguntum] The capture of this place cost Hannibal a siege of nearly eight months, and was the cause of the second Punic war. The modern name, Murviadro, is a corruption of muri veteres.

fœderatam] i. e., cum Romānis, which would readily be understood by a Roman reader.

10. Hasdrubāle] He was worthy of his father and brother. After many years of efficient service as a general, he was defeated and slain in the battle on the Metaurus, in the year B. C. 207.

12. Pyrenæum] This range of mountains extends from the Atlantic to the Mediterranean, about two hundred and seventy miles, separating France from Spain.

13. incolis] Some Gallic tribes allowed Hannibal to pass without resistance.

14. Alpes] These mountains, from their situation and difficulty of passage, have been a prominent feature in the military history of Europe from the earliest times to the present century. The Gauls had crossed the Alps before the Carthaginians. What pass Han-ab Galliā sejungunt, quas nemo umquam cum exercitu ante eum, præter Hercūlem Grajum, transierat, quo facto is hodie saltus Grajus appellatur: Alpīcos, conantes prohibere transitu, concidit, loca patefecit, itinera muniit, effecit, ut eā elephantus ornatus ire posset, quā antea unus homo inermis vix poterat reperere. Hac copias traduxit, in Italiamque pervenit. 5

IV. Confluxerat apud Rhodānum cum P. Cornelio Scipiōne consule eumque pepulerat. Cum hoc eodem nībal chose is uncertain — some say that of Mont Genève; Momm- sen and many others, that of the Little St. Bernard.

2. Hercūlem Grajum] Hercū- les is here so called in distinction from the Cretan, Phœnician, and Celtic Hercūles. The whole story is, of course, a myth.

3. Grajus] ‘Graian;’ the term is of native origin.

Alpīcos] These were the wild and hardy mountaineers.

5. ornatus] ‘With its equip- ments.’

elephantus, etc.] Observe in this and the following clause the an- titheses.

IV. Hannibal’s victories in Italy in the years B. C. 217 and 216.

8. Rhodānum] This river rises in the Alps, and, flowing through Lake Geneva, enters France through the Jura Mountains, and empties into the Gulf of Lyons, in the Mediterranean. As the successive peoples of the Aryan race migrated to the west, they gave each its own name, signify- ing “water” or “river,” to the streams. Not knowing that the name which the stream bore on their arrival at it already meant “water” or “river,” the new tribe, in many cases, added its own word to the name already given. Thus the roots rhe, dan, is, ter, — all of which mean “wa- ter,” — appear once, and some- times two or three times, in the names of very many of the rivers of Europe. For instance, we have Rho-dan-us, Rhe-n-us, E-r(h)i- dan-us, Is-ter, Dan-uv-ius, Tyr-as, Dan-as-ter (Dn-ies-ter).

P. — Scipiōne] Was the father of Scipio Africānus; he fell in Spain, in the year B. C. 211. For a Roman who claimed to belong to an ancient family, three names were thought indispensable — a prænomen (Publius), a nomen (Cornelius), and a cognomen (Sci- pio). The prænomen distinguished the individual, and is generally represented by a letter; the nomen marked the gens or clan; and the cognomen, generally derived from mental or bodily peculiarities, or from remarkable experiences, des- ignated the family. A very dis- tinguished person might have an agnomen, as Africānus, Asiaticus, etc., given him to commemorate his achievements. These names were used separately, or variously combined.

1. Clastidī] For Clastidii, apud or ad Clastidium would be the regular construction. The engagement really happened at the Ticīnus, and Clastidium was captured afterwards.

Padum] Called also Eridānus; it rises at the junction of the Maritime and Cottian Alps, and flows about three hundred and forty miles in an easterly direction into the Adriatic.

3. Tiberio] His full name was Tiberius Sempronius Longus; the nomen is here omitted.

Trebiam] A small river which rises in the Apennines, about ten miles from Genoa, and flows into the Po, about three miles west of Piacenza (Placentia).

4. utrosque] The plural is seldom used for two individuals.

5. Ligūres] The name of the people is often put for the name of the country. The Ligurians were a fierce and warlike race.

Apennīnum] Is a continuation of the Maritime Alps, and runs through the middle of the entire peninsula.

Etruriam] This was in early times a rich and populous country, and a formidable rival to Rome; it was also called Tuscia, and extended from Liguria to Latium, being bounded on the east and south by the Tiber.

7. dextro] He lost it entirely, according to all the other authorities. The whole army also suffered greatly on this march.

8. C. Flaminium] When censor, he built the Circus Flaminius and the Via Flaminia, in the year B. C. 220.

9. cum exercitu] Fifteen thousand Romans are said to have fallen here, and as many more to have been taken prisoners.

12. Hinc] From this point to the middle of the next chapter, Nepos has not followed the order of events.

Apuliam] Was situated on the Adriatic, east of Samnium and Lucania, and north of Calabria.

venerunt duo consules, C. Terentius et L. Æmilius. Utriusque exercitus uno prælio fugavit; Paulum consulem occidit, et aliquot præterea consulares, in his Cn. Servilium Geminum, qui superiore anno fuerat consul.

V. Hac pugna pugnata Romam profectus est, nullo resistente. In propinquis urbi montibus moratus est. Quum aliquot ibi dies castra habuisset, et Capuam reverteretur; Q. Fabius Maximus, dictator Romanus, in agro Falerno ei se objecit. Hic clausus locorum angus-

1. C. Terentius] His cognomen was Varro. He was an incompetent and imprudent commander.

L. Æmilius] He was a brave and prudent general; but, being forced by the rashness of Varro to fight the battle of Cannæ, he fell, with nearly 70,000 of his men, in the year B. C. 216. He is called Paulus in the next line, that having been his cognomen.

3. consulares] In the better days of the Roman state, this word denoted those who had been intrusted with the consulship.

V. Hannibal escapes from Fabius by a stratagem; he defeats Gracchus in the year B. C. 212, and Marcellus in the year B. C. 208.

5. pugna pugnata] This construction is explained by the active form pugnam pugnare, in which pugnam is a cognate accusative. H. 371, 1, 3).

Romam] He never made an attack on Rome, and did not even approach it till five years after the battle of Cannæ. His failure to follow up his victory led Mahābal to say to him, Vincere scis, Hannibal; victoriā uti nescis.

7. Capuam] This large, opulent, and luxurious city revolted to Hannibal after the battle of Cannæ, and suffered severely in consequence of such action. The love of luxury, the rigor of the Roman government, and the ravages of the Vandals and Arabs, caused the destruction of the ancient city: its ruins are situated about three miles from the modern town.

8. Q. — Maximus] Fabius was a general of eminent talents and virtue. He was surnamed "Cunctator," or the "Delayer," because he successfully withstood Hannibal, not by fighting him, but by harassing him with marches and countermarches.

dictator] An extraordinary magistrate, originally called magister populi, who was invested for six months with absolute power in times of public danger, and from whose decision there was no appeal. The consuls did not resign their office, but were subject to the dictator until his abdication, or the expiration of his term of authority, when they resumed their power.

9. Hic] Is here an adverb.

tiis noctu sine ullo detrimento exercitus se expedit, Fabioque, callidissimo imperatori, verba dedit. Namque obductā nocte sarmenta in cornibus juvencorum deligata incendit, ejusque generis multitudinem magnam dispalatam immisit. Quo repentino objecto visu tantum terrorem injecit exercitui Romanōrum, ut egredi extra vallum nemo sit ausus. Hanc post rem gestam non ita multis diebus M. Minucium Rufum, magistrum equitum, pari ac dictatorem imperio, dolo productum in praelium, fugavit. Ti. Sempronium Gracchum, iterum consulem, in Lucānis absens in insidias inductum sus-

2. verba dedit] 'Deceived;' literally, 'gave words,' as opposed to deeds.

3. obductā nocte] Sc. cælo, 'when night had come on.'

7. vallum] Sc. castrorum. The term properly means the palisade which ran along the outer edge of the rampart; but very frequently it includes the rampart also. The vallum, in the latter sense, with the ditch (fossa) which surrounded the camp outside of the vallum, formed a complete fortification.

sit ausus] Fabius had posted 4000 men to guard the pass, while the main body lay encamped on a neighboring hill. Hannibal, by his stratagem, frightened away the guards, and so extricated his army.

8. Minucium] This officer was associated with Fabius in the command of the Roman army, when the cautious movements of that general led the people to distrust his courage. Minucius, however, recognizing the wisdom and abilities of Fabius, resigned his authority as co-dictator.

magistrum equitum] No dictator could be without a magister equitum, whom he was generally permitted to nominate himself. The magister equitum was subject to the command of the dictator; but in the absence of his superior, he became his representative and exercised his power. This investment of Minucius with dictatorial power, by which two dictators were virtually created, is expressly mentioned as an anomaly which had never occurred before.

9. ac dictatorem] The accusative by attraction.

10. Gracchum] Ti. Sempronius Gracchus was a brave and active general, and distinguished for his high character and abilities.

iterum] Should be bis, as he was not consul the year of his death; iterum implies that he was.

tulit. M. Claudium Marcellum, quinquies consulem, apud Venusiam pari modo interfecit. Longum est, omnia enumerare prœlia. Quare unum hoc satis erit dictum, ex quo intelligi possit, quantus ille fuerit: quamdiu in Italiâ fuit, nemo ei in acie restitit, nemo 5 adversus eum post Cannensem pugnam in campo castra posuit.

VI. Hinc invictus patriam defensum revocatus bellum gessit adversus P. Scipiõnem, filium ejus Scipiõnis, quem ipse primo apud Rhodânnum, iterum apud Pa- 10 dum, tertio apud Trebiam fugarat. Cum hoc, exhaustis jam patriæ facultatibus, cupivit impræsentiæ bellum componere, quo valentior postea congredetur. In colloquium convenit; conditiones non convenerunt. Post id factum paucis diebus apud Zamam cum eodem 15 conflixit: pulsus (incredibile dictu) biduo et duabus quinquies] Should be quintum, because Marcellus fell in his fifth consulship.

1. Marcellum] This Roman general was celebrated for his many public and private virtues, as well as for the ability which he displayed against Hannibal.

2. Venusiam] This town was celebrated as the birthplace of the poet Horace.

Longum est] 'It would lead too far;' the subjunctive, though more logical, would be quite unidiomatic.

VI. Hannibal is vanquished by Scipio, near Zama, in the year B. C. 202.

8. revocatus] This happened towards the end of the year B. C. 203. He had been in Italy about fifteen years.

9. P. Scipiõnem] This was P.

Cornelius Scipio Africânus, one of the greatest men of Rome. He proposed the invasion of Africa, to which the senate reluctantly acceded. Though his countrymen honored him with the name of Africânus, and decreed him a splendid triumph, they soon forgot his services, and tried to degrade him; whereupon he retired to Liternum, a town of Campania, where he died, probably in the year B. C. 183. He was the first Roman that was called the Great.

12. impræsentiæ] A vulgar adverbial term, formed from in præsentia rerum, and equivalent to in præsentia.

15. Post—paucis diebus] The battle occurred the next day after the parley.

16. dictu] A supine in -u, used as an ablative of specification. H. 570.

noctibus Hadrumētum pervenit, quod abest ab Zamā circiter milia passuum trecenta. In hac fugā Numīdæ, qui simul cum eo ex acie excesserant, insidiati sunt ei; quos non solum effugit, sed etiam ipsos oppressit. Hadrumēti reliquos e fugā collegit; novis delectibus paucis diebus multos contraxit.

VII. Quum in apparando acerrime esset occupatus, Carthaginienses bellum cum Romānis composuerunt. Ille nihilo secius exercitui postea præfuit, resque in Africā gessit, itemque Mago, frater ejus, usque ad P. Sulpicium et C. Aurelium consules. His enim magistratibus legati Carthaginienses Romam venerunt, qui senatui populoque Romano gratias agerent, quòd cum iis pacem fecissent, ob eamque rem coronā aureā eos donarent, simulque peterent, ut obsides eorum Fregellis essent, captivique redderentur. His ex senatus consulto responsum est: munus eorum gratum acceptumque esse; obsides, quo loco rogarent, futuros; captivos non remissuros, quòd Hannibālem, cujus operā susceptum bellum foret, inimicissimum nomini Romāno, etiam-

1. Hadrumētum] A seaport south-east of Carthage, on the eastern coast of the Carthaginian territory, or of what afterwards formed the Roman province of Africa.

2. milia trecenta] Over two hundred and seventy-five miles! The actual distance is less than half that stated here.

VII. Hannibal takes refuge with Antiochus, king of Syria, in the year B. C. 196.

10. usque ad — consules] 'Even until the consulship of.' Between the names of two associates in office et is very frequently omitted. Z. 783.

11. His — magistratibus] The ablative absolute, 'in their term of office,' i. e., in the year B. C. 200, the year after the treaty of peace was concluded.

13. cum iis] i. e., Carthaginiensibus. The ambassadors do not speak for themselves, but for those by whom they were sent.

15. Fregellis essent] 'Might reside at Fregellæ.' Observe that essent is here an independent verb, and not a mere copula.

17. acceptum] Is a participial adjective, 'acceptable.'

18. quo loco rogarent, futuros] Instead of eo loco futuros (esse) quo, ut essent, rogarent.

19. remissuros] Sc. esse se.

nunc cum imperio apud exercitum haberent, itemque fratrem ejus Magōnem. Hoc responso Carthaginienses cognito Hannibālem domum et Magōnem revocarunt. Huc ut rediit, rex factus est, postquam imperator fuerat, anno secundo et vicesimo. Ut enim Romæ consules, sic Carthagīne quotannis annui bini reges creabantur. In eo magistratu pari diligentīā se Hannībal præbuit, ac fuerat in bello. Namque effecit, ex novis vectigalibus non solum ut esset pecunia, quæ Romānis ex fœdere penderetur, sed etiam superesset, quæ in ærario reponeretur. Deinde, M. Claudio, L. Furio consulibus Romā legati Carthagīnem venerunt. Hos Hannībal ratus sui exposcendi gratiā missos, priusquam iis senatus daretur, navem ascendit clam, atque in Syriam ad Antiōchum profugit. Hac re palam factā, Pœni naves duas, quæ eum comprehenderent, si possent consequi, miserunt; bona ejus publicarunt; domum a fundamentis disjecerunt; ipsum exsulem judicarunt.

VIII. At Hannībal anno quarto, postquam domo profugerat, L. Cornelio, Quinto Minucio consulibus cum quinque navibus Africam accessit in finibus Cyrenæorum, si forte Carthaginienses ad bellum Antiōchi spe fuerat] See Aristides, ch. III., ad fin.

10. penderetur, reponeretur] Subjunctives of purpose.

13. ratus] The perfect participles of deponents and semi-deponents correspond to perfect active participles in English; some of these not infrequently may be best translated by the present participle.

14. iis senatus daretur] i. e., audientibus ad senatum daretur. 'An audience of the senate was given them.'

18. a fundamentis] Is equivalent to funditus.

VIII. Hannibal tries in vain to arouse the Carthaginians to war. He returns to Antiochus, and engages in naval warfare against the Rhodians, B. C. 193 to B. C. 190.

21. Cyrenæorum] Cyrène, the capital of Cyrenaica, was a celebrated city near the coast of Northern Africa, on the tableland of Barca. Extensive ruins attest its former importance.

22. Antiōchi] An objective genitive after spe fiduciāque.

fiduciāque induci possent; cui jam persuaserat, ut cum exercitibus in Italiam proficisceretur. Huc Magōnem fratrem excivit. Id ubi Pœni resciverunt, Magōnem eādem, quā fratrem, absentem affecerunt pœnā. Illi
 5 desperatis rebus quum solvissent naves, ac vela ventis dedissent, Hannibal ad Antiōchum pervenit. De Magōnis interitu duplex memoria prodita est. Namque alii naufragio, alii a servulis ipsius interfectam eum, scriptum reliquerunt. Antiōchus autem, si tam in

IX. Antiōcho fugato, verens, ne dederetur, quod

1. possent] The subjunctive of indirect question, si being equivalent to num. H. 525, 1.

8. naufragio] For this word we must take the idea of perishing (periisse), from interfectum (esse); a case of zeugma.

servulis] Is a diminutive, with the notion of contempt. H. 315, 1.

10. ejus] Relates to Hannibal.

11. Tibēri] The Tiber rises in the Tuscan Apennines, and flows in a south-westerly direction, emptying into the Mediterranean about 17 miles below Rome. It is about 200 miles long, and at Rome about 350 feet broad.

Thermopylis] Here Antiōchus was defeated by the Romans in the year B. C. 191.

15. Rhodiorum] Rhodes was a considerable island south of Caria. The Rhodians were distinguished for their extensive commerce and their naval power. The Colossus, which stood at the entrance of the harbor of Rhodes, the capital of the island, was one of the seven wonders of the world. For more than two centuries, Rhodes belonged to the Knights of St. John.

16. Quo] Supply prælio, implied in conflixit.

IX. Hannibal flees to Crete, B. C. 189.

19. Antiōcho fugato] Near Magnesia, in Asia Minor, where Antiōchus was defeated by L. Cornelius Scipio, in the year B. C. 190; fugare is a causative of fugere; sine dubio accidisset, si sui fecisset potestatem, Cretam ad Gortynios venit, ut ibi, quo se conferret, consideraret. Vidit autem vir omnium callidissimus, magno se fore periculo, nisi quid providisset, propter avaritiam Cretensium. Magnam enim secum pecuniam portabat, de quā sciebat exisse famam. Itaque capit tale consilium. Amphoras complures complet plumbo; summas operit auro et argento. Has, præsentiis principibus, deponit in templo Diānæ, simulans, se suas fortunas illorum fidei credere. His in errorem inductis, statuas aëneas, quas secum portabat, omni suā pecuniā complet, easque in propatulo domi abjicit. Gortynii templum magnā curā custodiunt, non tam a ceteris, quā ab Hannibāle, ne ille, inscientibus iis, tolleret secumque duceret.

X. Sic conservatis suis rebus, Pænus, illis Cretensibus omnibus, ad Prusiam in Pontum pervenit.

ne dederetur] It was stipulated by the Romans, in the conditions of peace, that Hannibal should be surrendered to them.

1. Cretam] The largest of the Greek islands. Its favorable situation, salubrity, and fertility had made it rich and populous even in the time of Homer.

2. Gortynios] Gortyna, one of the five most considerable cities of Crete, was situated in the south-central part of the island.

4. nisi — providisset] 'Unless he took some precaution.'

avaritiam Cretensium] For the opinion which Epimenides, a contemporary of Solon, entertained of the Cretans, see Paul's Epistle to Titus, ch. i. v. 12.

7. summas] Sc. amphoras,

'their tops.' H. 441, 6. Z. 685.

10. statuas aëneas] 'Some bronze statues;' aëneus is another form of aereus, n and r being interchangeable: æs, with the ancients, was never brass, no zinc having been found in the metal thus called.

12. domi] Limits abjicit. H. 117, 1.

abjicit] 'Throws down,' i. e., as if they were worthless.

X. Hannibal flees to Prusias, the king of Bithynia, and stirs him up to war against the Romans. B. C. 184.

16. Pænus] 'The (wily) Carthaginian.' Pænus is intentionally used here, in antithesis with Cretensibus, who were also proverbially shrewd and cunning.

17. Pontum] Is here used loose-

Apud quem eodem animo fuit erga Italiam, neque aliud quicquam egit, quàm regem armavit et exercuit adversus Romānos. Quem quum videret domesticis opibus minus esse robustum, conciliabat ceteros reges, adjuly for Bithyniam, as bordering on the Euxine. Pontus was strictly a country lying on the south-eastern part of the Euxine.

6. Eumēnes] A king of Pergāmus, in Mysia, who, by the favor of the Romans, extended his little kingdom till it included a great part of Asia Minor.

8. utrobique] 'On both elements.'

11. Classe — decreturi] 'Were intending to fight a naval battle,' etc. H. 228.

14. serpentes — colligi] Though the accusative with the infinitive passive sometimes follows imperare, ut with the subjunctive is the more common construction. H. 551, II. 1 and 2.

15. vivas] Belongs to the predicate.

17. classarios] The termination -arius denotes either the idea of belonging to, or a person who is engaged in something as an occupation. H. 318, 1.

18. omnes ut] For a still more unusual position of ut, cf. p. 168, line 9. Connectives generally stand at the beginning of a clause.

19. tantum] 'Merely,' modifies se defendere.

21. ut scirent, se facturum] 'He would take care that they should know.'

facturum; quem si aut cepissent, aut interfecissent, magno iis pollicetur præmio fore.

XI. Tali cohortatione militum factâ, classis ab utrisque in prælium deducitur. Quarum acie constitutâ, priusquam signum pugnæ daretur, Hannibal, ut palam 5 faceret suis, quo loco Eumenes esset, tabellarium in scaphâ cum caduceo mittit. Qui ubi ad naves adversariorum pervenit, epistolamque ostendens se regem professus est quærere, statim ad Eumenum deductus est, quòd nemo dubitabat, aliquid de pace esse scriptum. Tabellarius, ducis nave declaratâ suis, eodem, unde erat egressus, se recepit. At Eumenes, solutâ epistolâ, nihil in eâ reperit, nisi quæ ad irridendum eum pertinerent. Cujus esti causam mirabatur, neque reperiebatur, tamen prælium statim committere non dubitavit. Horum in concursu Bithynii Hannibâlis præcepto universi navem Eumenis adoriuntur. Quorum vim rex quum sustinere non posset, fugâ salutem petit; quam consecutus non esset, nisi intra sua præsidia se recepisset, quæ in proximo litore erant collocata. Reliquæ Pergamænæ naves quum adversarios premerent acius, repente in eas vasa fictilia, de quibus supra mentionem fecimus, conjici cœpta sunt. Quæ jacta initio risum pugnantibus concitarunt, neque, quare id fieret, poterat intelligi. Postquam autem naves suas comple-

2. iis] One of two datives with fore. H. 390.

XI. Hannibal vanquishes Eumenes by a stratagem.

4. Quarum] i. e., classium, implied in classis ab utrisque.

7. caduceo] A wand or staff carried by heralds and ambassadors, and corresponding to the modern flag of truce.

12. solutâ epistolâ] Is equivalent to vincitis epistolæ laxatis.

The tablets on which letters were written were tied with a thread or string, which was secured with wax.

14. pertinerent] Subjunctive of result.

Cujus] Sc. epistolæ.

reperiebatur] Sc. causa. The change to the passive implies that others were curious as to the motive of the letter.

19. præsidia] Defences; i. e., castra nautica, below.

XII. Quæ dum in Asiā geruntur, accidit casu, ut legati Prusiæ Romæ apud T. Quintium Flamininum, consularem, cenarent, atque ibi, de Hannibale mentione 10 factā, ex iis unus diceret, eum in Prusiæ regno esse. Id postero die Flamininus senatui detulit. Patres conscripti, qui, Hannibale vivo, numquam se sine insidiis futuros existimarent, legatos in Bithyniam miserunt, in iis Flamininum, qui ab rege peterent, ne inimicissimum 15 suum secum haberet, sibi que dederet. His Prusia negare ausus non est; illud recusavit, ne id a se fieri postularent, quod adversus jus hospitii esset; ipsi, si possent, comprehenderent; locum, ubi esset, facile inventuros. Hannibal enim uno loco se tenebat in castello, 20 quod ei a rege datum erat muneri; idque sic ædificarat, ut in omnibus partibus ædificii exitus haberet, scilicet verens, ne usu veniret, quod accidit. Huc quum

XII. Hannibal commits suicide to escape being delivered up to the Romans, about the year B. C. 183.

5. alias] A case of alius used adverbially; 'at other times.'

8. apud] 'At the house of.'

T. — Flamininum] He was the conqueror of the Philip of Macedonia mentioned at the beginning of ch. II.

11. Patres conscripti] i. e., Patres et Conscripti, 'fathers and elect,' was the title of the assembled senate; conscripti refers to the enrolment of new senators by Brutus after the expulsion of Tarquin.

14. ne inimicissimum — dederet] 'Not to keep their worst enemy with him, but to give him up to them;' from ne, ut is to be supplied before dederet. Observe that suum and sibi relate to the leading subject (patres), while se refers to the subject of the dependent clause in which it stands.

16. ne id, etc.] Appositive to illud.

18. comprehenderent] The subjunctive in indirect for the imperative in direct discourse. H. 529.

legati Romanōrum venissent, ac multitudine domum ejus circumdedissent, puer ab januā prospiciens Hannibālī dixit, plures præter consuetudinem armatos apparere. XIII. Sic vir fortissimus, multis variisque perfunctus laboribus, anno acquievit septuagesimo. Quibus consulibus interierit, non convenit. Namque Atticus, M. Claudio Marcello, Q. Fabio Labeōne consulibus mortuum, in annali suo scriptum reliquit; at Polybius, L. Æmilio Paulo, Cn. Bæbio Tamphilo; Sulpicius au-

2. puer] A slave was so called, without regard to his age.

3. plures] 'A considerable number.'

6. obsideretur] Sc. ædificiū.

8. se peti] Cf. Themistocles, page 121, line 13.

10. virtutum] 'Deeds of valor.' venenum — sumpsit] Suicide (mors voluntaria) was regarded by the ancients as honorable in such cases as this.

XIII. Hannibal's attachment to literature.

13. acquievit] 'Went to his rest;' here antithetic to laboribus; a euphemism.

septuagesimo] True, if he was born in the year B. C. 249, as Mommsen says, and died in the consulship of Cethægus and Tamphilus; i. e., B. C. 181.

14. Atticus] Titus Pomponius Atticus was a polished and wealthy Roman knight, and a friend of Nepos. His liber annalis contained the history of Rome to the year B. C. 54.

15. Marcello] Marcellus and Labeo were consuls in the year B. C. 183.

16. Polybius] Was a Peloponnesian. After the fall of Perseus, the king of Macedonia, having been taken to Rome as a hostage, he became acquainted with Scipio Æmiliānus Africānus Minor, under whom he joined the Roman army, and was present at the capture of Carthage. He died about the year B. C. 122, at the age of eighty-two, leaving a valuable historical work, of which a part is still extant.

17. Paulo] Lucius Paulus and tem Blitho, P. Cornelio Cethēgo, M. Bæbio Tamphīlo. Atque hic tantus vir tantisque bellis districtus nonnihil temporis tribuit litteris. Namque aliquot ejus libri sunt, Græco sermone confecti; in iis ad Rhodios de Cn. 5 Manlii Vulsōnis in Asiā rebus gestis. Hujus belli gesta multi memoriæ prodiderunt: sed ex iis duo, qui cum eo in castris fuerunt simulque vixerunt, quamdiu fortuna passa est, Silēnus, et Sosīlus Lacedæmonius. Atque hoc Sosīlo Hannibal litterarum Græcarum usus est 10 doctore.

Sed nos tempus est hujus libri facere finem, et Romanorum explicare imperatores; quo facilius collatis utrorumque factis, qui viri præferendi sint, possit judicari.

Cn. Tamphīlus were consuls in the year B. C. 182.

1. Blitho] Is otherwise unknown.

4. ad Rhodios] Sc. liber.

5. Vulsōnis] Vulso was consul B. C. 189, and, as such, made a treaty with Antiöchus, and conducted a war against the Gallo-græci or Galatians in Asia Minor.

8. Silēnus] His work, as well as that of Sosīlus, is lost.

11. hujus libri] i. e., de excellentibus ducibus exterarum gentium.

facere] Subject of tempus est, which is equivalent to tempestivum est. H. 549, 1, 1).
